PALS applies for Cultural District designation for Village of Salado The group is working be one of the smallest

From Sirena to Salado Legends to the Sculpture Garden to artists working in many media, Salado has been a home to the arts and to artists Public Arts League of Salado is working to apply through the TCA Cultural District program to designate much of the downtown and historic district as a Cultural District.

The program is not a grant program, but a designation program with a deadline of June 15.

PALS held a meeting May 16 to garner support for the Cultural District.

The group is working on the notebook to present as part of its application. A video will also be part of the application.

The Cultural District designation may help Salado in securing arts and restoration grants. PALS secured a matching grant from TCA to bring Blue Lapis Light to Salado in 2014 and 2015.

The Cultural District designation will also help with marketing Salado as an arts and culture destination. Just two dozen districts have been designated by TCA and Salado would communities in Texas to receive such a distinction.

This will be the second time that Salado has applied for the designation. PALS led an unsuccessful effort last year.

Among the communities to receive the designation are these: Abilene, Alpine, Austin, Bastrop, Clifton, Dallas, Denison, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Georgetown, Houston, Hunstville, McAllen, Rosenberg, San Angelo, San Antonio, San Elizario, Smithville and Winnsboro.

Local museum announces interim curator

The Board of Directors of the Central Texas Area Museum in Salado (www. saladoscottishfestival. com) has named Coleman Hampton as Interim Curator for the historic museum. Hampton is a graduate of the Baylor University Department of Museum Studies in Waco.

"Creating the curator's position is the first step in a revitalization program now underway at the museum," says Sterling Ambrose, the museum founder's grandson and a current CTAM Board Member. "The program will include a facelift for our 150-yearold building, an upgrade of the exhibits, and an expansion of museum programs. Visitors and residents can look forward to a new name, new displays, and a variety of events that we hope will become a part of the culture of Salado."

Joining the many generous supporters of the Friends of the Museum fund-raising campaign (www.gofundme.com/ friendsofctam) recently initiated to ensure the continuation of museum programs and events, Ambrose is sponsoring the new curator position and donating his time to lead the museum revitalization effort.

Current museum hours are Thursdays, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., and Fridays and Saturdays, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Coleman Hampton recently worked with the Dallas Heritage Village on a massive research project in their archives and collections that culminated in his creation of a mobile app to help enhance visitor experience at the Village. He has also worked with the Texas Sports Hall of Fame, the Mayborn Museum Complex at Baylor, and the Baylor University Institute for Oral History. Hampton holds a Bachelor of Arts in History and a Master's degree in Museum Studies from Baylor University.

As Interim Curator at the Central Texas Area Museum, Hampton will evaluate and organize the museum's archives and collections. "This will provide an opportunity for me to become familiar with the local and area history that helped form this great state," Hampton says. "My long-term goal is to create exhibits and educational opportunities that highlight the rich heritage and history of Salado."

In discussing the next era for the landmark museum, Ambrose adds, "Our goal is not only to create a better museum, but also to become a welcome center for Salado visitors and residents." For more information on how to participate in the Friends of the Museum fund-raising campaign, go to www. gofundme.com/friendsofc-

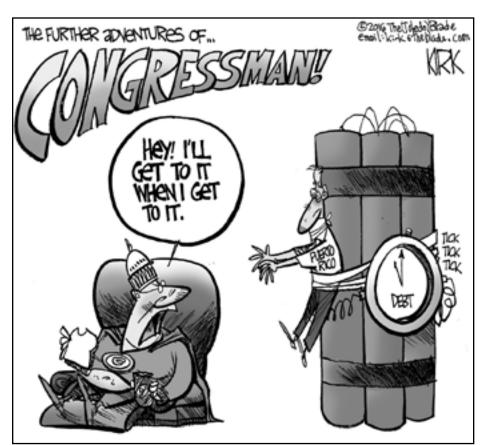

The Central Texas Area Museum is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization established in 1959 to preserve the pioneer history of Central Texas and its colorful cultural diversity.

The Museum houses artifacts of early frontier days in this region as well as a library of books and papers that document the settlement and heritage of the area.

Coleman Hampton has been named the interim curator for the Central Texa Area Museum.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Blowing Smoke on E-Cigarettes

Down through all the millennia that mankind has smoked tobacco, no one would have believed (or even imagined) that a battery-powered contraption with no tobacco would one day be considered a tobacco product.

We've long had smokeless tobacco; now we have tobaccoless tobacco. This conceptual breakthrough is the work of federal bureaucrats who are bringing the regulatory hammer down on e-cigarettes in a misbegotten extension of the war on smoking.

The Food and Drug Administration has issued new rules so onerous that they will likely suppress the manufacture of e-cigarettes and kill off small companies making them. Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Burwell hailed the action as "an important step in the fight for a tobacco-free generation" -- never mind, of course, that e-cigarettes are tobacco-free.

It is a strange country that is simultaneously moving to legalize marijuana and to crack down on vaping. But here we are. There is no doubt that cigarettes are a great cause of human misery; they kill almost 500,000 people a year in the U.S. This is why e-cigarettes, with their potential to diminish smoking, could be a boon to public health. They deliver nicotine without the truly harmful part of cigarettes, the tar and chem-

The FDA is evidently operating on the basis of a regulator's reverse Hippocratic oath: First, do harm to a burgeoning industry -- then hope to find some evidentiary justification for it at some later date.

The new rules are crafted so that every vaping product currently on the market will have to go through an onerous FDA review process. Any new products will have to do the same. The American Vaping Association maintains that submitting an application will cost more than $1 million and take more than 1,700 hours. The regulatory burden will swamp small companies that lack the resources to pour into compliance costs. (The big tobacco companies, in contrast, will be fine.)

The small firms have innovation in driven e-cigarettes. The products have gotten better, with more variety, since their introduction in 2007. That's manifestly a good thing. The more satisfying

e-cigarettes are, and the more they replicate the real smoking experience, the more likely it is that smokers will switch over, or at least use fewer ciga-

The highly respected Royal College of Physicians in Britain gets the logic. It issued a report emphasizing the enormous promise of e-cigarettes, which it estimates are 5 percent as dangerous as the real thing. An authority who worked on the report explained to The New York Times that e-cigarettes "have the potential to help half or more of all smokers get off cigarettes. That's a huge health benefit, bigger than just about any medical intervention."

The U.S. is rejecting that common-sense approach to harm reduction. It is against vaping no matter how safe it is or how many people it might coax into giving up smoking.

The famous line attributed to Mark Twain is that nothing is as easy as quitting smoking -he's done it thousands of times. Of course, Twain didn't have the option of vaping. If the FDA has anything to say about it, neither will anyone else.

Readers express concerns

Dear Editor:

A concern to you and all Salado citizens!

Don't feed the babies or mothers!! This is the number one rule in managing the deer population.

The fawns start appearing this month. Don't pick them up. The mom or pop may attack you.

This you can expect over the next three months: Likely another town hall meeting, Volunteers with Q beams shining lights across your property (not police officers). They will be counting deer for the Dept. of Parks and Wild-

Drive slow and safely!

Dear Editor:

What to do?

I appreciated Mr. Swarthout's comments about the election in last week's Salado Village Voice, but I don't believe he votes in the local Village election. And since he has a barber shop just inside the Village limits, I imagine it is a hazard of his occupation that rumors will forever plague his daily work life. I suggest he might want to post a no gossiping during haircuts....or maybe Loose lips may result in bald spots!

Those of us who reside in the village have to continue to observe our elected official's actions and use of our tax dollars.

Immediately after reinstalling the mayor and board members, the BOA had scheduled an unexplained executive session with the Village lawyer. No hint of topic.

There are a number of senior citizen voters in the Village who are concerned about an eminent domain action on the part of the board. A more explicit agenda topic might help stop those fears and rumors? Just a suggestion.

I think that is a positive idea, but I am now officially confused about what is positive and what is negative.

Big Squeeze Texas Education

BY MATTHEW WELLS, PRESIDENT SCIENCE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION OF

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT CHAIR. CY-PRESS LAKES HIGH SCHOOL

I am reminded of the old West Texas adage, "Please, Lord, one more oil boom and this time I promise not to throw it all away."

Well, we had it, and we saved it and we now have a $10 Billion Rainy Day Fund that some legislators want to protect from themselves with Constitutional Amendments and statutes limiting access. I'm not saying we should raid the fund for recurring state expenses such as, say, educating our population explosion of young people. Maybe I'm saying that with so much of our state resources based on a single commodity which has a tradition of fluctuating, we should ask if we are structurally sound enough to promise the social services Texans have come to expect. From a state finance perspective, we can at least draw comfort from knowing that the price of gasoline is rising at the more options to students

Policy-makers' hearts are in the right place: they passed high school curriculum reform to provide and reduce drop outs, though without enough counselors to implement it. They adopted a new higher education plan - named 60X30TX - calling for a significant increase in the number of college degrees and certifications for specific employment needs, though without a plan of who is going to teach this anticipated new demand. State appropriators last year increased school funding. Some say thank you and some say not enough. They added three-quarters of a billion dollars to teacher health insurance (thank you), yet face a similar budget hole next year (not enough). The Texas Supreme Court has told us that school funding is "constitutional" when it is 25 percent below the national average and those other states aren't doing so well, either. Legislative leaders will have to rethink who tells parents how much extra college tuition to pay, and also explain to K-12 teachers how they will accomplish more with less.

Governor Abbott recently celebrated STEM Week and campaigned to promote the faculty in our universities. He understands the importance of investing in the people of the educational enterprise, and no doubt remembers a previous Texas Comptroller study that shows investment in higher education returns a five-to-one ROI.

The key word here is "investment". The 84th Texas Legislature made a great start to filling the financial hole created during the last recession of 2011, but they're chasing a rapidly growing need. More than half of Texas public education students belong to low-income families and that percentage is growing. And we want and our employers require - even more of those students to attain a post-secondary degree or credential, especially in the area of STEM.

Meeting these growing needs is a challenge that falls to our dedicated science teachers and their school districts, who struggle with overcrowded laboratories, rapidly changing demographics, building and opening new schools, and hiring more educators to address larger enrollments and staff turnover. We are a growth industry to be proud of!

As another graduation season is upon us, the question seems to be not who slices the pie of educational resources, but how can we generate more pies?

Friends,

Thank you" remarks are in order.

First: thank you for re-electing me as Mayor. Writing my name as a "write-in" means much. The next 2-years are critical; I will do my very best.

Second: thanks to Hans Fields who ran a very commendable race. There is no doubt how much he loves this community.

Third: Salado Village Voice. Tim and Marilyn have a difficult job representing all sides. They are remarkable.

In last week's Salado Village Voice, Dave Swarthout's editorial asked, "What is Next?"

The answer for 2016 is: I-35 Construction. Last week, met with Mike Kilgore, President, James Construction/Rick Lewis, Regional Engineer. Holding firm with completion date Sept. 30, 2016. TX-DoT Executives' verification: "Good date."

Stagecoach. The owner's commitment is solid. Stagecoach refurbishing going forward. Key: I-35 Construction completion. Owner says refurbishing begins then.

Sewer. City Sewer Engineer, KPA: Two permits expected soon: Corps of Engineers and Environmental. Right-a-ways are working. Once done, Bidding/awarding contract occurs. The sewer lines and Water Treatment designs: completed. October: Lines and plant construction start and will be done simultaneously.

Hunger Doesn't Take a Summer Vacation: Partner with USDA to Feed More Kids

By USDA RURAL HOUSING SERVICE Administrator Tony Hernandez AND TEXAS STATE DIRECTOR FOR RU-RAL DEVELOPMENT PACO VALENTIN

In 2015, about 22 million American children depended on free or reduced-price school lunches. When school lets out for the summer, many of these children do not get enough to eat and become at risk of all the health issues associated with hun-Child poverty and hunger are persistent problems in rural America.

At the U.S. Department of Agriculture, we work to address these problems every day. Our agency, the Rural Housing Service (RHS), finances affordable housing and community facilities for families and communities across the country (or something better if you have it), and our sister agency, the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), works to increase food security and reduce hunger by providing eligible low-income families access to healthy foods and nutrition education through its nutrition assistance programs. Together, our two agencies can do even more. For the past several years, we have been partnering to feed children when school is out for the summer.

With RHS guidance, USDA-financed multi-family affordable rental communities participated in FNS' Summer Food Service Program last year, including nine in Texas. The program allows USDA to reimburse local sponsoring organizations for serving healthy, free meals to eligible low-income children age 18 and younger during the summer months when school is not in session. The participation of our multi-family housing communities allows us to bring these meals to the places where kids live. Local communities have an opportunity to play a big role in combating hunger and helping to promote good nutrition to its own residents.

Unfortunately, we were only making a dent in the challenge. While 191 million meals were served in the summer of 2015, only about one in five children participated in the Summer Food Service Program. This means more than 17 million children were still at risk of hunger. We must do more!

In partnership with rural America's affordable rental property owners and tenants, we will help the department feed as many hungry kids as possible this summer.

For 2016, the Rural Housing Service has set a goal to increase our participation in the Summer Food Service Program by at least 50 percent. To achieve this goal, we need 276 properties to host summer feeding sites nationwide. In Texas we have the potential to add approximately 100 properties to the national goal! We are committed to helping more kids have healthy food to eat- let's get more Texas sites committed to the cause!

One of our participating multi-family housing properties was May Road

Apartments. The caring folks in Seagoville, TX were happy to feed and supervise kids last summer. They partnered with a local nonprofit sponsor organization, Nora's Women of Purpose, to provide 13,593 meals. Like all our other property owners, May Road Apartments was already ensuring children have clean, safe housing. Making sure these same children are being fed felt like just another part of the mission.

The owners and managers of USDA-financed affordable rental housing can help us feed more hungry kids in rural America. Together we can make a difference! To sign up to host summer meals, go to www.fns.usda.gov/sfsp/ how-become-sponsor.

Even if you're not a property owner or manager you or your organization can help USDA Rural Development and the Food and Nutrition Service feed more kids too by visiting www.summerfood.usda.

Faith and 'The Facebook Effect': Young Social Media Regulars Less Committed to One Religion

WACO, Texas (May 16, 2016) — Youths who use social media are more likely to develop a "pickand-choose" approach to customize their faith regardless of what their religious tradition teaches than those who do not use social media, according to a Baylor University study.

Community Bible Study of Isaiah registration opens

The Temple-Belton Community Bible Study (CBS) adult evening class is currently registering members for next year's 30 week in-depth interdenominational Bible Study of Isaiah.

Beginning Sept. 12, the class will meet Mondays from 7:30-9 p.m. in the small sanctuary of First Baptist Church of Belton, at Sixth and Main Streets, Belton. Individuals may choose to participate in core groups for young adults, men, women, or married couples.

Each week participants receive a reading commentary on the previous week's topic and a set of questions to work on each day covering the next week's reading.

These questions are discussed in small groups of about fifteen. Following the small groups there is a short teaching over the same section of Scripture.

The class will break for Christmas and spring vacations and finish at the first of May, 2017.

Increases in one's level of education are associated with increased odds of picking and choosing one's religious beliefs.

"What this study suggests is that social technologies have an effect on how we think of religious beliefs and traditional institutions," McClure said. "In particular, those who spend time on social networking sites like Facebook are more likely to think it's perfectly acceptable to experiment with other religions and claim they do not need to remain committed to the teachings of a singular tradition. In this way, emerging adults may distinguish themselves from older generations not only in their use of technology, but in how they think of religion.

"The fact that these two phenomena may be related is striking and deserves further research at the intersection of religion and technology."

Eagle Scout Court of Honor set May 28 for Sampson

The Eagle Scout Court of Honor for Richard Lee Sampson, Jr. (Ricky) will be held May 28 at VFW Post 3892 in Harker Heights.

Sampson earned his eagle rank in January of 2016.

To earn the rank of Eagle Scout, a scout must complete 21 merit badges demonstrating key life long skills.

Ricky's favorite merit badge to earn was wilderness survival.

The Scout must also complete a complex Eagle Project.

For his project, Ricky built and installed bat houses for the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers at area lakes. The houses provide a safe place for bats to nest. Bats are beneficial for help in insect population control.

Ricky currently attends Salado High School and will graduate on June 4. After high school Ricky plants to join the Navy.

Sarah Simmons SHS Artist of Month

Her peers try to work around her pile of books, papers, clothes, and lunch food that she "didn't have time to eat." Her teachers pick up after her and remind her of meetings, deadlines, and even the current day and time. She may get lovingly teased about her forgetfulness; but Artist of the Month, Sarah Simmons, is quite focused when it comes to her artwork.

Sarah, a junior at Salado High School, was chosen for her beautiful colored pencil drawing called, "Brooke Adeline." It is just one of many family-centered artworks that she has completed this year. The style of the drawing is photo-realism, and she used a photo of her cousin for her source. Sarah has produced several pencil and pastel drawings, as well as a few paintings, of family and friends during the school year. As a matter of fact, Sarah's submissions into Regional VASE this year were both in the style of photo-realism. One was a pencil drawing of her brothers and herself as toddlers, and the other, a self-portrait done in pastel. Both pieces earned her Superior medals.

"Creating art is very calming," Sarah explains. "I also think it is very satisfying seeing the end product."

Sarah first became interested in art in the fourth grade, when she got to paint two times a week. She did not take her first official art class until high school, but she has always been crafty. She always liked to make things to decorate her room or to make things just for fun. Pencil, charcoal, and pastels are her favorite because she likes to be able to smudge, rub, and blend her medium.

"Sarah's creativity is like a waterfall," says Kyra Mann, her high school art teacher. "She has new ideas all the time; she comes up with something that she would like to try even as she is working on a current project. She is so excited about her ideas, the process... her artwork. Sarah may leave a mess in her wake, but out of those messes comes very precise and detailed artwork."

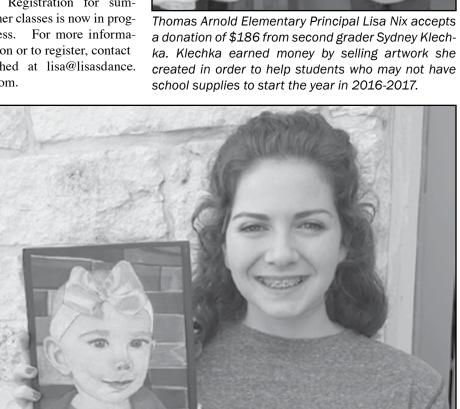

Sarah is involved with FCA, was a member of the track team, and served as a manager for the boys' basketball program. Sarah has no long-term plans for the future. She wants to take it day-by-day and stay active.

present a variety of dance entertainment including tap, ballet, jazz, lyrical, contemporary and hip-hop routines. Award-winning solos, duets, and groups from recent competitions will be a highlight of the recitals.

The show is directed by Lisa Shed. She holds a degree in early childhood education from Texas A&M University and is certified by the Texas Association of Teachers of Dancing.

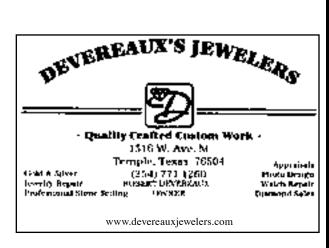

Registration for summer classes is now in progtion or to register, contact Shed at lisa@lisasdance.

Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors will be "on the Rock"

Salado's Tablerock Amphitheater is the setting for Shakespeare's play The Comedy of Errors 8 p.m. June 3-4.

Kelly Parker, Tablerock Board of Directors member, will direct The Comedy of Errors, one of beloved Shakespeare's Parker is the McLennan College Director of Theater in Waco and lives in Salado. The roles will be portrayed by college students from the Central Texas area.

The Comedy of Errors, one of Shakespeare's earliest and most farcical comedies, guides the audience through a slapstick romp with two sets of long lost twins, irrepressible mistaken identity, mischievous shenanigans, and romantic intrigue. Join in as two sets of brothers, both names Antipholus and Dromio, unknowingly cross paths in the bustling city of Ephesus leaving a slew of erroneous histrionics in their wake.

The cast and crew will guide you on a merry chase, they are as follows: Tanner Coone as SOLI-NUS, Duke of Ephesus; Alexander Jay Alvarez as AEGEON, a Merchant of Syracuse; Alec Ehringer playing ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, Twin, son to Aegeon & Aemilia; Cody Beseda as ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse, Twin, son to Aegeon & Aemilia; Cameron Gradel as DROMIO of Ephesus, Twin, attendant to Antipholus; Kailin Riley playing DROMIO of Syracuse, Twin, attendant to Antipholus; Jennifer Ringer as ADRIANA, Wife to Antipholus of Ephesus; Samantha Damon as LUCIANA, her Sister; Sara Westerfiled as LUCE, Servant to Adriana; Russell Hardy as BALTHAZAR, a Merchant; Erik Anderson playing ANGELO, a Goldsmith; Christopher Arnold MERCHANT, playing Friend to Antipholus of Syracuse; Mitchell Voorhies as A SECOND MERCHANT, to whom Angelo is a debtor; Lauren Hill as AEMILIA, Wife to Ægeon, an Abbess at Ephesus; Rowdy Dodd playing PINCH, a Schoolmaster and a Conjurer; Keele Halbert as SERVANT GIRL; Lacey Drew as A COURTEZAN; Hunter Allen as GAOLER; Lamec Rosas as GUARD; Erin Rose Morley is the Manager; Darlisha Blaybock is the Technical Director.

Falsecard aimed at partner

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Basically, a defender's falsecard is designed to mislead declarer without fooling partner at the same time. On rare occasions, however, the intent is exactly the opposite, with the falsecard deliberately aimed at deceiving partner without trying to mislead declarer at all.

Witness today's deal, where South wound up in four spades after East had overcalled in hearts. West led the eight of hearts, but instead of making the normal play of the jack at trick one -- the lowest card from equals by a defender not on lead -- East played the king!

This violation of standard procedure by East was designed to create the impression in West's mind that declarer had the queen of hearts. East's purpose was to induce West to shift to South dealer. Both sides vulnerable. NORTH another suit -- namely, clubs -- if West gained the lead. Declarer took the first trick with the ace of hearts, crossed to dummy with a diamond and tried a spade finesse. West won and, having credited South with the queen of hearts after the play to the first trick, naturally decided to look elsewhere for additional tricks. The only realistic possibility seemed to lie in clubs, so he shifted to the club ten, whereupon East took two clubs and a heart to set the contract one trick.

Had East not intentionally deceived his partner at trick one, West might well have returned a second heart after taking the spade king. Declarer would then have made the contract, since East could collect no more than a heart and a club before South claimed the rest.

But, as East hoped, his partner fell right into the trap he had so skillfully laid for him.

Wild About Texas

Any proficient outdoorsman understands the complexity of the natural world around them. Every living thing has its place in its surroundings, whether man understands that concept or not. Oftentimes, certain species of animals, particularly carnivores, are persecuted not on the facts of what they do, but rather on the fables of their actions. One such animal here in Texas is the common, but seldom seen, Bobcat.

The Bobcat (Lynx rufus) is the most common of the six species of the gravish brown or reddish family Felidae that have brown with numerous and called Texas home at one time or another. Contrary to what myths continue to persist about the dietary forays of Bobcats, studies have shown that the vast majority of their diet (nearly sixty-five percent) consists of rabbits. Secondary prey items include rats, mice, and squirrels. Some specimens will occasionally feast upon raccoons, skunks, birds and even snakes. Rarely will a Bobcat attack, kill and consume a healthy and robust adult domestic animal such as a goat or sheep, although it does infrequently occur.

At first glance, adult Bobcats closely resemble a By far, the majority of large, albeit fluffy, domesbreeding activity occurs ticated housecat. The young are born with their eyes closed, but are almost exact duplicates of the parents in color and pattern, save a bit of a more spotted pattern. The progeny are weaned at about ten weeks old, and they are able to look after themselves when they are half a year old. The mortality rate of juveniles is high, but the individuals who survive "childhood" are generally long-lived; several specimens have exceeded thirteen years in the wild. The chief predator that adults face is man, followed by dogs. Natural predators include foxes and coyotes, particularly for juveniles.

I will always remember the time that I was invited for a visit with a rancher about the natural history of the area, and as I pulled into the gate entering the property, I witnessed a sight that can only be described as gruesome. Strung up along the fence on both sides of the road were no less than thirty dead Bobcats, with a few foxes and coyotes sprinkled in. While visiting with the well-to-do rancher, we started discussing all of the dead bobcats strung up like trophies. He stated that, while he had never seen it happen, he grew up hearing that Bobcats kill and eat goats quite frequently, and since goatranching was his livelihood, he was just doing his part to contain the Bobcat population. But then he said something that I will never forget when he told me that now, he has more damage to his other crops from rabbits because the rabbit population had just exploded for some reason! Not being a "tree-hugging environmentalist" as well as not wanting to offend my new friend, I smoothly explained the role of the Bobcat as an apex predator in the natural world and its importance in things like rabbit population control, and to this day, he has not shot another Bobcat. His rationale was, even if he were to lose a goat or two, the rabbits were actually doing a more significant amount of damage economically.

Four-wire fence

OVERTON - Landowners have a few options to protect forage plots and gardens from browsing deer, but the electric four-wire system appears to work best, according to a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service wildlife specialist.

Dr. Billy Higginbotham, AgriLife Extension wildlife specialist in Overton, said the system is the best and most cost-effective option for landowners looking to keep deer out of food plots and gardens.

Dr. James Kroll, emeritus director of the Institute for White-tailed Deer Management and Research at Stephen F. Austin University, created the four-wire electric fence design as a temporary barrier to control deer access to forage plots.

The technology has since been applied to protect high-value areas such as gardens as well, Higginbotham said. It has been field-tested for several years and was tested in Overton last summer.

The design allows landowners to limit access to small food plots that would otherwise be overbrowsed by deer and at a much lower cost than an 8-foot-tall net wire fence, Higginbotham said. He said food plots as small as several acres of cowpeas can typically withstand browsing pressure but that forages need time, typically six weeks, to become well-established.

"We've been pleased with the results, especially as we moved the fence to allow deer access to the forage," Higginbotham said.

He advised using electric fence "tape" set 18 inches off the ground for the outside hot wire and twist it so small breezes will make it flutter. Then set white electric fence wire 12 inches and 24 inches above the ground 3 feet inside the outside hot wire, and again 3 feet inside the two hot wires, set another electric tape twisted to flutter in the breeze.

Six-foot t-posts with insulators are used for corner posts for the hot wire configuration, he said. Place white, if possible, electric fence posts every 25 feet between the t-posts. Additional t-posts may be needed every 100 feet on bigger food plots.

The configuration is only 6 feet wide and 24 inches off the ground but the three dimensional effect has proven successful at keeping deer out of cowpea stands.

design to control deer access to a quarter-acre plot of cowpeas at the Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Center in Four game cameras were placed to monitor the quarter-acre food plot and deer interactions with the fencing system, he said. There was only one breach of the fencing system during the summer field trial – a doe jumped inside the outside fence for about 30 seconds and then exited.

Higginbotham said the configuration is good for food plots because it can be moved to allow limited access to the food plot throughout the summer and leading into hunting

He said allowing food plots relief from browsing pressure could help landowners to keep deer hooked to summer forages all the way up to youth rifle season or archery sea-

The success protecting food plots can also benefit other areas landowners who want to restrict deer access. Home gardens near deer habitat can be vulnerable to deer browsing, Higginbotham said.

The total cost to fence the quarter-acre plot was approximately $400, he said. However, cost would drop significantly on a per-acre basis as the size of the plots protected by the electric fence design increased in area.

"Right now is a good time for landowners to be planting their summer forage plots, like cowpeas, and this system does a fantastic job of protecting those plots when they're starting and provides a way of controlling access as the landowner allows," Higginbotham said. "However, it is important to have the fence in place before the cowpeas germi-

Rain Water Harvesting Workshop

UPDATE on Saturday, May 21, 2016, Bell County Master Gardeners and Texas A&M Agrilife will host the first Rainwater Harvesting workshop for Bell county residents. Although we have been blessed with abundant rain this spring, we know the hot dry months of summer are coming. Water Conservation is key and Rain Water harvesting is a viable alternative for irrigation, wildlife, and livestock use. For example, a one inch rain on a 1000 square ft. roof area will collect 660 gallons of water, and rain barrels work on homes with gutters as well as those homes without gutters. Learn how to effectively harvest rainwater, and its many benefits in this workshop as well as come away with your own 55 gallon rain barrel made during the course of the workshop. The class will be taught by Rain Water specialists. The cost of this workshop will be $50 per participant. This workshop will be held at the Extension Center in the Master Gardeners "Learning Center" at 1605 N. Main, Belton Texas.

Due to the interest expressed there will be two sessions offered. A Morning session, from 9 a.m.noon, and an Afternoon session from 1-4 p.m. Participation is limited to a maximum of 25 participants per session.

Participants need to pre-register to secure a barrel by contacting the Agrilife Extension Service at 254-933-5305. Registrants need to Prepay by Thursday, May 19. prior to the workshop on Saturday May 21.
