Aldermen amend building ordinances

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado aldermen at their April 3 meeting amended the zoning ordinance and the building and code ordinance to entail several changes to the documents, including the incorporation of regulations for the selling of alcohol.

The board also adopted an alcohol ordinance that regulates the sale of alcohol within the Village of Salado, including the distance from an establishment selling alcohol and churches and schools within the Village and the hours in which alcohol can be sold.

The new ordinance regulates that alcohol cannot be sold within 300 feet of a school or church without a variance approved by the Board of Aldermen. The distance regulation applies to churches, public hospitals, day-care centers, child care facilities, and public and private schools.

The distance requirement for churches and public hospitals is 300 feet measured along the property lines of the street fronts and from front door to front door and in direct line across intersections.

The distance requirement from public schools, private schools and day care/child care facilities is 300 feet in a direct line from property line of the school or facility to the property line of the place of business.

In addition to the alcohol ordinance, aldermen amended the Zoning Ordinance to reflect the regulations on the sale of alcohol and to bring the Zoning Ordinance and the Building and Code Ordinance into agreement. Aldermen addressed areas in which the Building and Code Ordinance was not in agreement with the Zoning Ordinance.

The board discussed but tabled the appointment of a community advisory committee to consider the following three items of business before the board of aldermen:

- Help determine what if any tax rate
- Help Determine exemptions and what they may be
- Review financial statements for 07-08 to recommend any areas in which expenditures can be cut.

The committee will have no final authority on these matters.

Don't Dress for Dinner takes stage for public April 16 & 17

The Salado High School Theatre Department will present public performances of their award-winning one-act play, "Don't Dress For Dinner" on April 16 and April 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the SIS cafeteria.

The play garnered awards for Best Actor (Stetson Gilcrest, sophomore) and Best Actress (Heather Williams, sophomore) at the UIL district one-act play contest.

Other players receiving All Star awards at district and area contests were Klay Sheffield (senior) and Ashlee Cantrell (junior).

"Don't Dress For Dinner," written by Marc Camoletti and translated by Robin Hawdon, was a smash hit comedy in Paris under the title "Pyjamas pour Six," where it ran for over two years.

Robin Hawdon's adaptation of this French original was premiered in 1991 and played to critical acclaim at London's Apollo Theatre.

Hurtling along at a breakneck speed, "Don't Dress For Dinner" draws the audience into a delicious web of multiple treacheries and mistaken identities that culminate into an evening of hilarious confusion.

Chamber moves Forum to April 14

The Salado Chamber of Commerce moved the date of its Candidate Forum to 6:30 p.m. April 14 at the Salado Civic Center.

The decision to move the date of the Forum came after the April 3 edition of the Salado Village Voice was printed, mailed and distributed to newsstands.

The Chamber originally moved the Forum from its April 14 date to April 10 last week when it discovered that St. Luke's Episcopal Church was hosting a benefit concert on April 14 to dig a well in Malawi.

The Chamber then informed the newspaper via an e-mail received at 11:24 a.m. April 3 that it had moved the date back to April 14.

No explanation for moving the date of the Forum back to April 14 was given by the Chamber of Commerce in the announcement or in a subsequent press release. A call on April 8 and an e-mail to the Chamber on April 8 asking why the Forum was moved to April 14 were not returned by press-time for this edition of the Salado Village Voice.

Larry Prielop, president of the Salado Chamber will introduce the candidates at 6:30 p.m. April 14 at the Salado Civic Center. Each candidate will have about three to four minutes to tell about themselves and their platform. Candidates will then have the opportunity to answer questions from the public.

First on the schedule will be the candidates for Mayor of Salado, Michael Cooper and Merle Stalcup. Second on the schedule will be the candidates for Alderman, Hulda Horton, Stephen Peters and Carol Walls. The last group for consideration are the six candidates running for Salado Independent School District Trustees: Debbie Aldridge, Rodney W. Bell, Kim Bird, Robert Daniell, Nelson Lewis and Joe McKethan.

Tax estimates arrive, shock some Saladoans

By Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Salado property owners got an idea of what their 2009 taxes will be when they received the annual Tax Estimate from the Bell County Tax Appraisal District last week.

Many property owners saw double-digit percent increases in the value of their homes or businesses.

For many of the 1,915 properties within the Village of Salado, the addition of a 25-cent property tax by the Village means an overall increase of anywhere from hundreds to thousands of dollars.

The Tax Estimates provide property owners with an idea of what the new appraisal will cause their taxes to do if compared with the previous year.

If any of the taxing entities change their rates for 2008-2009 budget years, then taxes will change accordingly.

The 25-cent rate for the Village of Salado was the amount agreed to by Village aldermen last month to propose. The final tax rate, if any, will be adopted by a vote of the board of aldermen when the 2008-09 budget is adopted in September to take effect Oct. 1.

The Bell County Tax Appraisal District will supply local entities such as the Salado Independent School District and Village of Salado with estimated appraised values later this spring after local taxpayers are given the opportunity to contest the appraisal given to their properties.

The Appraisal District has prepared for the Village of Salado an estimate of the certified total values of the taxable properties within the boundaries of the Village in 2007.

The Village taxable values in 2007 was $234,007,544. At a 25-cent per $100 tax rate, this value could have raised $585,018.86 for the 2007-08 budget had the Village of Salado adopted at 25-cent tax rate last year.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Return of Inflation?

Beneath the headlines of Wall Street’s financial crisis lurks the economic killer for ordinary Americans -- inflation.

It steals from the pocketbook of every American consumer, in an across-the-board regressive tax hitting especially hard those who spend most of their income on food and energy. It cuts into profits and washes away savings. And it has a self-perpetuating dynamic -- once people become habituated to inflation, it’s devilishly hard to stamp out.

During the past year, the Consumer Price Index -- the so-called headline inflation rate -- has increased more than 4 percent. The Producer Price Index, measuring wholesale prices, is up more than 6 percent, and the price of imports is up 14 percent -- both at their highest rate in 20 years. The dollar is its weakest since 1971, a national embarrassment.

This is an economic environment that the Federal Reserve helped create. It fought a phantom deflation in 2002-2003 by cutting the federal funds rate to 1 percent and keeping it there for a year, blowing hot air into the credit and real estate bubbles. Now that those bubbles have burst in spectacular fashion, the Fed is trying to forestall or minimize a recession with more rate cuts.

In effect, the Fed is creating more dollar bills, and thus depreciating their value. This isn’t the sole cause of price increases. An ill-conceived ethanol program has driven up food prices, and global demand is bidding up the price of oil. But oil wouldn’t be at $100 a barrel if the dollar weren’t so weak. The Fed’s rate cuts benefit Wall Street by lowering the cost of borrowing and potentially homeowners with adjustable-rate mortgages, but at the cost of everyone else who wasn’t improvident in business dealings or home-buying.

Lower- and middle-income people

Rich Lowry

bear the brunt. An analysis by The Washington Post found that prices for staples like groceries, gasoline and health care have risen 9.2 percent since 2006. According to its calculation, this price increase cost a middle-class family an extra $972 annually. Merrill Lynch says a greater proportion of consumers’ disposable income went to paying for such staples - 36 percent -- than at any time since the figure was first tracked in 1960.

The Fed argues that inflation will decline as the economy slows down. But the economy has already been slowing, and inflation has continued to increase. The price of commodities took a step downward only after the Fed didn’t cut rates as much as expected last month, and two members of the Fed’s Open Market Committee, worried about inflation, balked at even that cut. The Fed is going to have to stop cutting rates, even if Wall Street and Washington politicians yelp in protest.

We’re unlikely to experience anything like the double-digit inflation of the 1970s. Among other things, workers don’t have the kind of automatic cost-of-living increases that sent wages and prices in an ever-upward spiral back then. But the Fed shouldn’t abandon price stability in the cause of an hour-by-hour attempt to avoid the inevitable distress of working through the excesses of recent years.

The market is a savage taskmaster. It’s pay me now, or pay me more later -- when inflation would make it all the more painful.

Bush-Paulson plan to prevent fiscal disasters lacks regulation control; What about a Clinton-Obama ticket?

OPENING COMMENTARY

The “free market” and “free enterprise” systems are both understood and appreciated. However, we should be aware that in our nation’s intricate-interconnected economic system, nothing is “free” unless regulated to protect all citizens - at all levels.

Failure to do so, has historically required a taxpayer “rescue” and those “costly bail-outs” effectively destroy the “free” part of any system!

The Bush administration finally created a scheme they hope will prevent future financial disasters - like the one we are going through today. It’s called the Paulson Plan (named after Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson, who incidentally is a former Wall Street bigwig) and is designed to make needed “oversight” reforms in our financial system.

Unfortunately, the plan fails to correct the lack of fiscally related federal regulations that forced our economy into its current “stagnated” recession, and has left the nation’s top economists, both in and out of government, dumbfounded and confused.

This would have been a perfect opportunity for Bush to eschew his party’s unworkable “laissez faire” attitude towards the free-wheeling world of investment banking, mortgage lending and Wall Street speculation and manipulating.

Those “players” have been purposely allowed to operate without federal oversight or regulation, and that coupled with greed and questionable methods, produced the inevitable financial catastrophe.

Instead Bush-Paulson created a “half-baked” program that is nothing more than cosmetic “flow-chart-shufflings” that will (at best) perform only information collecting services, while failing to provide the essential regulation-oversight so desperately needed.

In addition, a careful examination of the Bush-Paulson plan uncovers the “paw prints” of Wall Street and the investment banking society - all over it. Those pirates enjoy the unregulated world of finance and want to keep it that way. What they fear most is having to pay for the damage they do - with their own money.

HOPE FORTHCOMING?

There “is” thankfully light at the end of this mish-mashed tunnel of bad financial-reform-planning by the Administration - namely that neither Bush, Paulson nor the related Bush accomplices will be in office next year when Congress finally (and hopefully) gets around to passing workable statutes to regulate the operating elements within our financial-economic system.

WHY REGULATIONS ARE NEEDED

There’s a guiding principal in economics, that’s rarely (if ever) followed by elected officials with conservative proclivities. It necessitates regulating state-national financial operations and institutions including banks of all types; Insurance companies and particularly their investment divisions; Investment firms (yes, even Wall Street); plus the various types of hedge, commodity and derivative marketeers.

Reason for enacting these regulations, is that failure to do so, eventually produces the dreaded “Domino Factor.” This disaster occurs because of the interlocking labyrinth within our economic system, wherein one failed financial entity drags down a second, and third, and often even more investor groups. With the strong possibility of having the entire system collapse.

Off the Record by Ken Clapp

Therefore - the logical course to take, based on past history and the current financial situation, is to put in place: (a) Firm regulations dealing with all levels of our financial system; (b) “Untouchable” regulators; Absolute protection of consumers in banking and investing; (c) A proper reserve of cash and certified assets (permanently available) in all financial and investment institutions to prevent insolvency.

Without these types of regulations - we’ll have financial market upheavals time and again - because you can’t legislate greed, so you have to regulate those who deal with the nation’s money at every level - investing, saving, and lending.

CLINTON-OBAMA TICKET?

Have you been following the asinine guff being promoted by Repubs about the Clinton-Obama primary slug-fest? Those pontifical right-wingers are convinced (like the guy whistling past the graveyard) that Democrats will cause so many internecine problems during the debilitating primary season - that they’ll have no energy, money, or time left to defeat Republican standard bearer John McCain.

That’s a lot of you-know-what! Democrats always enjoy a good political donnybrook and this year, with two historic candidates - an African American and a woman, running for the highest office in the land, the stakes are higher and the race more exciting.

So, despite the “nabobs of negativism” one of these two Democrats will be ready to actively take on McCain when the time comes. Some even believe they’ll both be on the ballot.

QUIT - NEVER!!!

A few of the Democratic Party hardliners (including the flaky Howard Dean), have opined that perhaps it would be best if Clinton would drop out, endorse Obama, and go back to just representing the Big Apple. Hillary’s response: “Never!”

What’s more likely to happen, in the weeks ahead, is the super-delegates will cold-bloodedly select the candidate who they think can best beat McCain, and sic him or her on a hapless Republican Party that has to defend the Bush administration that’s close to having the lowest poll numbers in history; a worsening economy; and an irresolute war. And worst of all, nothing new to energize weary GOPers.

CLINTON-OBAMA TICKET?

Regardless of all the plotting - don’t overlook the “dream-team” that a few mover-shaker-lefties are promoting - to convince Clinton and Obama to join forces. And if that were to happen, Republicans can turn out the lights - because the party would be over!

Talk about a national landslide victory that would put Democrats in power from the White House to Congress and probably in many State Legislatures - perhaps even here in Texas!

Something to think about - even if only in the dreamy world of “What-Ifs!”

That’s -30-

A moral calling

By: CONGRESSMAN JOHN R. CARTER

What do a rock star and the Congressman from Central Texas have in common? Trust me, I was asking myself that same question on my way to meet with Bono, lead singer of the rock group U2 and founder of the One Campaign, established to eliminate poverty and global disease. Our common ground wasn't that hard to find. We both agree that America is a blessed nation, and we believe it is our moral obligation to help those who cannot help themselves.

During the State of the Union address, President Bush called on Congress to reauthorize the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) and double our historic commitment with an additional $30 billion over the next five years.

The statistics of the HIV/AIDS crisis are truly alarming. This pandemic kills an estimated six million people every year. According to the Joint United Nations program on HIV/AIDS, an estimated 33.2 million people were living with HIV/AIDS in 2007. Of these, more than two million were children and some 330,000 of the 2.1 million who died in 2007 were under the age of 15. Nearly 90 percent of all children infected with HIV reside in sub-Saharan Africa, which is home to 2.2 million of the estimated 2.5 million children living with HIV worldwide. Each day in 2007, approximately 1,000 children worldwide became newly infected with HIV, due in large part to little access to treatment that prevents the transmission of HIV from mother to child.

Equally startling, if current rates of infection continue to rise, we could begin to see new epicenters for the disease arise out of India, China and Eastern Europe with numbers that could surpass Africa in just a few years.

The HIV/AIDS pandemic poses a real threat to our national security. If not addressed, this plague will continue to weaken nations throughout the third world, crippling countries and economies, leaving them vulnerable to extreme violence.

This is truly a global crisis and because the United States can provide timely assistance, I believe we have a moral responsibility to do so.

This week Congress voted to authorize billions of dollars for the president's global AIDS initiative, a program started in 2003 that has been successful for millions around the world suffering from AIDS or are at risk of contacting the HIV virus. Originally, I had concerns about another foreign aid program, but after seeing these funds produce such large success, I knew they were worthwhile.

According to the Congressional Research Service, through September 30, 2007, the president's global AIDS initiative has supported anti-retroviral treatment for approximately 1.4 million people; prevention of mother-to-child HIV transmission services for women during more than 10 million pregnancies and an estimated 152,000 infant infections; care for nearly 6.7 million people, including more than 2.7 million orphans and children; and counseling and testing services for over 30 million people.

Not only does this plan address the crisis by providing medicine and health benefits to those infected, but also addresses the crisis at its core. The bill passed by Congress is consistent with our values and will maintain a continued focus on HIV/AIDS treatment, care and prevention goals, including meaningful funding resources for evidence-based programs that teach abstinence. We cannot send billions of dollars to Africa without initiating programs that will help prevent the transmission of this disease by changing behavior.

I believe that it is possible to be both fiscally responsible and be obedient to our moral calling. History is filled with great moments of mankind's enduring compassion to help those in need. Now it is Congress' turn to put politics aside and do something truly great to help those humans who desperately need America to step in and help them survive.

Everyone hates property taxes

Your Voice

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

I received my property tax assessment for 2008 and noticed that it included an assessment for a Village of Salado tax. Several things about that were of concern to me:

1. I understood that the tax, if enacted, would begin with the 2009 assessment. Why is a 2008 tax shown?

2. The appraisal district obviously assumes that the tax has already been enacted and finalized. Do they know something that we don't know?

3. The assessment rate was set at $0.25 per $100 valuation which is the maximum allowed. We were also recently told that the rate would be considered as a separate matter from the vote to assess a village tax.

The issue of whether or not to enact a village tax is a matter of interest and importance to all property owners of Salado. The fact that the village government has the authority and power to implement such a tax without a mandate from the people is of concern to me. Even if the law does allow, I would expect the village fathers to be sensitive to the will of the people and put this important matter on a ballot for the citizens to decide. After all, passage of such a law would require all property owners to pay up to $1000+ per year in additional taxes.

I would look forward to hearing the arguments for and against imposing an ad valorem tax. Such a tax may, indeed, be needed to maintain basic services in the village but that has not yet been proven. Before taking such a drastic move, a public debate on the issues would clarify and justify the need.

Most folks I have spoken to are surprised to learn that they can be taxed without having an opportunity to vote the issue. Why it seems almost un-American. Put the issue on the ballot please. Maurice Carson

To the Editor of the Salado Village Voice and my habituated readers:

Tim Fleischer says he'll cut me off after this third letter urging readers to vote "No Property Tax." Homeowners, if you've received your 2008 Notice of Appraised Value, and you haven't yet noted the bottom item, "Village of Salado," you may discover as I did that the tax you'll pay this year has been upped from zero to a figure like mine, almost $1,000, anticipating the new property tax. When we change status as a village – if the vote goes through this fall and if the Board of Aldermen ups the ante by moving from B to A status as a city – my future tax may rise to about $5,000. This is not an idle threat; it's an eventuality which is controlled by the Board without any taxpayer referendum required.

If you would like for me to contact you on an informal basis about my views (not to be represented as Salado Village Voice views or Board of Aldermen committee views), don't call me. Allow ME to contact you, so that your messages won't crowd my recording machine at home. Just list your name, email address, phone number (no more than that - no home address) and send it to me at 13carver@gmail.com.

And when the subject comes up in discussions with friends, see if you can find something positive to say about the tax you'll be paying at the end of this very year.

My friends Rick Ashe and Suzi Epps, retiring from the Board after serving fearlessly for the past few years, wrote a letter in last week's Salado Village Voice but it didn't convince me Salado needs more than is being generated now. Sincerely, Ramon Carver

Dear Editor,

I have come to realize that once elected to public office at any level, one becomes very smart while the electorate become dumb or dumber and unable to protect themselves from any and everything especially taxes and more taxes.

In 2000 the one thing the citizens of Salado were interested in was protection from Belton. We already had one of the best, if not the best, fire departments in this part of Texas and it was supported and sustained by volunteers. We already had, and continue to have, a superior water system owned and supported by the people it serves. Our streets and roads were maintained by Bell County, and we were very well protected by the Bell County Sheriff's department, all paid for through our county and road tax.

Of these main protections, most residents need and want, the first two continue to be provided in the same way as before incorporation. For police protection and road and street maintenance, we now pay double, because our county and road tax have not been reduced.

I understand that to stand alone, there are additional expenses, but I have difficulty understanding why our Council wants to make Salado like a big city, when all we want are the essentials, as we had them, when we decided to make Salado our home, either by birth or by adoption, as long as we are protected from Belton. The Village could do what I feel most of us want, without imposing a property tax, especially of the amount proposed. Jack Hardin

Payday loans are legalized usury

Jim Hightower

The Bible tells us that Jesus drove the moneychangers out of the temple (for charging less, by the way, than we're now assessed on our Visa and Mastercard bills).

Credit card rates of 20 percent or so are ridiculous - but what should we call an interest rate of 400 percent? "Rip-off" is too nice of a word. "Gouging" fits, but even it can't convey the raw greed embodied in such a usurious rate for the use of money. Charging 400 percent should be called "criminal," but lobbyists for the quick-cash industry have monkeywrenched state usury laws to make such loan-sharking legal in 40 states.

Worse, this legalized theft targets vulnerable, very-low-wage working people - those living paycheck to paycheck who can least afford to have their pockets picked. They typically are given a loan of $300, minus an upfront fee of about $50. Two weeks later, the full $300 is due. Often, they can't pay, so they take out another high-interest loan and are sucked even deeper into this lending whirlpool.

These "trapped borrowers" have become a lucrative profit center for the lenders - who by the way, are not fly-by-night, back-alley operators, but well-manicured executives with a gloss of corporate respectability. These quick-cash purveyors have about 24,000 flashy storefronts across the country, making them even more ubiquitous than Starbucks. They rack up $40 billion a year in revenues, maintain PR firms to perfume their practices, create political funds to grease necessary skids, and deploy armies of lobbyists to legalize their usury.

The good news is that states are beginning to rein in these payday hucksters by capping their interest rates at a merely outrageous level of 36 percent. MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Follow a withdrawal strategy that won't leave you empty

When you're working, you probably focus on how much you're putting in to your investment portfolio. But when you retire, how much you take out will be a matter of considerable interest. And that's why you have to prepare the proper withdrawal strategies.

Specifically, once you retire, you'll need to decide what percentage of your investment portfolio you can withdraw each year without running out of money. How much can you take out annually?

There's no one right answer for everyone. However, when you're considering a suitable withdrawal rate, you'll need to consider a few different factors - one of which is your age at retirement. Given today's longer life expectancies, you could easily be around - and incurring a wide variety of expenses - when you are 90 or older. Consequently, the younger you are when you retire,

Financial Focus

by Allen Mantanona

the lower your annual withdrawal rate should be.

But, when determining your ideal withdrawal rate, it isn't just the sheer number of years that you need to consider - it's also what's happening to your purchasing power during those years. Even with a relatively mild annual inflation rate of 3 percent, it would take just 25 years for the cost of living to essentially double. So, if you need, say, $75,000 per year to cover your expenses when you retire, you will need $150,000 per year in 25 years. If we go through a period in which inflation rises significantly, you might have to scale back your annual withdrawals or adjust your investment portfolio to provide more opportunities for growth.

And, speaking of your investment mix, it's also a key factor in determining your annual withdrawal rate. If you own mostly fixed-rate investments, such as bonds and certificates of deposit (CDs), you will probably have to take smaller withdrawals each year than you would if your portfolio contained a greater percentage of stocks. That's because stocks, over time, have more growth potential than other types of investments - and you will unquestionably need this growth to combat the two threats to your retirement income described above: longevity and inflation. (Of course, stocks also carry the risk of losing some, or all, of your principal, but if you invest in an array of quality stocks and hold them for the long term, it doesn't guarantee a profit or protect against loss but you may be able to help reduce the effects of price volatility.)

Another factor behind your annual withdrawal rate is the amount of income you can expect from other sources. If you open a small business or do some consulting, you may be able to withdraw less from your investment portfolio than if you had no earned income during your retirement years. You also may be able to make lower annual withdrawals if you've built up a sizable pension or 401(k), supplemented by your monthly Social Security checks.

Your financial advisor can help you develop a withdrawal strategy that is suitable for your individual needs and that can counter the effects of inflation, longevity and market volatility. By making the right moves at the right time, you can go a long way working toward the retirement lifestyle you've envisioned.

Knowledge is power!

Buying and Selling

By Ryan Hodge

You know that real estate agents help you to move. Did you know that agents can also help you stay where you are? This has become quite an issue in light of the recent rise in loan defaults. Real estate agents provide critical information and a link between lenders and buyers.

Subprime loans, in and of themselves, are not bad. They provide financing for substantial numbers of people who cannot otherwise qualify under standard lending practices. However, buyers must be informed and realistic about what terms they can actually afford to accept.

No one - not banks, not agents, not homeowners - sees foreclosure as an acceptable option. It hurts everyone, including the communities where vacancies lead to declining prices. This is where a trusted local real estate professional can provide assistance.

Real estate agents are advocates for smart lending practices, and they stay in touch with local lenders. Agents also work with state and local governments, as well as local non-profit organizations that can help homeowners facing trouble meeting their mortgage payments.

Perhaps most importantly, realty professionals work closely with buyers to educate them about resources and options. This helps homeowners and prospective buyers keep their homes and build their equity. The key to it all is education and reason, and a strong desire to preserve the quality of our lives and our communities.

Violinist Braaten and cellist Baldwin featured in UMHB Artist series

Violinist Sonja Braaten and cellist Martha Baldwin of the world-renowned Cleveland Orchestra will be featured at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor Hillman Artist Series, April 10. The College of Visual and Performing Arts will conclude its celebrated 2007/08 Hillman Visiting Artist season by featuring works by Beethoven, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky. This program will take place 7:30 p.m. April 10, at Hughes Recital Hall on the UMHB campus.

The performance opens with Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata, a piece that remains infamous for its wildly demanding violin part. This three-movement composition was named for violinist Rodolphe Kreutzer, who was deemed one of the finest players of Beethoven's day. However, Kreutzer never performed the piece and it's rumored that even he considered it unplayable. Despite the "Kreutzer" Sonata's reputation, Cleveland Orchestra violinist Sonja Braaten welcomes this opportunity to tackle all that Beethoven's complex work has to offer.

As the evenings' program progresses, the emotional volatility that defines Beethoven's masterpiece will give way to Ravel's rich textures and poignant melodies. While the mood may seem to lighten, the demands on the musicians will only intensify. The subtle beauty that gives Ravel's music its distinct flavor is deceptively difficult to master. The delicate interplay between the cello (performed by Cleveland Orchestra cellist Martha Baldwin) and violin is extremely exposed, revealing even the slightest flaws.

To conclude this marathon of musical pyrotechnics, the ensemble will perform Tchaikovsky's Trio in A minor, Op. 50 subtitled In Memory of a Great Artist. Written to commemorate the death of pianist and composer Nikolai Rubinstein, this two movement work immortalizes the grief Tchaikovsky felt after losing his dear friend. The piece, especially the extended second movement, has long been considered the most challenging music Tchaikovsky ever wrote for piano. It demands almost superhuman skill from the player, barely relenting in its ferocity.

Forget any preconceived notions about chamber music—this performance is as far from dainty as it gets. Audiences will witness world-class musicians "show-off" their unparalleled talents in some of the most challenging chamber music ever composed.

All performances in the Hillman Visiting Artist Series are free and open to the public. For more information please call the College of Visual and Performing Arts at 254-

Jazz brings water to Malawi

The Great American Songbook will be presented April 14 by David Stephens and Jazz Ensemble. Proceeds from the concert will fund building water wells in Malawi. The doors to The Celebration Center at Old Salado Springs on Royal Street will open at 6 p.m. for viewing the silent auction items then the Jazz music and dancing will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets to the event hosted by St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Belton and St. Joseph's Chapel, Salado are $25 with the proceeds going to support the Malawi Well Water Project. Tickets may be purchased at St. Luke's Church office on Beal Street in Belton and at Fletcher's Books and Antiques on Main Street, Salado. The Malawi Well Water Project works to provide the well and water facilities which are then maintained by the Anglican Diocese of Southern Malawi and the people of Mindanti. The shortage of safe drinking water has devastated the Malawi economy as communities struggle to cope with the many health issues associated with waterborne disease. This marks the third year that St. Luke's and St. Joseph's have sponsored the project with a concert.

Salado now 7-1 in district Rogers hands Eagles loss

Last Tuesday the Salado Eagle Baseball team traveled to Rogers. They returned home with their first district loss.

The local Eagles seemingly left their bats at home in a 3-2 loss to Rogers. This gives Salado a 7-1 district record.

Salado fell behind 3-0 after three innings but rallied in the top of the fourth. Kevin Jackson led off the inning with a single. Garret Ward put down a bunt to sacrifice him to second. After the second out was recorded, Tyler Wright doubled down the third base line to drive in Jackson. Wright scored to bring the Eagles within one (3-2) on a single fly by Sam VanHoozer.

The Eagles collected only six hits on the night, one of their lowest totals of the year.

VanHoozer was saddled with his first loss of the season on the mound for the Eagles. He pitched the complete game. VanHoozer gave up six hits and struck out eleven.

On Friday the Eagles took on Lago Vista. Salado fell behind again 2-0 in the top of the third inning. But this time the Eagles used a big inning to take control of the game.

Wright started the inning by reaching on an error. Seth Collins followed with a double. After a strikeout, Matt Fritsch walked to load the bases. Justin Schiller then delivered a single that drove home Wright and Collins to tie the game. Jackson singled to reload the bases.

Ward gave the Eagles the lead with a single. Justin Berumen was then hit with a pitch to give Salado a 4-2 lead. Blake Heller followed with a grand slam homerun far over the left centerfield fence for an 8-2 lead.

Lago Vista came back with three runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth. This closed the score at 8-7.

The Eagles pulled away again with three runs in the bottom of the sixth. Schiller and Ward both had rbi's in the inning.

Collins, Schiller, and Jackson all had two hits on the night. Jackson was also the winning pitcher of the game. He went four and one third innings. He allowed seven hits and struck out six.

Matt Fritsch relieved Jackson and pitched on and two third innings. He gave up two earned runs and struck out three. Blake Heller came in the seventh and slammed the door closed. Heller struck out three in his inning of work.

The victory gave the Eagles a 17-4 season and 8-1 district record. Salado has a two game lead with five games to play.

Softball team falls to 6-3 after Lago Vista loss

Salado Lady Eagles softball team fell to 6-3 in district play and 17-6 on the year after losing 3-1 to Lago Vista at home April 4. The girls beat Lago Vista in the first round of district play.

Despite having seven hits, including two doubles, the Lady Eagles were only able to score one run. The girls made seven strikeouts and left five runners on base.

The girls went three-and-out in the first inning before Ciera Pipes registered the first hit for Salado with two outs in the second inning. She reached second by stealing before the third out was thrown at first base.

The girls went three-and-out the next two innings. Mindi Dunnahoo reached first base to lead off the fifth inning, but got caught in a double play.

Jordan Svadlenak had a double to start out the sixth inning, but was stranded at third base. Lindsey Coffee, who hit a double with one out was stranded at second base.

Danielle Hazzard scored the single run of the game for Salado, starting out the seventh inning with a single. She advanced to second on Mindi Dunnahoo's sacrifice hit and Ciera Pipes hit a single to bring her home.

Pipes was stranded at third base and Svadlenak, who hit a single, was stranded at first base to end the game.

Svadlenak was two-for-two on the night. Pipes was two-of-four with an RBI.

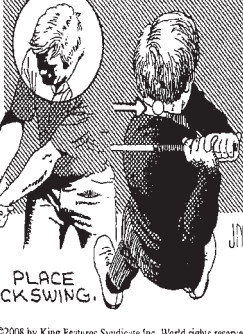

Also getting hits for the Lady Eagles were M. Dunnahoo, one-for-three; Coffee, one-for-four, Hazzard, one-for-three with a run scored,

The Lady Eagles are still in the hunt for the playoffs and will face Florence on the road April 11 before facing Rosebud-Lott here at home April 15 and Academy on the road April 18.

The annual Spring Fling will be 6:30 p.m.- 9 p.m. at the Akins home at 1161 Mackie Drive. The Spring Fling is a great time for newcomers to Mill Creek to meet their neighbors and other residents of the community. It is also a time for old-timers in the community to gather and catch up with each other.

Reservations are due by April 14 and can be done via email to Cathy Sands at lsands@vvm.com, or to Susan Terry at sterry@gmail.com.

Tickets are $20 per person for members of the MCCA and $25 per person for non-members.

Reservations can be sent with payment to MCCA, PO Box 562, Salado, TX 76571.

Salado ISD plans practice evacuation May 13

All public schools are required to conduct an off-site evacuation drill each school year. Salado ISD will be conducting this drill 1:30 p.m. May 13.

All students will load buses and will be transported a very short distance and then returned to campuses. All staff will be present on the buses. This drill will be carefully coordinated and supervised according to Supt. Battershell.

"We hope that we never have to experience such a real-life evacuation which could be caused by a gas spill on I35 or a rapidly moving wildfire. But we will know what to do if this ever occurs," said Robin Battershell, Supt.

Swim lessons sign-up is now at UMHB

Summer Swim Lesson 2008 registration is now underway at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor. The University will offer group and private swim lessons at the Barbara Chaney Natatorium in the Mayborn Campus Center during May, June, and July.

Swimming lessons are available for children and adults ages nine months and up. The UMHB swim program follows the Red Cross "Learn to Swim" levels, focusing on water safety skills and swimming fundamentals.

For more information on lessons or teaching positions, contact Laura Williams at 295-5431 or e-mail lwilliams@umhb.edu.

Author Philip Yancey once coined
the phrase in a book title: 'Church:
Why Bother?' As I understand it, the book featured a look at why being plugged into a church family is so important. We invite you to join us

Troy Kelley's "Up the Chisholm Trail" monument unveiled April 5

Troy Kelley's 17 foot monument unveiled at Bell County Museum

More than 100 people joined Salado sculptor Troy Kelley and the Bell County Museum Board of Directors in unveiling Kelley's "Up the Chisholm Trail" April 5 at the Museum on Belton's Main Street, including almost two dozen Saladoans.

The monument consists of 17 bronze panels that are approximately 16 X 24 inches. The panels wrap around a 17-foot column that stands in the museum's new courtyard entry. Each panel is one-of-a-kind and visually tells the story of the Chisholm Trail through Texas.

The first panel tells the story of the Chisholm Trail while each of the remaining 16 panels are dedicated to a 50-mile stretch of the Trail that made its way from South Texas to Abilene Kansas.

The final scene features longhorns being loaded into boxcars in Abilene, Kansas for the train ride to eastern markets.

"As a result of memorials made in memory of Mr. Elbert Aldrich with designation for the creation of the monument," Museum director Stephanie Turnham told the audience, "and other contributions to the project, the dream became a reality. We are very fortunate to have the community's support, so a portion of our fundraising monies have also gone into the piece as well."

The panels include a crossing at Salado Creek with Salado College in the background and a thunderstorm that turned into a stampede in Belton killing the cowboy Billy Northrup.

The monument is the 15th public sculpture by Kelley since his first bronze of Sirena was placed in Salado Creek. Kelley has nine public sculptures that have been placed in Salado.

Subterfuge Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

There are times when declarer is afraid to play a hand a certain way because it is likely to draw a road map that the defenders can exploit. But occasionally, declarer can divert the opposition from finding the winning defense by convincing them that a situation exists that actually does not.

For example, take this deal where West led the spade six against three notrump. South could count seven immediate winners -- two spades, four diamonds and a club -- plus the extra spade trick the opening lead had handed him. The only suit that could provide a ninth trick was clubs, and there was even the possibility of scoring an overtrick or two if the club finesse succeeded.

However, South was more concerned with what might happen if the club finesse lost. In that case, West, having noted his partner's discouraging play on the spade lead at trick one, might switch to a heart and thereby defeat the contract.

To deal with this possibility, South came up with a simple scheme designed to talk West out of shifting to a heart if he gained the lead with the king of clubs. On the opening lead, he played dummy's jack of spades, but, after East followed low, he won the trick with the king! The purpose of this unusual play was to plant the thought in West's mind that South had started with the doubleton A-K of spades.

Declarer next crossed to dummy's king of diamonds and tried the club finesse, losing to the king. Back came a second spade from West, who naturally thought South would have to take the trick with the ace. South's play was exposed when dummy's

Proper Exercise

LIFESTYLE AND WELLNESS

By KEVIN MCCAULEY

A major road-block for my clients that are trying to achieve results from working out is the issue of time. There just never seems to be enough of it. One of my major goals for all clients is to achieve a program that is conducive to their time availability.

The easiest way to meet this challenge is to develop exercise programs that can be accomplished in the home or the workplace and that can be achieved in as little room as possible. Let's take a look at what basic or bare-bones equipment will be needed to create a workout that can be accomplished in around twenty minutes.

Your Body: yes, you are correct, you could say the human body isn't a piece of equipment per se, but honestly, your own body gives you an amazing number of potential exercises with no equipment at all. Here is a short list of exercises that can be done with just your own body-weight:

- Body-Weight Squat
- Body-Weight Lunge
- Push-Up
- The Hover
- The Hand Walk
- The Inverted Hamstring Walk

Cost: None

Exercise Tubing: I like using exercise tubing because gravity and momentum, two variables that can lead to injury, do not come into play. There are varying levels of resistance depending on the size and strength of the band. To increase the number and quality of exercises purchase exercise tubing that has a door attachment. Here is a short list of exercises that can be done with exercise tubing:

- The Row
- Squat and Row
- The Lat-Fly
- The Triceps Press-Down
- The Biceps Curl
- The Lateral Raise

Cost: Under $10 (purchase the type that can be inserted into the door jam)

The "Fit" Or "Exercise" Ball: fit or exercise balls are incredibly versatile fitness tools. They can be used to work on balance, resistance, flexibility and strength training. Make sure you purchase a ball that is high quality and is the correct size for your height. A good quality ball will be puncture proof and can handle a good amount of weight. Here is a short list of exercises that can be done with a fit or exercise ball:

- Abdominal Crunch
- Dumbbell Chest Press
- Supine Roll
- Leg Curl
- Bear on the Ball

Cost: dependent on quality and size, $15 to $50 (take a good look at the "stay" ball/this ball will not roll as it has a couple pounds of sand in the bottom).

Depending upon your situation, you may want to purchase a small mat (under $20) to use on your floor.

With just your body, exercise tubing, and fit ball, you have enough components to keep your exercise program fresh. The final piece to this home gym would be a set of power blocks (highly efficient dumbbells). These range from weights of 3-24 pounds to 5-145 pounds. Power blocks may cost as little as $50 (3-24# Academy Sports) to as much as $500 (depending on the total weight), but they make your workout so versatile that you will never be in need of another dumb bell again, plus they save you all sorts of space.

So, if you are struggling with the "time factor", here is your list of "equipment" to get you started on the road to an improved well-being.

Genealogy classes set at Library

Can you believe that on April 1, we celebrated our fifth anniversary in this building? Both local people and casual drop-ins in Salado continue to walk in and remark what a beautiful library this is. We are very lucky to have such a facility in our village.

Last weekend our Back Yard Book Sale netted us $250 during the Wildflower Art Show. Thank you to all our “friends” who helped “hold down the barn” that weekend.

Also, thanks to all of you who posted your comments in support of our application for a “Hamburger Helper” grant for our library interior reorganization. We should know sometime in May if we are going to receive the grant money.

Coming up in April and May the library will present a Genealogy Series. In this day of genome mapping and DNA strings, there remains the old-fashioned ancestor hunt that has intrigued many of us for years. And today, with new technology, you can be on the trail of that elusive ancestor faster than you can say Uncle Bubba! Where did you come from? Who gave me that red hair? Do I have any famous (or infamous) ancestors? Could I be the descendant of a founder of Texas? There has long been a demand for more genealogy instruction here in the village and we will now offer three sessions for you. Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution will teach the classes. These ladies know what they are talking about. We recommend that you sign up for all three classes if you are a beginner.

April 26: Sue Eakin, member of Texas State DAR, will present the basics. “Want to Learn About Your Ancestry but Don’t Know Where To Start?”

May 10: Welba Dorsey, Vice-chairperson of Genealogy Records for the Texas State DAR will be the presenter on “Genealogy Records.”

May 24: Judy West Palmer, Registrar, Betty Martin Chapter DAR, will present “Genealogy Software and Websites: Truth or Consequences?”

It’s “all you ever wanted to know about your “kin-folks” but were afraid to ask. Please sign up at the library or call 947-9191 to register. Come on down and find out who you really are.

We have a few new movies right out of the theaters for you also.

“Atonement:” Based on the novel by Ian McEwan, a childhood lie irrevocably changes the lives of several people forever.

“Michael Clayton:” A dramatic thriller about a burned out the corporate lawyer who has built a career on cleaning up his client’s messes. A very interesting and disturbing film.

“The Kite Runner:”

Based on one of 2007’s biggest best sellers by Khaled Hosseini. Years after fleeing the Taliban and immigrating to the U.S., an Afghan man returns to his war-ravaged homeland to try and repay his debt to a childhood friend whose trust he betrayed.

“Strictly Ballroom:” This is an off-beat story of a championship ballroom dancer who breaks all the rules by choosing an ugly duckling for a partner.

“Elizabeth: The Golden Age:” The return of Cate Blanchett as the Virgin Queen focusing on the queen’s tempestuous relationship with Sir Walter Raleigh.

Spring break on Florida's west coast

by Tumbleweed
Smith

The white sand on Siesta Beach in Sarasota, Florida is like powder. It is always cool, even on the hottest days. When we were there in mid-March, about a million people were on the beach. I don't know how much fun they were having. The wind was howling at about 60 miles an hour. A combination of blowing sand and sea spray cast a fog over the area, and the Gulf water was cold. We stayed about five minutes. We saw license plates from just about every state in the union. I can hear the occupants saying, "We paid good money to get to a Florida beach for spring break and by gosh we're gonna enjoy it. Period."

This was our first trip to Sarasota and we were impressed. We went there to visit some new friends we met on a cruise to Russia last year. They love Sarasota and showed us around. The city is tremendously upscale and will soon have a Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and a Neiman-Marcus department store. It already has a Ritz Carlton and a Four Seasons. Several people who own second or third homes there fly in on their private jets and bring their personal chefs with them. Sarasota, with 30 golf courses, has as many wealthy residents as West Palm Beach, and the number is growing. Financial experts say the area between Naples and Tampa (with Sarasota roughly in the middle) is the sixth or seventh wealthiest corridor in the US.

When our friends picked us up at the Tampa airport, we went immediately to the Dali Museum in nearby St. Petersburg, which was exhibiting some of Salvador Dali's work in film. He was fiercely interested in using his painting techniques in movies. He collaborated with Walt Disney, Alfred Hitchcock and others. His three-minute dream sequence in Hitchcock's Spellbound was one of several Dali works being screened at the museum. The name of the exhibit was DALI AND FILM and the price of admission included a DALIWOOD t-shirt. We wore them and have the photos to prove it.

The house where we stayed had a lanai, a Hawaiian word for porch or balcony. Nearly every house we saw had one of these attached to it. It literally is a room with the walls and roof made of fine mesh screen. It is braced with slender steel girders, all painted white. It is a fabulous addition that makes a lot of sense. You can walk directly into the lanai from the house, whose sliding glass doors remain open during the day to take advantage of the breeze. We never used the air conditioner.

Sarasota is the home of John and Mabel Ringling, the circus couple. The Ringling estate has the Ringling mansion, theater and circus museum as well as the Ringling's dazzling collection of fine art. I couldn't believe that such a fortune could be made during a time when a ticket to a traveling tent circus cost a quarter.

We had a blast in Sarasota. You never know how the folks you meet on cruises are going to be when you meet them on their home territory. But Les and Marilyn are the same aboard ship or on land. We feel like we've known them for a long time and want to see them some more; in fact, we plan to go to Israel with them next year.
