Trustees will cut tax rate by 1.5 cents with proposal

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado Independent School District Trustees will conduct a Public Hearing on the proposed $10.9 million 2008-09 budget and the proposed $1.318 per $100 evaluation tax rate at 6 p.m. Aug. 25 at the Salado Civic Center.

The maintenance and operations expenditures of $10.9 million are approximately $880,000 more than the 2007-08 budget.

The largest increase in the budget is for plant operations, up 25 percent to $1.3 million from $1 million in 2007-08. This increase is due to fuel prices and the cost of operating the new Salado High School.

Other increases related to opening the new high school include school leadership, which increase six percent to $639,987 from last year's $536,548.

There are $778,753 in budget changes in the 2008-09 budget compared to 2007-08.

Those include the following additions:

- $35,000 for additional Spanish teacher.
- $22,150 for Instructional Contracted Services.
- $20,000 for Instructional supplies
- $22,911 for additional Librarian salary.

- $3,300 Library supplies
- $3,500 Library books
- $103,489 Campus Administration for additional Junior High principal, travel and supplies, data services and Registrar at the High School.

$9,034 Health services to replace aide with Licensed Vocational Nurse and added supplies for additional campus.

$26,500 Transportation supplies and fuel

$25,000 increase cost of buses and purchase one van.

$30,000 increase extra-duty pay for Coaches

$2,700 Contract service for Band and Speech/Debate

$8,270 Extracurricular supplies

$5,000 Athletic inventory and equipment

$17,500 Band equipment

$6,266 Extracurricular fees/dues and travel

$1,500 Cheerleader supplies/camps

$10,000 Superintendent's salary

$4,000 Central Administration data processing software

$1,500 Travel for superintendent, business, board

$1,000 Board Legal Liability Insurance

$1,750 Additional fee to inventory fixed assets

$170,501 Additional maintenance (two) and

Custodial staff (four) including workers comp, group health insurance and benefits

$30,000 Contracted service to monitor waste water treatment plant

$117,628 Utilities for new high school campus

$14,480 Building and custodial supplies

$10,000 Mower

$75,774 Food Service additional staff and supplies.

The proposed budget will spend down the general fund balance by $427,153, the first time that the school district has budgeted a decrease in the fund balance. However, for the first time in nine years the district will dip into its fund balance.

In the 2007-08 budget, the school predicted adding $326,733 to the fund balance of $3 million.

However, because of a shortfall in state funding of $367,785 coupled with other unbudgeted expenses of $119,561, the district will dip into the fund balance for $160,613, lowering it to a projected fund balance of $2.9 million to start the 2008-09 school year.

The proposed budget for 2008-09 will lower the fund balance by $427,153. The budget is based on no

You know it's August when young men across Texas brave the heat for two-a-day practices, readying themselves for the upcoming fall football season. New sales tax rebates jump by double digits for village, library

Village of Salado reversed a two-month skid when sales tax rebates jumped by 14 percent in August. The August 8 check of $37,111.49 was 14 percent more than last August's payment of $32,553.63.

For the year, the Village has received $238,353.22 for the one-cent sales tax it levies, which is almost five percent more than the $227,791.80 received through August 2007.

The August sales tax rebates are for sales taxes collected in June and reported to the Comptroller in July.

The Salado Public Library District, which levies a half-cent sales tax, saw a remarkable jump of 26 percent in August. The $29,749.49 paid to the Library District outpaced last August's payment of $23,561.98. For the year, the Library District is running about six percent ahead, having received $175,150 compared to $164,925.58 through August 2007.

The Bell County rebate was $1.3 million, compared to $1.2 million last August, an increase of almost 10 percent. For the year, the County is almost six percent ahead of 2007: $9.2 million through August 2008 compared to $8.7 million through August 2007. The local and county tax rebates outpace the increase seen across the state.

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs said Aug. 8 the state collected $1.8 billion in sales tax revenue in July, up 10.4 percent compared to one year ago.

"Through July, fiscal 2008 state sales tax collections are up 6.5 percent," Combs said. "The Texas economy remains strong; however, we continue to monitor the slower growth seen nationally."

Combs sent $583.4

Amended budget not matching anticipated expenses

By Tim Fleischer

Salado aldermen amended the current year budget Aug. 7 to spend down the fund balance to $108,782; meanwhile, the Village will propose a budget for 2008-09 with a beginning fund balance of $174,700.

The ending fund balance is not the only discrepancy between the Amended Budget for 2007-08 and the anticipated expenditures and revenues for 2007-08.

On the revenue side, for example, the amended budget shows $347,000 in tax receipts from sales tax and mixed beverage taxes, while the anticipated revenues for the year is $355,585 (based on proposed budget draft G).

Another notable difference in the revenue stream of the amended budget and the anticipated revenues is in the municipal court, which is $14,000 in the amended budget and $22,848 in anticipated revenues for the village.

Total income for the Village under the Amended Budget is $587,800; the anticipated total income is almost $12,000 more: $599,355.

Aldermen approved a budget amendment Aug.

7 that will have a total of $693,046 in expenses and $587,800 in revenues.

Aldermen voted unanimously Aug. 7 for the 2007-08 Budget Amendment ordinance which states that the budget Amendment is necessary "in order to make the current adopted budget reflect more accurate ex-pensitures."

However, the Amended Budget and the anticipated actual costs and revenues for 2007-08 are quite different: $12,000 different in revenue and $50,000 different in expenditures.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

McCain should take a page from Hillary

Politically, John McCain should be a candidate for involuntary committal -- he's a danger to himself.

If McCain is going to have a chance, he needs to run an un-McCain-like campaign, more negative than he'd prefer, more focused on domestic policy and less freewheeling: Think of a Republican Hillary Clinton circa this year's Ohio and Pennsylvania primaries.

McCain surely would be more comfortable running a race emphasizing character, national security and a few pet causes such as earmarks. But he has to leave his comfort zone -- something he may resist because he labors under an outdated self-image.

McCain often seems to think of himself as he was back in 2000 during the glory days of the "Straight Talk Express": a political phenomenon who was the fresh face on the national scene, beloved of the press. A conspiracy of circumstances -- most important, the passage of time -- has seen all his former star qualities (and then some) assumed by Barack Obama.

A McCain comeback has to begin in a deconstruction of Obama as too risky to be president, executed in a traditional, block-and-tackle campaign (of the sort McCain has never yet been able to run). The playbook is partly provided by Hillary Clinton, who found her voice in lunch-bucket appeals to working-class white and Hispanic voters.

She did not, of course, defeat Obama, but McCain ought to be encouraged by how close she came. She too was a plodding speaker, drew much smaller crowds than Obama and was outspent and out-organized.

For a contemporary Democrat, Hillary ran a center-right campaign; she talked of blowing Iran to smithereens, downed shots of Crown Royal and appealed frankly to blue-collar whites. These mostly substanceless gestures conveyed a sense of toughness that endeared Hillary to her working-class voters and highlighted a vulnerability of the polished but aloof Obama.

McCain has a higher natural toughness quotient than Hillary. But he has never spoken persuasively to economic concerns, which -- for all the focus on the Middle East -- will predominate this year. McCain's campaign needs a unifying theme, and one less abstract than "country first." Here again, he should take a page from Hillary, offering a conservative version of her occasional theme of a "fighter for you." In particular, he should be fighting for middle-class Americans against ineffectual government and tax-and-spend liberalism.

McCain has to give voice to the anger and frustration of the American public. He has to complain that Washington is broken and argue that both parties have let voters down. In 2000, he was the feisty -- even angry -- crusader against Washington and the status quo. He needs to find that old populist mojo again.

The fighter theme would tap into the public mood of disenchantment with Washington and politics. It would suit McCain, who is at his best when expressing an outraged irascibility. And it would communicate a certain vigor, perhaps mitigating concerns about his age.

But it must be harnessed in a tight, hard-hitting campaign uncharacteristic of McCain. This year, simply letting McCain be McCain is a formula for failure.

Internet stats supporting Bush-Iraq investigated and found to be "false"

Several of this column's more subjective readers handed us an e-mailed message they'd secured from the internet that endeavored to prove (statistically) that more members of this country's armed forces had died during President Bill Clinton's term, where there were no wars going on; than during President Bush's term (thus far) with wars underway in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The three page document claimed to use "official" military death statistics to prove the "media was politically biased and blinding readers with hatred towards Bush and the Iraqi war."

Statistics in the (e-mailed) internet missive, listed the total number of active duty armed forces deaths from hostile action (wars and terrorist attacks), accidents, homicides, illness and suicides, from 1980 through 2007.

The "document" reported the number of military deaths during Clinton's two terms (1993-2000) at 14,107; and in the George W. Bush years (2001-2007)- 7,932. Numbers, the internet critic asserted, that have never been reported by the media.

MEDIA VILIFIED

The e-mail creator declared that "his" (or her) numbers indicate many members of the "Liberal Media, and our Politicians, pick and choose the information they support." There's also a secondary grievance that suggests those who promote such false information are following an agenda "from the most powerful (Democrat) family of the decade." We presume the assertion refers to the Clinton family, although the author does not offer names nor develop this bizarre claim.

GENTLY CHALLENGED

The internet data given to us was accompanied by a "gentle challenge" that we wouldn't print the numbers. We're aware that many of our readers peruse "Off The Record" just to see how far we've strayed from the "straight and narrow super-conservative line, to which many of our local Tories subscribe."

We suspect they also hold a feeling of scorn for all "liberal" Demos and their coalition of "hand-out" seekers, dopey environmentalists and others of questionable antecedents.

So with fearless abandon - we picked up the challenge and began an investigative review of the statistical information produced by the unhappy decrier.

FIRST REFERENCE FLAWED

The first reference, associated with the data in the internet document was checked, and could not be found on the Web. However, with the help of a computer wonk at the Salado Village Voice, a link to the ultra conservative Federation of American Scientists (FAS) popped up, but produced nothing.

We then turned to an investigative outfit called "Snopes.com" that "examines" internet stuff for accuracy. They termed the original accusatory assault as false - but we needed something more objective.

It was only after re-examining the original internet document that we uncovered a brief closing note that the (death) "statistics are published by the Congressional Research Service" That looked like a positive lead but was accompanied by another faulty E-mail address.

GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT REFUTES CLAIM

We finally hit pay-dirt when we went to an internet directory and typed in "Congressional Research

Off the Record by Ken Clapp

Service" and there it was: an office within the Congress that provides data for members, on a wide variety of government activities.

Inside the May 14, 2008 CRS report, from the Department of Defense, we found the relevant sections listing worldwide Active Duty military deaths from 1980 through 2006, (Table 4, Page 7) plus a November 22, 2007 update (Table 5, Page 8).

With the Congressional Research Service report in hand, we compared armed forces casualty numbers from DOD's Manpower Data Center's analysis division, against the original internet (e-mailed) document, that had skewered the media with "trumped-up" statements concerning military deaths during the Clinton and Bush years.

NUMBERS FALSE

And when that review was completed, it was clear the charges against Clinton were "false" and oddly enough - proven false, by the very "data tables" the disparager claims to have used, in his accusation.

The following compares the initial internet document figures with Department of Defense numbers for the same periods of time:

Clinton years:

Internet numbers 14,107 deaths

DOD numbers 7,400 deaths

Bush years:

Internet numbers 7,033 deaths

DOD numbers 8,792 deaths

The Bush total includes his first six years and two wars. We omitted 2007 since that year was not part of the DOD listings (yet were strangely part of the original internet message). Clinton's totals are for eight years and no wars.

With the final result being that both the Bush and Clinton numbers, in the first internet E-mail document, had been falsified so as to favor the current President.

THE BIG QUESTION

The big question of course is why use phony numbers that can be so easily disproved? We could offer guesswork answers, but then we'd be playing the "mongers" game and we've tried to avoid that litterbox.

The reason we expended so much time and space on this week's "different" sort of political commentary is because all of us are bombarded daily with internet info, much of which is pure partisan humbug.

Consequently, we would urge everyone to avoid blindly accepting print or electronic media news, and be particularly cautious about internet info-transmissions, especially during today's highly charged political skirmishings.

* * * *

AND FINALLY.....

Last week's report on the flat tax would have been impossible to prepare without help from Carmen Fenton, Communications Director for Salado's Congressman John Carter (R-Round Rock). She offices in Washington and is a research pro.

Incidentally, the almost insurmountable problem about finding out how much the government spends annually is that no one in Washington knows how to unearth the totals, or even come close. Not the Congressional Budget Office, nor Members of Congress, and least of all the White House.

What a way to run a railroad. No wonder we're drowning in debt, with special assistance from guys, like Alaska's Senator Ted Stevens, who have stolen us blind.

Creek safety and village finances heated topics

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

All this current Salado Creek “spring” controversy got me to reflecting on a very sad story once more. Perhaps someone in the area will read your column and be able to verify its happening.

Almost 20 years ago a family group from Arkansas stopped by our store and an older lady asked directions to “Belton’s park by the creek”. At the time, I thought only of Yettie Polk Park; however, in retrospect, I have often wondered if she might have been referencing Confederate Park, which at the time of her inquiry was the rodeo grounds. (This is now the site of Belton’s “Park and Ride”.)

The matriarch appeared to be at least 80 years old when she stopped in, and for some reason she must have felt it necessary to tell me why she inquired about the park’s location. Hers was a poignant story, and it was obvious that it still saddened her:

“When I was a child, my mother became ill, and shortly after the turn of the century (20th century), my parent’s, myself, and my siblings were traveling by wagon from our home in South Texas toward Arkansas, from where my parents had originally migrated. On the way, we camped beside the creek at the Belton Park so that my mother could lie down in the wagon and rest.

My two younger brothers gathered some bread scraps saying they wanted to feed the ‘swans’ swimming in the creek. After a while, my parents called for the boys, and there was no answer. A frantic hunt revealed that both boys had drowned. Upon investigation, it was surmised that the ‘swans’ had pulled them into the water. It looked as if the younger boy had been pulled in first, and from skid marks on the bank, it appeared the older boy had tried to save him and was also dragged in.

The people in Belton were really nice. The town buried my brothers, and it seemed as if everyone turned out for their funerals. I wanted to come back before I died so that my own children and grandchildren could see where our family tragedy happened.”

I don’t know if Belton’s Nolan Creek park(s) ever had swans, which some Victorian-era parks did incorporate, or if these were actually geese, both of which can be aggressive. I’m sorry that I didn’t keep the family’s name, which would have helped in a cemetery search, but maybe someone has heard this story and can add to it.

Tom Curb

To the Editor:

I know it is human nature to be concerned about all potential dangers for our children and grandchildren, but I think parents and grandparents ought to take responsibility for their safety, not the village of Salado or Mayor Stalcup. If you take your children to the creek near the springs, then stay there with them and take charge of them. The springs need to be open. I support the woman who is trying to clear out the spring opening. Putting rocks in the spring is ridiculous. This is a natural phenomenon and should not be interfered with! That is the source of the nice cool water in the creek near Sirena. It will become a cesspool without the spring to refresh it. Then Mayor Stalcup and the village will be getting sued for their children developing infections from sitting in stagnant, nasty, polluted water. And where are all those environmentalists who want things to be natural? Why aren’t they coming to the rescue? Has anyone thought of putting an iron grate on top of the spring opening so that no one can fall or jump in to it? I believe the woman involved in this situation offered to do so. Why is the village being so obdurate about any solution--except rocks?

Another idea is to put up a sign to warn of the dangers and relieve the city of all responsibility?

Come on Salado. Let’s not be hold the creek hostage to “danger”....what’s next? Will people want to stop up Old Faithful because it’s hot?!

A Senator in the “No”

Heritage Forum

by Edwin Feulner

Some years back, a newspaper comic strip showed lemmings running toward a cliff. One said to another, “Don’t worry, this was a bipartisan decision.”

That, in a nutshell, is how Washington sometimes works. As long as both parties agree to an idea, everyone assumes the idea must be correct. Even if it’s not. Consider spending.

For more than a decade the Republican Party controlled the purse strings in Congress. Spending soared during those years, jumping by one third between 2000 and 2006 under a Republican president.

Ah, but big federal spending, while it may be taking our country over a cliff, enjoys wide bipartisan support. Since taking over Congress two years ago, the Democratic leadership has kept up the pace; our country’s debt ceiling was recently raised to its highest level ever.

That’s how leaders inside the Beltway operate. Few elected officials even talk about reducing spending. Whatever our government spent last year is considered the new floor; spending can’t drop below that. Indeed, it must rise. Lawmakers then fight over how much to increase spending.

Most liberals would prefer to see more spending on welfare and less on homeland security, and most conservatives want to invest more in defense and spend less on social programs. But you’d be hard-pressed to find many Americans who think our country’s problem is that it doesn’t spend enough.

Well, the underrepresented majority that wants to see our $3 trillion dollar budget trimmed a bit has at least one voice in Congress these days: Tom Coburn, Republican from Oklahoma.

He’s nicknamed “Dr. No” – and with good reason. This year, Coburn’s used the Senate’s arcane rules to block dozens of spending measures that, in the estimation of the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, would have cost taxpayers more than $10 billion.

He simply refuses to go along. “For those of you who may not know this,” Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid has said, “you cannot negotiate with Coburn.” Even trying to convince the Oklahoman to agree to more wasteful spending is, in Reid’s words, “a waste of time.”

But that’s exactly the point. Coburn has earned his nickname because he can’t be bought off by the prospect of more federal largesse for his state. He won’t play the usual Washington game.

Many of the programs he opposes are politically popular -- such as more funding for unsolved civil rights crimes, a national registry for ALS victims and more money to prosecute child pornographers. But he blocks them because they merely duplicate what the government is already doing.

“If we pass a new program, we either ought to get rid of the old program, or we ought to make it to where it blends with this other one so it’s effective,” Coburn told The Washington Post. “Almost everything that they’ve offered has a duplicate program out there that they’re not either eliminating or changing.” Coburn, audaciously, wants to change the way Washington operates.

As the Senate was preparing to recess for the summer, Reid tried to outfox Coburn by combining 35 bills Coburn has blocked into one massive spending bill, nicknamed the “Tomnibus” bill (because wide-ranging spending bills are “omnibus” bills). Coburn countered by offering to lift his blocks on the new spending, if the Senate would also eliminate some $45 billion in federal waste that Coburn and his staff had identified.

Reid refused to consider the spending reductions, because he was playing by Washington’s usual rules. But those rules don’t work anymore -- if they ever did. If they change, it’ll be because of stalwart senators such as Tom Coburn. Thank you, Dr. No.

Ed Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation (heritage.org).

Lawmakers cash in as Lobbyists

Jim Hightower

Old Congress critters never die; they just flutter away to K Street.

Take Dennis Hastert. Actually, he’s already taken. The longtime Republican lawmaker retired last November, but rather than return to Illinois, he has alighted just a few blocks from the Capital at the blue-chip lobbying firm of Dickstein Shapiro. The firm lured Hastert with more than half a million bucks in annual pay, designating him “strategic counselor” on the legislative needs of its corporate clientele.

Dickstein Shapiro brags that it lobbies for more than 100 of the Fortune 500 corporations - a lineup that includes tobacco giants, drug companies, the nuclear industry, mercenaries like Triple Canopy, and such brand names as AT&T and Time Warner. Hastert will feel right at home in this crowd, for he was always a faithful legislative errand runner for corporate America. Indeed, corporate interests essentially ran the place when Hastert was Speaker of the House, with the likes of super-lobbyist Jack Abramoff given a free hand to cut corrupt deals. While Dennis no longer has the muscle to ram through a corporation’s agenda, he certainly has his old buddy network and insider knowledge to get favors done - this time for personal gain.

Hastert is hardly the only Capitol Hill alum to cash in on his public trust. In recent years, more than 200 former members have made the lucrative metamorphosis from lawmaker to lobbyist, and Congress’s feeble ethics rules even let members openly shop for lobbying jobs while they’re supposed to be doing their legislative work. This is a revolving door system that special interests are happy to exploit - last year, they paid nearly $3 billion to hire Washington influence peddlers. That’s $17 million for every day Congress was in session.

And Congress critters wonder why their public approval rating is a humiliating 11 percent.

Smart ways to respond to a down market

If you're an investor, you may have been disappointed with how the markets have been reacting this summer to the news of high oil prices and other short-term events. Nonetheless, your long-term financial goals don't have to be jeopardized by these losses — if you know how to respond to them.

Here are a few moves to consider:

- Stick to your investment strategy. It's almost always a bad idea to make long-term investment decisions in response to short-term market fluctuations. If you have built a diversified portfolio of quality investments, you're better off just "staying the course" during a market decline. (Keep in mind, though, that diversification, by itself, cannot guarantee or protect against loss.) If these investments were suitable for you before

Financial Focus

by Allen Mantanona

the market drop, they'll still be appropriate when the market turns around.

- Don't try to "time" the market. It would be great if you could know when the market had reached its low or high points, or which days would be "losers" and which ones "winners." If you had that foresight, you could always jump in and jump out of the market at the right times. Unfortunately, no one can make those predictions with any accuracy. And those people who do try to "time" the market in this manner end up jumping out at the wrong times and missing both short- and long-term market rallies. By staying invested through market ups and downs, you can make progress toward your long-term goals.

- Look for buying opportunities. By definition, a market decline means that stock prices are lower — which means you may find some good buying opportunities. Of course, you'll want to know if the stock's price is low because of the effects of the broad-based market decline or because of other factors specific to the stock, such as poor management, non-competitive products or a decline in the industry to which it belongs.

While making these moves can help you get past the market decline, it doesn't mean that a severe price drop can't affect you. If you need money to pay for an unexpected cost, such as a major car repair, you'll likely take a hit if you have to sell stocks when the market has fallen substantially. But you can avoid this problem by putting three to six months worth of living expenses in an emergency fund, preferably in a "cash" or "cash equivalent" account.

Nobody likes to see big declines in the stock market. But if you're a long-term investor, you've built an emergency fund and you've rebalanced your portfolio to fit your risk tolerance, you'll be in a much better position to withstand these market drops — and you'll be well prepared for an eventual recovery.

Long Term Care

by MATILDA CHARLES

If you want to stay at home if you become ill or disabled, you might have to move to New Mexico, Oregon, Washington or Alaska. That is, if you want Medicaid to pay for your care.

AARP's Policy and Research branch recently conducted a study to determine what percentage of Medicaid money the states are spending on long-term at-home care. Only those four states spent more than 50 percent of their long-term care money to keep people in their homes in comfortable surroundings. (Change that to 40 percent and you can add three more states: California, Minnesota and Texas.)

The rest of the states are spending the bulk of their dollars on institutionalized care. Not only does it cost more, but surveys show that 87 percent of seniors age 50 and older want to be at home. By comparison, for those with developmental disabilities or mental retardation, the majority do receive at-home care, with only 39 percent of the long-term-care spending on institutional care.

It makes no sense: If it costs less to keep a senior at home, supported by home and community services, than it does to institutionalize, why don't they spend fewer dollars to keep the senior in comfortable surroundings at home?

Fact: For every person in a nursing home, three people can be supported with at-home care.

Fact: Between 2001 and 2006, 27 states added more nursing-home money than at-home-care money.

There are obstacles, certainly, anytime you're dealing with government rules, especially when it comes to policy about how states are to balance and divide up their Medicaid dollars. But as the AARP report says, it takes a "creative problem-solving attitude that can find innovative ways to work within existing laws."

If those states can do it, so can the rest.

additional growth in the student population, even though the school district is opening a new campus.

This no-growth approach may be in reaction to the trend in student enrollment the last two years. Since 2005-06 the enrollment in Salado schools has increased by only 27 students, from 1,210 students to 1,237 students last year.

If the Salado school population increases with the opening of the new high school, the district will have a windfall in state aid, rather than a shortfall as it felt this year.

The district is proposing a decrease in the overall tax rate. The school will maintain the $1.04 maintenance and operation tax rate in order to maximize the state funding formula, which will provide $3.7 million in state revenues. This is almost seven percent less than the amount budgeted in 2007-08 of $4 million.

Local revenues are anticipated to increase by six percent, from $6.1 million to $6.5 million in 2008-09.

This is due to a 10 percent increase in taxable property values in Salado ISD.

Taxable property values in Salado ISD increase by more than $45 million, from $451 million to $496 million.

Of that, $27 million is new property within the school district.

With the increase in property values, the district will lower its debt service tax rate for the current 0.293 per $100 evaluation to 0.278 per $100 evaluation.

never been opened up and certainly it should have not been covered up after it was opened. I suggest that before further action is taken on opening or closing that spring, whoever is involved may want to consider what Mother Nature had in mind when she created that spring. Mother Nature made that spring by following one simple rule of nature. She allowed the water to follow the line of least resistance.

That spring was here long before humans got into the picture. I am sure the spring has been covered by Mother Nature a few times throughout the years and Mother Nature opened that spring at some point each time after it was covered. Man may divert a flow of water created by Mother Nature, but totally blocking that flow will be extremely difficult. Mother Nature has time on her side. She may wait a few days or many years to overcome that done to her by man, but she will be the winner in the end.

In other words, I believe the water from that spring is going to come to the surface somewhere, some time, just as it did the first time it surfaced at that spot. By blocking the flow now you could very well be setting up a situation where it will make its next appearance from under Main Street, or any one of hundreds of places along Salado Creek. So rather than trying to stop the flow of water from that spring, I think it would be much better to try to give it another path to Salado Creek. Lord knows that creek could use the help to avoid looking like a sewage ditch, especially during the hot and dry summer months.

Using the excuse for covering the spring because it is a danger to children playing in it is a little weak. Now, I'm not saying children would not be at risk by playing in the bubbling spring, but trying to stop the flow of water from it by covering it with dirt and gravel is a little extreme. If it is such a danger to kids, why not put a fence around it, or cover it with some material that would allow the flowing water to be seen, but not give access by small kids. Anyway, if they are going to stop kids from playing in that spring by taking the extreme measure of trying to plug it, then someone should also take a look at all the kids playing in Salado Creek in the vicinity of the dam.

On weekends I see as many as 15 to 20 youngsters playing in that creek just west of the Main Street Bridge. I can guarantee that if you allow that many kids to play in a water hole week after week you will have one to get drowned sooner or later. So, if our city fathers want to do something really worthwhile, for a change, I think they should consider banning swimming or wading in Salado Creek or the city should have life guards there to protect the kids.

I'm sure the argument against life guards is that the parents or guardians are watching the kids. Well take my word for it; many a kid has drowned while under the watchful eye of a parent. It only takes about two seconds for a small child to disappear beneath the water, even when the water is only knee deep.

While I haven't addressed the issue of water pollution, the thought has crossed my mind about how safe is that water for swimming. From the looks of the algae and slime growth I see, there has to be nutrients in that water and I'll bet some of those nutrients could be harmful to humans.

Sincerely,
Bob Smith

To the Editor:

"If you make any money, the government shoves you in the (Salado) creek once a year with it in your pockets, and all that don't get wet you can keep."

-- Will Rogers

While all over the country, the business community, citizenry and government alike are tightening their budget belts, your wise Village Alders in Salado are at the trough wearing elastic pants and prepared to put on suspenders. The proposed 2008-2009 budget not only taxes the average homeowner another $300/year, it presents a 50 percent increase to 2007-2008 spending levels, and even then, will run a projected spending deficit of more than $42,000, or 4.5 percent of anticipated receipts.

Within this budget, there's $250,000 allocated for road resurfacing from the $35,000 budgeted for 2007-2008, a modest 714 percent increase. Does anyone know where the $35,000 in budgeted resurfacing occurred this year? What I know is that the age old ever growing pothole on Bluff Circle will still swallow your golf cart or small car. But there's another $70,000 to deal with that problem, up from $1,022 this year, a paltry 6,863 percent increase. That ought to be enough to cover that pesky pothole.

Meantime, there are few viable sidewalks on Main Street, the pedestrian bridge over Salado Creek is a lawsuit just waiting to bankrupt the village, and the golf course and surrounding Mill Creek community continue to be vandalized, yet the crime prevention budget was slashed by a third.

Alas, there's $40,000 budgeted for yet another study. A study is another way of saying "we're politically afraid to make a hugely expensive decision right now but let's spend a lot of money, albeit less, to study it. That'll keep the septic system citizenry off our back ends as we shove this property tax down their leach fields." If public wastewater flows into production, at some point the Village Alders will find a way for you to pay for it, at least in part – and for the additional staff it will take to manage those leavings, even though you've bought and paid dearly for the system that runs right outside your home. And what will we invariably wind up with not so many years down the line? A Walgreen's caddy corner to a CVS down the street from a Walmart, Applebee's and McDonalds.

Do you hear the giant sucking sound?
Welcome to Belton!

Amended Budget with the anticipated expenses as well as the Proposed 2008-09 Budget can be found on page 11A.

The Budget Amendment makes two major decreases in spending and three major increases in spending.

The Amendment eliminates $30,000 for a City Manager and eliminates $24,000 in professional fees for planning.

The Amended Budget calls for total funds available of $807,828. There is no "Total Available" or "Beginning Balance" amount for the anticipated revenues for this year.

However, if one takes the $220,028 Beginning Balance of the Amended Budget adopted by Aldermen at their Aug. 7 meeting and add it to the anticipated revenues of $599,355, the Village of Salado will have an anticipated $819,383 in funds available for 2007-2008.

The Amended Budget expenditures are $693,046 for 2007-08; however, the anticipated expenditures are $643,612. This approximate $50,000 is due to spending in three chief areas. The Amended Budget calls for $195,685 in Administrative Costs, while the anticipated expenditures is $170,004. The Amended Budget sets the Police Department costs at $216,450, while the anticipated costs are $208,664. The Amended Budget for Maintenance is $28,200; the anticipated costs for Maintenance are $21,488.

The Aldermen will reconcile the differences in September when the board adopts a "Final Amended Budget."

The difference between an Adopted Budget in September and the Final Amended budget the following September can be quite drastic.

Salado Eagles began practice last week. The defending Region IV Champions will have 23 seniors and nine juniors on the Varsity squad. The team will travel to Crawford for the first scrimmage of the year on Aug. 16 at 10 a.m. The following week, Salado will scrimmage China Springs, which is a state-ranked 3A team.

Eagles hope to continue success on football field

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

With four returning starters on offense and seven returning starters on defense, the Salado Eagles varsity football team may be less affected by graduation of seniors than at first glance.

Salado will test its mettle in the first scrimmage of the year against perennial smashmouth football team the Crawford Pirates as the Eagles travel to Crawford to play at 10 a.m. Aug. 16.

The following week, the state semi-finalists and defending Region IV champions will face 3A China Spring in a scrimmage here in Salado at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Aug. 21.

Neither team are paties by any stretch of thought. Cheatham picked the opponents for their toughness. China Spring is ranked in the top 10 in 3A, returning for the state finals, where they lost to Celina.

The Eagles will have 23 seniors on the team, many of whom started as juniors on the 8-1 junior varsity.

Returning to the varsity squad are Garret Ward (6'2", 210 lbs.) as starting quarterback. Ward moves from received to quarterback and will share time with Jerod Lutz (6', 165 lbs.) under center.

"Ward is more of our physical running kind of quarterback while Lutz will bring a lot of speed to the situation," Coach Jeff Cheatham said.

Lutz and Ward were both receivers on last year's 13-1 varsity squad. Lutz will also see time as a receiver, along with seniors Clayton Whitmire (6'2", 160 lbs.) and Tyler Wright (5'10", 175 lbs.).

"We've got a great receiving corps," Cheatham said, adding that the focus of the offense will be to get the ball in their hands.

The Eagles will continue to run the multiple I-offense that gave Salado such great success last year. With a receiver coming across in front of the quarterback at the snap, the offense will have many different looks for defenses to try to stop.

Defenses were not very successful at stopping the Salado Eagles last year and Coach Cheatham is hopeful of the same success.

He admits that the offensive line has "some inexperience" compared to last year's dominant squad, but the lineman match up well with last year's blockers.

The offensive line will be anchored by returning starting tackle Chase Stuckey (6'7", 275 lbs.), who was an All District player last year. Other starters include returners center Barton Grigsby (6'5", 245 lbs.) and guard Heath Bracken (6'4", 240 lbs.). Returners Tyler Coker (6'2", 255 lbs.) and Caleb Little (6'2", 255 lbs.) will share time at the offensive tight end position. Juniors Brandon Heller (6'2", 260 lbs.) and Caleb Hayslip (6'4", 260 lbs.) will move up to varsity this year.

Logan Foster (6', 175 lbs.) and Justin Berumen (5'11, 210 lbs.) return from last year's varsity squad to fill the running back vacancies left by Seth Collins and Leo Galvan.

Coach Cheatham said that he expects to see Wright and Trae Liller (5'10", 165 lbs.) in the backfield as well.

Many of the starters will see action on both sides of the line of scrimmage.

The Eagles return four All District players to the defense, including Defensive Newcomer of the Year Ward at defensive end. Other All District return-

The Salado Church of Christ
'Shaped by His Cross, Sharing His truth, Showing His love.'

When death comes suddenly for a friend or loved one, it gives one pause to consider-- where is all this heading, anyway? Are we going somewhere with a meaningful purpose, or do we just live day to day? I urge you to realize God has a purpose for each of us, and he's given us His Word and fellow believers to help us seek it out. Come find in our church family a group that is searching for that purpose together.

Townfolks in play plus Chase film

The angora-chaps-wearing hero, Ranger Sam Houston “Tex” is played by Grainger Esch and Kevin C. Carr of Round Rock is Snidely H. Whiplash, the Villain.

The Silver Spur Theater’s Fourth Annual Melodrama, “Perry’s Hatter Is Up the Creek” has been greeted weekend after weekend with a chorus of boos and hisses from the assembled audiences, and the Writer-Director Gary D. Askins couldn’t be more pleased.

“This is what melodramas and live theater are supposed to be all about,” Askins admits. “I love it that our village and theatre guests are so involved in this year’s show. Our crowds, mostly families, are encouraged to audibly participate, even throwing popcorn at the villains! The jeers turn to cheers for the heroes -- and the actors -- by the end of the play, I assure you.”

Heroes, gorillas, villains and ordinary townfolks were seen earlier this summer chasing through the historic village and along the bucolic creek as part of the melodrama-silent cinema summer hijinks subtitled: “The Deathly Secret Half-blood Prisoner’s Phoenix Stone Goblet.” The play spoofs Harry Potter books, with generous helpings of political satire and slapstick comedy.

Performances continue through Aug. 23, at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights with 2 p.m. Saturday matinees. Admission is $15 for adults, $12 for senior citizens (65 and over) and military personnel, and $10 for children (12 and under); and $12, $10 and $8, respectively for matinees. For group prices, reservations or more information, call 254-947-3456 or visit www.saladosilverspur.com.

“This latest melodrama from Gary’s pen may well be his best script yet,” says Grainger Esch, Co-founder and Executive Director of the Spur. The 150-seat proscenium theater was developed in 2003 in the historic Sanford & Guest Granary and Feed Store (at 108 Royal St.).

“Come prepared to dis’ the villain and to support the heroes as they attempt to save damsels in distress and to protect innocent villagers from the evil clutches of rampaging apes and evil personified -- Snidely H. Whiplash,” advises Askins. The playwright and retired master teacher of theatre at Salado High School is an original member of the Spuraldical Players.

“As always, the show will include – on our screen – our own 20-minute silent movie chase sequence through the streets and businesses of Salado,” he explained. “The cinematic sequence is a contemporary take on the classic beginnings of modern movie making.”

“We had the able assistance, both enthusiastic and reluctant, of several of Salado’s most famous and infamous citizens, including members of the state championship baseball team,” he noted. “Of course, the film is complemented by the live musical accompaniment arranged and performed by pianist Nelda Milligan of Harker Heights.”

The Silver Spur Theater strives to revive a bygone era of family entertainment, offering a blend of live vaudeville acts, live music, stage plays and classic cinema.

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

After a beginning player has taken part in a few thousand hands of bridge, it is natural for him to conclude that certain similar situations in the bidding or the play tend to repeat themselves. As a result, the beginner may develop a tendency to follow whatever his previous experiences have taught him.

But after playing another few thousand deals, the serious player has learned that each case has to be taken on its own merits. Exceptions arise where common sense favors abandoning standard practice because of a particular set of circumstances.

Consider this deal where South was in three notrump and West led the diamond nine. The normal play for East would be to win with the ace and continue with the queen. This would establish East's long suit and presumably allow him to defeat the contract by eventually scoring his remaining diamonds after gaining the lead with the ace of spades. But any East who allowed his reasoning to stop right there on this deal would, in effect, be playing with his eyes closed. He would be overlooking the simple reality that with a diamond return at trick two, declarer will collect at least nine tricks -- seven clubs, a heart and a diamond -- before East can score five.

Having gotten that far, East would therefore shift to the ace of spades at trick two in hopes of finding partner with at least four spades headed by the K-10 or K-9. East would then continue with the queen and the five to quickly put the contract down one.

Following standard procedure may work well in the great majority of cases, but it should not

Eat food in its natural state

LIFESTYLE AND WELLNESS

By Kevin McCauley

Recently I have received a number of questions covering a vast array of topics, most concerning people's health and fitness. Over the next couple of weeks I will answer these questions.

1. Question: I have been making a major effort at improving the quality of my foods, frequency of meals and proper food combinations. I am beginning to feel the difference in my energy levels and my metabolism. What tip might you give me concerning my desire to continue improving my well-being?

Answer: You may have heard the saying, "you are what you eat" and actually that is incorrect. The correct saying should be, "you are what you assimilate." Because you are making a real effort on improving your food intake, here is a tip that can make all the difference in the world, "drink your food, and chew your liquids". Proper digestion is essential for the quality of health you are desirous of achieving. Though this can be a somewhat complex topic, here are some basic tips that will benefit you at your next meal: 1) chew your food until it is ground into a fine paste, 2) eat in a relaxing environment, and 3) only sip on water during the meal.

These three simple behavioral changes will enable you to assimilate the majority of the food you are consuming and will also decrease your chance of gastro-intestinal issues in the future.

2. Question: You have mentioned on numerous occasions the challenges with pasteurized and homogenized commercialized dairy. What are some other options?

Answer: The lowest quality of dairy products that I would recommend for you and your family would be pasteurized and homogenized "organic", grass-fed cow's milk. If you can find goat's milk in your grocery store of choice I would try that as well. A grass-fed goat's milk is "naturally" homogenized, loaded with nutrients that are void in grain-fed cow's milk, and is more similar to human mother's milk than that of the cows (improving assimilation and decreasing chances of intolerance and allergies).

My recommendation for finding raw and whole milk in your area can be found at this web address: <http://www.realmilk.com/>. You will also be able to find other products like: cheese, ice cream and yogurt.

3. Question: I am finding it difficult to get my child to eat anything of substance for breakfast, but she does like to drink 8-12 ounces of orange juice every morning. What do you think of orange juice as a breakfast food?

Answer: Commercialized pasteurized orange juice should be considered a convenience food. The reason for this is simple; eight ounces of orange juice contains one hundred calories of sugar! Plus, the benefits that might come with a glass of fresh-squeezed orange juice are non-existent as the pasteurization and oxidation of the juice kill and destroy anything that might resemble beneficial nutrients for your child. So, your child is consuming 100-150 calories of sugar with little to no nutritional value, which leaves him/her with what I would define as "convenience food".

My recommendation would be to "eat foods in their natural state" which would mean in this case; eating an orange and drinking a glass of "filtered" water. This way, your child consumes less sugar and calories, but benefits from increased nutrient and fiber intake and improved hydration.

Breakfasts that create sugar spikes and hormonal imbalances are poor choices for anybody and are a primary reason that children today struggle with energy level issues, weight-gain and ADD.

Traveling with a Monkey

by Tumbleweed
Smith

Tommy Lucia grew up in Minnesota during some rough times. When he was eleven years old he set pins in a bowling alley until 1 AM and had three paper routes. His mother worked day and night to feed the family. When he was fifteen he went to his first rodeo and his life was changed forever.

"I wanted to be a bull rider," says Tommy, who now lives in Weatherford. "So I started going to rodeos, competing in bull riding and bareback events. It was a challenge to see if I was tough enough."

He became a rodeo clown at age 19 and for 20 years performed at rodeos all over the country, including the National Finals Rodeo. During that time he trained animals for various clown routines.

"I would train a goat, a dog or a horse. I had a lot of original acts and used all kinds of animals. It takes a long time to train one. You have to get to know the animal and he has to know you."

He quit clowning in about 1982 and started doing specialty acts. At rodeo arenas these days, he has a monkey named Whiplash who rides a border collie while the dog pens some sheep.

"The sheep are Bar-bado. I use those because they stay so wild and it makes the dog really have to work. I've been using Whiplash for more than 35 years. He rides in a special saddle made by Cactus Saddlery in Greenville that makes saddles for the National Finals rodeo. It's a very light; custom fit saddle for the dog's back. It's not like a saddle for a horse where you cinch it up. We don't draw it tight because we want the dog to be able to breathe good and have freedom of movement. It takes a long time to get that just right so Whiplash can ride and balance himself. Of course his tail is wrapped around the dog. His front feet have hold of the hair on the dog's front shoulders and he's got the saddle horn or bars to hang onto. So he sits up there and rides."

The monkey and dog make a good team. No matter how many quick stops and turns the dog makes, the monkey stays on. During the act he wears a shirt, bandana and hat and makes all sorts of movements when the dog is crouched on the arena floor. He'll look at people in the stands or reach down and pick up some dirt.

"I don't think the word teach is in the monkey's realm of understanding. I call it negotiate. You have to make it interesting for the animal, something they're going to like to do."

This Whiplash is 21 years old and has a special room in Tommy's house.

"He has his own radio, TV and DVD player. He watches DVD's all day. We have a lot of Walt Disney and Sponge Bob Squarepants stuff. When he gets hungry, he throws a fit."

Equipping an electrical tool kit

THIS IS A HAMMER
By Samantha Mazzotta

Q: When I moved to my first apartment, my dad gave me an old tool set with wrenches, pliers, a hammer and so on. He told me I need to add wire strippers and a tester. What are these? -- Haley C., Boulder, Colo.

A: A wire stripper (usually a cutter/stripper) and a tester are among the basic ingredients of an electrical repair set. Most apartment dwellers will not (and should not) need to perform repairs to their wiring. However, like the rest of the items in the tool kit you received from your dad, they are handy to have around and may make an appearance while decorating the place. (Putting up a new light fixture or ceiling fan is one immediate use that comes to mind.)

A good basic electrical tool set can be put together for between $20 and $100 and should include the following items:

--A neon tester, which will tell you whether power is on in a socket, switch or receptacle.

--A wire cutter/stripper to cut small wires and strip some of the plastic casing from the ends (very useful when attaching wires to fixtures).

--Needle-nose pliers (also called long-nose pliers), which easily crimp wires and can reach into tight spaces.

--Lineman's pliers, which make twisting wires together much easier.

--Electrical tape, a handy item which covers bare wires or tacks things into place temporarily.

--Wire caps or nuts, in assorted sizes, which quickly screw over spliced wires to hold them securely in place.

Some of these tools are helpful in other areas besides electrical work -- needle-nose pliers, for example, are a big help when hanging pictures, as they can quickly crimp the picture wire into shape.

When you do decide to take on an electrical project -- such as hanging that ceiling fan -- ask someone with experience to work with you. Always shut off the circuit to the receptacle or switch you'll be working on, and test using the neon tester to make sure no current is traveling through it before starting work.

HOME TIP: If an appliance or plug is smoking or sparking, turn off power at the main circuit box immediately, let it cool, then contact an electrician to inspect and repair.

POSITION of VILLAGE TREASURER

The Village of Salado government is seeking a volunteer to be the Village of Salado Treasurer. Some accounting experience required. Primary responsibilities of the job are reviewing and approving monthly bank statements, overview of monthly financials, transfer monies into and out of investment accounts, and attend one Board of Aldermen meeting each month. Interested parties may contact the Village office, Dianna, at 947-5060, or Alderman Stephen Peters at 947-0115.
