Salado High School names Valedictorian, Salutatorian

Salado High School has named the top two graduates for the Class of 2007. They are Valedictorian Crystal Schoellmann and Salutatorian Molly Rooney.

Crystal Schoellman has been named Valedictorian for Salado High School's graduating class of 2006-07.

Schoellman will graduate with a 103.05 grade point average.

An attendee of Salado schools since the fifth grade, Crystal is the daughter of Rosanna and Matthew Schoellman.

During her time at Salado, Schoellman stayed busy both with academics and extra curricular activities. She participated in Salado's state championship UIL academic teams for all four years of high school. She recently placed second in State in Prose Interpretation, and finished first place in that category on the district level in her junior and senior years.

In addition, Schoellman was a seven-year member of the Salado band, where she played the clarinet. She also participated in the UMHB Conservatory Choir.

Her excellent academic record earned her a multitude of scholarships. She was the recipient of an IBM Watson Scholarship, in the amount of $8,000, a Salado Education Foundation scholarship ($2,000), a City Federation of Women's Clubs scholarship ($1,500), and for being the highest ranking graduate, she will have her first year of tuition paid in full at the University of Texas in Austin.

Schoellman plans to focus her studies on biological sciences, and has an interest in zoology and veterinary medicine. She would like to pursue her postgraduate education at a university in Europe.

Molly Rooney

While at the University of Texas, she plans to try out for the school's concert band and choir. Her brother John currently attends the University of Texas, as well, and was a 2003 graduate of Salado High School.

A member of the First Baptist Church of Salado, Schoellman has taken part in mission trips, including a recent one in Colorado, and has also participated in the church choir, and volunteered with Vacation Bible School events and Habitat for Humanity.

She credits her success to having a supportive family and several influential teachers at Salado High School, including J.J. Jonas, Dennis Cabaniss and Christian Briehn. She notes that Cabaniss' courses, in particular, have prepared her well for college. "His class was always challenging," she says.

With a grade point average of 103.04, Molly Rooney will represent Salado High School's graduating class of 2006-07 as salutatorian.

Molly is the daughter of Stacy Rooney and Richard Winn, of Salado. Her brother, Tyler, graduated from Salado High School in 2005.

Rooney was a standout at Salado in athletic and academic endeavors. She was a member of Salado High School's UIL Academic Team for four years, including the Math Team which placed second at the State Meet for three of her four years. She also participated in the Science competition.

Her athletic accomplishments include being a two-time medalist at the Class AA State Track and Field Meet. In her specialty, the 300m hurdles, Rooney won gold as a junior and bronze as a senior. She finished just

Memorial Day Service at planned Salado Cemetery

By MaryBelle Brown
Contributor

Friends of Salado Cemetery Association will host the annual Memorial Day Service at the historic Salado Cemetery on Baines St., beginning at 9:30 a.m. May 28. Area residents and visitors are invite to attend the service to join in honoring of veterans of nine different wars who are buried in Salado Cemetery.

What we know as Memorial Day was originally known as Decoration Day. Down through the years, there have been several cities and towns which have taken credit for celebrating the beginning of this memorable gathering. One of these stories is that a gentleman named Henry Wells, who owned a drug store in Waterloo, New York came up with the idea. He suggested that all the shops in town close for one day to honor the soldiers who were killed in the Civil War and who were buried in the local cemetery.

On the morning of May 5, 1866, the townspeople placed flowers, wreaths and cross on the graves of the Northern soldiers in the cemetery. There are also reports that women's groups in the south were decorating graves before the end of the Civil War. It has been difficult to prove conclusively who originated the practice. Many believe that there were numerous beginnings in different towns where people came together to honor the soldiers killed in the Civil War.

Decoration Day was officially proclaimed on May 5, 1868 by General John Logan, National Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in his General Order Number 11, which reads in part: "The 30th of May, 1868 is designated for the purpose of strewing flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in the defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village or hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance, no form of ceremony is prescribed but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit." In the Northern states, the 30th of May was observed as Decoration Day, while the Southern states commemorated their war dead on different days. Some of the Southern state still follow this practice.

The name of Decoration Day was changed to Memorial Day in 1882 and soldiers who had died while serving their country prior to the Civil War were also honored. Memorial Day was designated as a public holiday in most states.

President Richard Nixon declared Memorial Day to become a federal holiday to be observed on the last Monday in May under the National Holiday Act of 1971.

Since the National Holiday Act of 1971, the traditional observance of Memorial Day has diminished. Many Americans have forgotten the meaning and traditions of Memorial Day. At many cemeteries, the graves of the fallen veterans are increasingly ignored and neglected. Many people no longer remember proper flag etiquette for the day.

Some believe that Memorial Day was intended for honoring all the deceased buried in a particular cemetery, not just for those who died while serving their country. The National Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars stated in his 2002 Memorial Day address: "Changing the meeting date of Memorial Day in the National Holiday Act of 1971 merely to create a three-day weekend has undermined the meaning of the day. No doubt this has contributed to the nonchalant observance of Memorial Day." There have been efforts to change the date back to May 30 but have been unsuccessful.

Friends of Salado Cemetery Association chose to meet on the last Monday because many people had a holiday from their work on this date. The very first Memorial Day was celebrated at the Salado Cemetery on a Saturday. Many volunteers in the Salado area have worked together to have a successful and meaningful service. Flags are placed on the grave of every veteran buried in the cemetery by a local Boy Scout troop. The Association usually has soldiers from Ft. Hood participate in the service. Area residents are encouraged to attend.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

The Great Clinton/Obama Feminist Pander

The front-runners in the Democratic presidential race have discovered the power of an idea whose time has passed: socialism in women's wages. Its power is in pandering to feminist voters, and its time passed because it never made any sense even when it was a bright, shiny new bad idea some 30 years ago.

It deserved its place on the junk heap, given that women have been improving their place in our economy without far-reaching governmental intervention. Nonetheless, Hillary Clinton has renewed her push for her Paycheck Fairness Act, and Sen. Barack Obama has endorsed the Fair Pay Act. Whenever the word "fair" features so prominently in Democratic legislation, the odds are that it is economically illiterate, and this legislation doesn't disappoint.

Discrimination against women is already illegal and employers have to give women equal pay for equal work. What Clinton and Obama want to establish is the more nebulous concept of "comparable worth," or equal pay for different work in female- and male-dominated professions.

This intervention is supposedly so urgent because women make only 77 percent of what men do. Feminists believe that this wage gap is caused by The Man -- and that's not just a metaphor: He's really a man -- who carefully sets women's wages to keep them below that of members of the patriarchy in good standing.

Never mind that the 77 percent figure is, in the words of Hudson Institute economist Diana Furchtgott-Roth, "flawed and bogus," failing to account for the most basic variables. The figure for men and women who work 40 hours a week is 88 percent. Baruch College economist June O'Neill finds -- adjusting for factors like schooling, lifetime work experience and workplace characteristics -- that the gap almost disappears, with women making 95 percent of men's wages.

Different pay for different professions persists, of course. Nurses aides (89 percent female) have more education than truck drivers (97 percent male), but their median earnings are just 57 percent that of truck drivers. This isn't discrimination, but a reflection that driving cross-country is unpleasant work. Women tend not to want to do it.

That kind of choice is a key factor in the male-female wage differential. Average earnings for male physicians are $170,000, for female physicians $100,000. Bias? No, as Furchtgott-Roth has noted, "many women choose to go into pediatrics, psychiatry and family practice, all lower-paying fields than surgery, which is more demanding in terms of hours."

Many women choose professions that are compatible with having kids, and when they have children, tend to take a break from their careers (whereas men actually work more). Economist O'Neill writes, "Women continue to work part time more than men and to choose work situations such as work in nonprofit institutions and occupations that more easily can be accommodated with home responsibilities."

Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama might wish this fact weren't so, but there's no way for them to legislate it out of existence, even with a very bad, dated idea.

Senate ruse and House insurgency mark final tempestuous days as session nears May 28 "sine die"

The "Day of Reckoning" for the 80th Legislative Session is at hand and within the next few weeks, report cards for the 181 members of the House and Senate will be made public, along with those issued to Governor ("Land-slide") Perry, and Lt. Governor David Dewhurst.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Tom Craddick is spending the remaining session-days manning the barricades against an insurgency created by what Craddick loyalists term "an unruly gang of traitorous" fellow Republicans, led by longtime friend and top-gun Jim Keffer (R-Eastland).

The rebellion, the second one this session, includes a near-majority of the 150 member lower house (divided between 69 Demos and 81 Repubs), who want old Tom's scalp (and his speaker's gavel) "now" rather than waiting for the usual arm-twisting "pledge" card fiasco that traditionally accompanies the end of a session.

We suspect the current insurrection will fade and Craddick will then demand (and probably receive) one final term as Speaker (for a total of four) in exchange for promising to "play nice" during the interim period and the 2009 session.

LT. GUV'S TOUGH DAY IN SENATE

Speaker Craddick was not the only legislative leader having problems last week. Across the Rotunda, on the day before the lower house uprising, Lt. Governor David Dewhurst tried to "finesse" the Democratic faction within his "restive gang of 31" by calling for a fast, non-agenda vote, in order to bring the highly partisan Voter-ID bill up for debate.

He did this while a number of Democrats (all 11 of whom oppose the measure) were wandering around outside the Senate chamber. One of them - John Whitmire (D-Houston) was reportedly in the men's room.

When it became apparent what "slyboots" Dewhurst was doing (as the unannounced vote got underway) Demos scurried around and brought their troops back on the floor for the "unscheduled" balloting.

All returned except Whitmire who arrived as the vote was ending with GOPers having racked up the needed two thirds majority to start debating the measure (19-9).

The Houston Senator was furious, and carried on like a "potty-mouthed" banshee (Dewhurst scolded the smoldering Whitmire and told him to settle down or be removed).

Whitmire's tantrum however, secured both time and a second vote. Enough time to pull Sen. Carlos Uresti (D-San Antonio) out of his sick bed in a nearby apartment (he had the flu) and assist him to the Senate floor. Demos then had enough votes to block the two-thirds needed by Republicans and the artful plot "fizzled" - final tally 20-11.

Without doubt, Dewhurst is still kicking himself for allowing the second vote. Especially after flim-flamming Demos with a slick "quick" vote, knowing one member was out sick and another in the john.

GREAT QUOTES FROM BOTH HOUSES

Sometimes the most memorable result, from legislative tomfoolery

Off the Record by Ken Clapp

and related "ho-hummery," is a "perfect" quote. Last week - during the upheavals in both houses - we gleaned two such pithy commentaries that will be remembered with appropriate guffaws in the days ahead.

In the House - members have always described Speaker Craddick's general behavior patterns, during the three terms he has "ring-mastered" the lower house, as despotic.

This heavy-handedness escalated, following his unexpected challenge for speaker last January. The resulting revenge tactics Craddick practiced throughout the current session - caused one member (pleading anonymity) to say, when word that an insurgency was "afoot": "I'm not surprised - we all liked him better as a despot (than what he is today)!"

Senate quote was better (actually earthier) and came from Senator Leticia Van De Putte (D-San Antonio), after Sen. Whitmire had scampered back from the privy in time to help scuttle Dewhurst's crafty plan to bring the Voter ID bill to the floor for debate.

Van De Putte said that in the future: "When we go to the bathroom, we're going to take a Republican along with us!"

MOTHER'S DAY GIFT ARRIVES DAY EARLY

Writing a weekly column, many times well in advance of its printing, causes some intervening items to lose their "newsworthy" status. However, we believe the following worth reporting - even after a 12 day break.

Our story involves a Mother's Day gift that one of our Salado "moms" received a day early. She is Billye Fuller and her special gift was news, soon after the polls closed on May 12, that her son Darrell Street had been elected to the Salado School District's Board of Trustees.

Now, all mothers are proud of their kids, but we doubt if many moms ever worked as hard to get a son elected to public office as did Billye. She got on the phone weeks before the election and proceeded to call nearly everyone in the school district.

We understand (from a reliable source) that she not only made hundreds of calls, but several villagers got a second call (for one of two reasons): (A) If the person seemed to "waver" a little (after the first call) about voting for Darrell; or (B) If Billye had enjoyed the first conversation so much - she just wanted to continue the phone-visit!

We talked to Darrell and discovered he was giving his mother full credit for the win. Darrell led the ticket with some 701 votes which equaled 63 percent of the total (1116).

Street's victory was an old-fashioned "home grown" success story propelled by his mother. And who should know better what a guy is made of - than "mom"? Even allowing for an extra-special helping of love (and pride) tossed in for good measure.

So we congratulate Darrell on his achievement. And a "well done" to Billye Fuller for her work as a "one person" phone bank that helped convince six out of every ten voters to select her son as a member of our School Board.

Eagles ousted from
baseball playoffs

Salado Eagles' baseball season came to an end May 18 when the second-ranked Trinity Tigers took the regional quarterfinal game 4-2 in Bryan.

Trinity scored two runs in the first inning on only one hit. A hit batter, a double, a walk, a sacrifice fly and a wild pitch accounted for the runs.

The Tigers increased their lead to 3-0 with a run in the top of the third. A double and a single in the inning accounted for the run.

Salado mounted a rally in the bottom of the third. Garrett Ward reached on an error. Tyler Wright followed with a grounder to the pitcher. Trying to start a double, the throw went out to centerfield and put Eagle runners on first and third.

A passed ball allowed Ward to score Salado's first run and Wright advanced to second base. Seth Collins then lined a triple over the right fielder's head to drive Wright home to bring the score to 3-2.

Trinity pushed across another run in the top of the fifth. The run came on two walks, a single and a wild pitch.

Salado mounted threats in the bottom of the fifth and seventh innings. The Eagles got runners on first and third in both innings with two outs but failed to get the clutch hit in either inning.

Offensively the Eagles collected five hits. Tanner Myers and Seth Collins had two each and Justin Schiller had one.

Kevin Jackson absorbed the loss on the mound. He went five innings, allowing five hits and striking out eight. Sam Van Hoozer the final two innings. He allowed one hit and struck out five.

The Eagles finished the year with a 25-8 record and claimed an Area Championship for the second year in a row.

Senior named National Merit Scholar finalist

By CHRIS MCGREGOR
STAFF WRITER

High School's Blake Hancock has found himself in rather elite company.

Without much fanfare or expectations, Salado Vets through a pool of almost 1.5 million students across the U.S., Hancock was recently named a National Merit Scholar finalist. The finalist designation is reserved for less than seven percent of students, and Hancock's inclusion marks the first placement of an SHS student in the rolls of National Merit finalists.

Blake Hancock

Like many high school students, Hancock took the PSAT his junior year. He did not expect much from the experience, except maybe to gauge how he might fare in his senior year on the actual SAT - the standardized instrument which, along with the ACT, plays such a vital role in the college admissions process.

Soon after, though, he discovered that his score on the exam - which measures critical reading, mathematics and writing - was among the top in the nation, and that he had been named a National Merit semifinalist. The semifinalists are narrowed down even further over the course of the students' senior year, where academic standing and course work, as well as SAT scores and a personal essay are used to determine the finalists, who are then eligible for one of the National Merit scholarships.

Hancock made the cut, and as a result received a scholarship which he will apply to Arizona State University in the fall - a school which, because of Hancock's National Merit status, in turn offered the senior a generous scholarship package which he says was too good to pass up. He tentatively plans to pursue computer science studies.

The entire process caught Hancock off guard. "I was taken by surprise by it, and didn't really know how to react," said Hancock, who admits he's still not sure precisely what his PSAT score was. "I don't know what it was, but it must have been ok."

Blake, the son of Annette and Mike Hancock, should not have been all that surprised by his success, though. He was a four-year participant in UIL, including this year's state title-winning Calculator Team, and last year's Mathematics Team, which placed second at the state meet. He also suited up for the Salado Eagle football squad all four years of high school, and ran Varsity track as a freshman.

A member of the First Baptist Church of Belton, Hancock has also participated in a number of mission trips in recent years.

And despite the honor of being the first Salado student in memory to be named a National Merit finalist, Hancock maintains a humble perspective on his accomplishment. "I just give credit to God for all the blessings in my life," he said.

When I hear the voices of concern spreading around the Village over the proposed changes to the future route of I.H. 35 through Salado, I can't help but think of the apostle's words: "...what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal" (II Cor. 4:18). While it's o.k. to note what's going on around us, let's keep uppermost in our awareness that none of this is permanent. Understand that God wants our primary focus to be on issues much greater and higher than these-- issues of eternity.

Gloyna wins environmental science award

A Salado student was awarded top honors for her project at the 2007 Exxon-Mobil Texas Science and Engineering Fair in San Antonio.

Tara Gloyna, a 12th-grader who attends Temple High School, won first place in environmental sciences and analysis in the senior division.

Methodist hosts Hispanic evening

Salado United Methodist Church extends an invitation to all Hispanic friends and neighbors in the area for an evening of food and fellowship at the church parking lot and lawn.

The celebration will be 5-7 p.m. May 27 at the church on Royal St.

The 21st annual state competition, presented by the Texas Science Careers Consortium and hosted by The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA), recognized all students placing first, second, third or receiving an honorable mention in the fair's 19 competitive categories. In addition, more than $2.4 million in scholarships were awarded to students from Our Lady of the Lake University, Texas Tech University, The University of the Incarnate Word, The University of Texas at Arlington, and UTSA.

The competition drew 1,300 students from across Texas to compete in two divisions -- junior division (grades 6-8) and senior division (grades 9-12). Grand prize winners in the senior division received all-expense paid trips allowing them to compete in the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair (Intel ISEF), which will be held May 13-19, 2007 in Albuquerque, NM. The top 10 percent of competitors in the junior division were invited to apply for the Discovery Channel Young Scientist Challenge in Washington, D.C. in October.

"We are proud to support a variety of outstanding math and science initiatives, such as the ExxonMobil Texas Science and Engineering Fair, which help prepare our young people to take on the challenges of tomorrow," said Truman Bell, ExxonMobil's senior program officer for education and diversity.

"Each student who participated in this competition is truly a winner, and we salute them for their hard work and dedication. Whether they are advancing to a national competition or striving for a better understanding of the world around them, participation in scientific inquiry helps hone their skills in research, problem solving and critical thinking."

out of medal contention in the 100m hurdles, placing fourth, and was the anchor leg on Salado's state-qualifying 1600m relay team, which also placed fourth. She advanced to the Regional round as a sophomore in the 300m hurdles, and qualified for State as a junior in the 100m hurdles, as well as the 300m event which she won. In addition, Rooney was a four-year letterman on the volleyball team, and ran cross country for two years.

She is the recipient of multiple scholarships, including awards from the Salado Athletic Booster Club, the National Honor Society, the Salado Area Republican Women, and the Salado Education Foundation.

Rooney has been admitted to Harvard University, and will begin her freshman year in September. She plans on majoring in mathematics at the undergraduate level, and will look to pursue a postgraduate degree in nutrition. She will also compete as a member of Harvard's track and field team, in the 400m hurdles. After college, Rooney says she would like to work at the U.S. Olympic Training Center.

She says the prospect of attending an institution such as Harvard is a bit intimidating, but that she looks forward to the challenging academic environment and being surrounded by classmates who are highly-driven and focused on education.

It is her competitive drive, in fact, which she says has played a big part in her success. "There are a lot of people who are smarter than me, and a lot of people in track who are faster than me, but I am really competitive and work hard," she said. She attests that her family, and mentors at Salado such as track and field coach Cindy Mewhinney, have played an important role in nurturing her competitiveness and drive. "I don't think I would have been as successful if Coach Mewhinney hadn't pushed me and told me I could win," she said.

She also points to the challenging classes at Salado High School, and the quality of her teachers, as contributors to her success.

Grainger Esch, of Salado Silver Spur Theatre, performs in Pace Park.

Mentors, students celebrate 1st year

An end-of-school event for the Salado Mentors and their sponsored fifth grade students was held at Pace Park on May 22.

Grainger Esch - of the local Silver Spur Theatre - provided the entertainment, while volunteers and school staff provided the food and group activities.

The event was attended by students and mentors participating in the program as well as some parents, members of the Salado Mentors Board and several school staff.

Salado's best known clown performed for a highly appreciative audience. He also fielded questions from the students, mentors, and school staff. The students asked about his balancing act that features a ukulele resting on his chin for several seconds. This discussion evolved into a challenge for the clown to balance larger objects. Eventually a trash can and finally a 6' long table became part of his balancing act to the delight of the crowd.

Salado Mentors is a school-based mentoring program matching community volunteers with approved fifth grade students. For information on Salado Mentors, contact the Superintendent's office at 254-947-6901.

Salado Western Heritage Days set for June 16 and 17

The Salado Chamber of Commerce will host its first "Salado Western Heritage Days" to celebrate the town's past on June 16 and 17. Activities will commence on Saturday the 16th with heritage artisans centered on the Salado Civic Center grounds starting at 10 a.m. Craftsmen will be demonstrating knife making, whip making, whittling, rustic woodworking, chair caning, rope making, quilting and painting.

There will be cub scouts demonstrating rope making and a trick roper as well. We will learn about Indian saddles and stories.

Misslette, the singing cowgirl, and Cowboy Rod will perform their own special duo of music, poems and stories beginning at 2 p.m. in the Gazebo at the Civic Center. Misslette has been nominated by the Academy of Western Artists for Western Female Singer of the Year. Cowboy Rod is the first Lariat Laureate of Cowboy Poetry. Donna Ingham, tale teller, of Texas stories will perform at 3 in the Gazebo.

A native Texan throughout, Misslette, the Singing Cowgirl has performed professionally since the late 1960s. She has performed in a wide variety of musical formats, ranging from solo, duo, trio, seven-piece-twin-fiddle dance band up to a 20-piece orchestra. Her specialty is Western Music; songs depicting the cowboy's life on the trail

(and the Silver Screen). In addition, she also yodels. She also performs Swing, Jazz, Pop, Blues, Blue Grass, Gospel, Classic Country and Spanish.

Misslette says she loves the classics, adding some Spanish songs to her extensive repertoire (approximately 1,000-plus songs) tying in a true Texas heritage. Her fourth cd, "Down Mexico Way" contains songs in Spanish along with popular songs sharing a common theme of love between cowboys and señoritas. Many liken her voice quality to that of the legendary Patsy Cline, while others have called her "the female Marty Robbins." She is adept at reciting cowboy poetry, comfortably interacts with her audiences, and is passionate about her music and life-style.

On a personal note, Misslette is also the owner of a Thoroughbred and Quarter horse breeding farm, "Rivers of Living Water Stables," in Alvin, where she lives in "the little cowgirl house on the plains."

The weekend's activities will restart at the Pavilion in Pace Park with a barbecue dinner in the evening of June 16 served with old time western music. Misslette and Cowboy Rod will be providing entertainment, as well depicting cowboy life on the trail.

A country picnic in addition to entertainment will be held June 17 in the Park after church. Misslette and Cowboy Rod will be on hand. Cowboys will be greeting visitors to Salado during the summer at 13 locations throughout the community. In an attempt to have the Old West meet the arts, visitors may stroll down Main Street to view the various interpretations of the cowboys decorated for the summer season.

The Texas Tycoon Collection

The Salado Sawmill, an artisan's workshop and gallery, has created a unique line of custom furniture: The Texas Tycoon Collection. Big, bold and as rugged as a Texas oilman, this line reflects the character and style of these demanding gentlemen. No Victorian frills here: just clean lines, chiseled features and big proportions. While the style of these pieces reflects Texas' roots, it also demonstrates a flair for the dramatic through the use of burl, bird's eye and quarter-sawn lumber. Picture here is the Library Cabinet in the Tycoon Collection. This piece is made from bird's eye maple. Note the shop-made crown molding, distinctive base and towering proportions -- a showpiece for today's tycoon, oil or otherwise.

Master Craftsman Robert Pascoe makes these pieces at the Salado Sawmill, allowing the customer to specify the dimensions, wood type, color and hardware. Because Pascoe works the project from design through build and finish, you are assured of quality at every step. Just bring in a picture or sketch of something that you're interested in and Pascoe will guide you through the design process. Pascoe has several other lines, including Arts and Crafts and General Store collection.

The Sawmill, a division of XtraWorX, LLC, is located at 409 Salado Plaza at the entrance to Mill Creek in Salado. Call Bob at 254-947-0137.

The “Sizzle” and the “Steak”

As I wrote last week in this column, we are going to spend the next month on re-educating ourselves on the difference between marketing “sizzle” and scientific “steak” in the health, wellness and fitness industries. I will be using concepts gleaned from a successful “wellness” magazine targeting the baby-boomer population. It is not a “rag-mag,” or even a popular body-building magazine. This magazine is what I would consider one of the more “safe” wellness magazines on the market. Unfortunately, all of these companies need to make a buck and they all seem to have hidden agenda.

What was the “sizzle” for the marketing ploy? Drop a couple sizes in a couple months. Honestly, this isn’t the most obnoxious piece of marketing I have ever seen, as this is actually possible if you are disciplined enough to stay on a proper nutritional and exercise program. Unfortunately, the problem is the article itself. Here is the supposed “steak”: A scientific based exercise and nutrition program that uses “targeted muscle development, which firms and smooths underlying tissue.” The article is entitled: “Wipe Out Cellulite.” Uh-oh.

What are some of the basics on cellulite? First of all, we might be better off calling it, “bulging fat cells.” Cellulite is made of strands of fibrous tissue that connect the skin to deeper tissue layers and also separate compartments that contain fat cells. When fat cells increase in size, these compartments bulge and produce a waffled appearance of the skin.

Though the amount of fat on your body is predominately based on your lifestyle, the distribution of fat is based primarily on your genetic make-up. So, you will need to drop the proper amount of fat over your entire body to reduce, if not completely remove, the amount of

LIFESTYLE AND WELLNESS

By Kevin McCauley

cellulite on your body. To teach someone that they can isolate cellulite is, well, just short of health and wellness blasphemy.

This workout promises to have you “tone, smooth and firm.” You realize these are all just buzz words and they mean pretty much exactly the same thing! The good exercises in this article are: squatting and lunging! I have a nearly 70 year old client in town that can do: deep squats, one-legged squats, squats with load, front-lunges, back-lunges, side-lunges and traveling lunges. The point is, if you have low expectations of yourself, you are most certainly going to meet those expectations. Raise your expectations of yourself and go for it!

The poor exercises in this article are: “curtsy and kick,” “plie sweep,” “glute squeeze,” and of course, the infamous “bun burner.”

Squatting and lunging are excellent moves and everybody should be able to do them. If you want to develop your musculoskeletal and cardiovascular system, you need to squat and lunge. There are enough variations of squats and lunges that they are beneficial for every level of conditioning level. If you want to waste your time you will continue to follow your instant gratification instincts and believe the lie of “spot reduction” and follow a program that spends the majority of your energy curtsyng, kicking, sweeping, glute-squeezing and bun burning. What a mess!

Do you want to defeat cellulite once and for all? I hope I don’t have to mention in this article that creams and wraps will only be successful short-term and in many instances they are dangerous!

So, how do we really dump the cellulite? Simple. Add muscle and drop body-fat. Focus on the larger muscle groups during exercise and be disciplined 90 percent of the time on your nutritional program. You want success? There it is. It will take some time, but realize you didn’t develop cellulite overnight either. Being healthy, well and fit takes time, energy and work, but if you are smart about it, anybody can do it, and everybody should!

Road to Austin makes for a great trip

By Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

On any given Saturday night in Austin, a music lover can find Tejano, blues, jazz, Texas rock, traditional country, British Invasion, and even opera somewhere, but to find all those forms of music together in one place on one night, is something special and -- for lack of a better word -- unique.

Musicians from a multitude of influences came together for a four-hour celebration of the impact of music on Austin and the impact of Austin on music, culminating in honoring fellow Texan Kris Kristofferson with the inaugural "Texas Music Legend" award.

Musical director Stephen Bruton, who has played guitar for Kristofferson and Joe Ely among many others, arrived on stage at the Auditorium Shores venue in a vintage Porsche and was joined in the house band by 10 other musicians and singers who backed the impressive lineup of local legends and those who will be the next generation of music heroes.

Bruton commanded the 11-piece house band that backed fan favorites such as Bonnie Raitt, Joe Ely, Delbert McClinton and Malford Milligan as well as rising stars such as Ruthie Foster and James Hand. Musicians took their turn on the stage that recalled the architecture and feel of the capital's first large musical venue: The Millet Opera House.

While The Road to Austin: The Live Music Capital of the World showcase swirled the aesthetics of the historic Millet Opera House into a mix of high-end sound and graphics, it was not without its faux pas, chiefly the giant 30 foot by 50 foot screen behind the stage that did not work.

But who needs visual effects when the music is what matters, as it clearly did Saturday night.

From start to finish, The Road to Austin was about music -- more precisely about music that should and must be heard live and loud. Whether it was the gospel-influenced praise of Ruthie Foster, the British Invasion blues of Ian McLagan or the Latin music of Joel Guzman and Sarah Fox, all the performances had this in common: energy, effervescence and excitement.

Even crusty old Kristofferson, whose songs are best known by other singers such as Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash, Ray Price and Janis Joplin, was touched by the respect shown him by the dozens of artists and thousands of fans gathered for the evening.

Frankly, Kristofferson's deep baritone voice was off on the evening. It cracked and broke during his performances of the classic songs of country that he penned: "Sunday Morning Coming Down,"

"Help Me Make it Through the Night" "For the Good Times" and, at the end of the evening, "Me and Bobby McGee."

Yet, it is easy to forgive a man for his voice cracking a bit when he has inked some of the most beautiful lyrics in music of any genre: "Lay your head upon my pillow, Hold your warm and tender body close to mine, Hear the whisper of the rain drops flowing soft against the window, And make believe you love me one more time. For the good times."

While Kristofferson, Raitt, Milligan, McClinton, Ely, Eric Johnson might be names quickly recognized by most folks, some of the relative unheard-ofs taking the stage finished their brief sets with new fans. Chief among those were Ruthie Foster, a pint-sized woman with a voice as big as her native state, and James Hand, who hails from West, Texas and who harkens such comparisons to Hank Williams (Senior not Junior) and George

Summer Reading Club returns

By KAREN SUE KINNISON

It seems that while you and I were happily reading along, summer snuck up on us.

And, guess what?---the kids are out of school! But before you run screaming, know that Miss Emmy has a solution. The Salado Public Library presents the Texas Summer Reading Club beginning in June. So get out the calendar and mark those Mondays.

The Texas Summer Reading Club for 2007 is called Sail Away with Books and will be held on each Monday in June at 11 a.m. This is a free program for children up to the fifth grade.

Miss Emmy and our Children's Library have gone all out. We will be treated to all kinds of entertainment geared to interest children in using their imagination and creativity along with reading.

Road

Jones that he seems to be channeling their spirits. True, Jones is still alive, but his spirit has long been gone from the country music scene. Hand came to the stage in cowboy hat and cowboy fringe shirt to belt out "Little Bitty Slip," a great raucous drinking song and then crooned his way through "Since You Stopped Loving Me, Then So Did I." Hand's performance of these two staple style of Country music (not the garbage that passes for Country on CMT or most "new country" radio stations), will soon land his new CD "The Truth Will Set You Free" in many new homes.

Ruthie Foster is diminutive, but owns a huge voice that shouted out praise during her second song, "Heal Yourself," which she labeled a prayer before the celebration and which she performed with the Unity Church Choir.

While on the topic of powerful voices, it would be remiss not to mention Kara Johnston, an Austin Lyric Opera singer, who

Check It Out

News & Notes from Salado Public Library

There will be storytellers, jugglers, unicyclists, very talented dogs and much more. Take-home crafts will be featured and prizes will be awarded at the end of June. Please join us 11 a.m. June 4, 11, 18 and 25 here at the library in the children's room, for a fun-filled and very un-library-like noisy good time!

The first program will feature Maria Smith, who will do an cool, rhythmic, up-beat entertaining musical show featuring puppets.

The next program will feature wonderful storyteller, Carl Anderson,

Ph.D. and professor at University of Texas. Dr. Anderson will delight the children with folk tales such as "Leopard's Daughter" and others. Dr. Anderson has earned the title of "Central Texas' Best Storyteller." Carl's style is one that upholds the art and history of storytelling.

On June 18 "Chicken Dog" is back by popular demand. If you haven't seen Chicken Dog, you have been sadly deprived in your life. This show will tickle your funny bone with a performing macaw--Scarlet, two trick dogs, lots of juggling and lots of amazing tricks on a unicycle! Yep, I said a unicycle. Don't miss this adorable menagerie of mirth and merriment.

June 25 will feature Connie Coyote spinning around on her one-wheeled horse, Calamity, and performing juggling feats. She is a first-class comedienne that will certainly have the kids in an uproar.

The goal of the Texas Summer Reading Program Club is to encourage our children to read for pleasure, to help them maintain and improve their reading skills, to encourage lifelong readers and library users, and to establish reading as a foundation for academic success. How great is that?

completely won over the rock-and-roll audience, with her performance accompanied by the Tosca String Quartet. Beautiful and stirring, Johnston's voice lifted the audience to new heights, even if the raucous crowd of several thousand people was at first unimpressed. By the end of her brief performance, Johnston had won over the audience almost to a man.

Only in Austin can one musical celebration bring together folk dancers, Latino poet Raul Salinas reciting his words with lilting jazz music in the background, Unity Church Singers, new faces to the Austin scene, old faces, familiar faces and legendary musicians like Bonnie Raitt and Kris Kristofferson all in one place and at one time.

All of it was free and made possible by Freescale Semiconductor, an Austin-based company.

All of the performers joined Kristofferson on stage at the finale for his version of "Me and Bobby McGee," made famous almost four decades by fellow Texan Janis Joplin.

Honestly, though, a discerning ear would notice the absence on stage of a few genres of music: so-called hip hop, new country and pop.

Thank God for small favors and Thank God for Austin.

OnStar in the Lone Star

by Tumbleweed
Smith

My daughter-in-law swears by OnStar, the computerized tracking device that can help you in all sorts of ways. She says she uses it way too much because it's so convenient.

"You can just say an address and OnStar will tell you how to get there," she says.

The other day my friend Jerry Worthy volunteered the use of his new GMC Acadia to take five of us to a meeting in a city 100 miles away. About 40 miles into the trip, one of the passengers needed to make a phone call to somebody at our destination. He tried to use his cell phone, but he was out of range.

Jerry, who is extremely proud of his new vehicle, said, "We'll let OnStar make the call."

He did whatever is necessary to get the OnStar operator on the line. She happened to be female. By her accent, we could tell she was probably from a place halfway around the world. In fact, she might be in a place halfway around the world while she was talking to us. The sound quality was poor. She sounded muffled and there was a slight echo at times.

Her initial greeting was cordial: "How do you do, today, Mr. Worthy, how can OnStar be of service to you today?"

Jerry Worthy: I need to make a telephone call. He gave her the number.

OnStar: Very well, Mr. Worthy. You are not authorized to use the OnStar telephone yet as it has not been fully made operational. In order for you to use the service, you need to purchase a hundred minutes of telephone time to get 30 minutes of free phone service. The cost is $14.99. Would you like to go ahead and purchase the telephone time?

Jerry: Yes.

OnStar: I need your full name, Mr. Worthy. Please give it to me now.

Jerry: J-E-R-R-Y W-O-R-T-H-Y, he carefully spelled.

OnStar: Is that with a G? G-E-R-Y?

Jerry, getting embarrassed and a little frustrated: No. It is with a J. And my name has 2 R's.

He spelled it again. J-E-R-R-Y W-O-R-T-H-Y.

The OnStar operator spelled the name back and got it correct this time. Jerry told her she had it right.

OnStar: I need your correct address, Mr. Worthy. Would you give it to me now?

Jerry told her his address, which happens to be on the Snyder highway.

OnStar: Would you please spell Snyder for me?

Jerry, losing patience: S-N-Y-D-E-R.

OnStar: And what is your phone number, Mr. Worthy?

Jerry told her and she repeated it back, missing only a couple of numbers. Jerry corrected her.

OnStar: What is your email address, Mr. Worthy?

Jerry gave it to her. It included the word "suddenlink" in his email address. OnStar had a lot of trouble getting that word correct. Jerry must have repeated the phrase a dozen times and spelled it out. Each time he spelled it she would read it back to him. Finally, Jerry said, "Do you speak English? I'm going to give you my email address real slow one more time and please don't say it back to me. I'm tired of having to correct you."

OnStar: How would you like to pay for the $14.99?

Jerry: Credit card.
OnStar: May I have the number, please?

Jerry kept giving it to her until she finally had the correct numbers, expiration date and security code. By the time she got that information, we had reached our destination and didn't need to make the phone call. The wonders of modern technology.
