Thanks, Brattons

Rainy Day Fun

What is this strange stuff? Royce and Jenny Wiggin splash around during the downpour Sept. 23. The wet stuff has been a strange and rare sight in Salado as well as the rest of Texas, enduring its fifth straight year of drought. Salado averaged about 2.05 inches on Sunday. So far this year, Salado has had a total of 25.57 inches of rain. The annual rainfall average for the area in the last 12 years is 26.32 inches. The highest amount of rainfall was 40.22 inches in 1991 and the lowest was in 1988 with a total of 13.19. These averages were figured through September of each year.

Race for Salado board of aldermen draws 8

With almost two weeks left for filing in the Village of Salado election, eight people have filed for five spots open on the Board of Aldermen. Two people have filed for mayor: Charlotte Douglass and Carse Williams.

Filing as candidates for aldermen are John Hall, Michael Cooper, Dr. Raymond Carver, Forrest Holloway, Vic Means, Jackie Mills, Jill Shipman and Rick Ashe.

No one has filed for election to the position of marshal.

The election Nov. 7 will fill the positions of mayor, five aldermen and a Marshall.

Citizens interested in filing as a candidate for election to one of these positions may pick up applications from the Bell County Judge's office in the Bell County Courthouse in Belton or from the Bell County Clerk's Office in the Bell County Annex in Belton.

Candidates must file for election with County Judge Jon Burrows. The last day to file as a candidate in the election is 5 p.m. Oct. 10.

To run for election as mayor, Marshall or alderman, a person must be a resident of the incorporated Village of Salado for at least six months prior to the election.

Early voting in the village election will be weekdays Oct. 23-Nov. 3 at the Salado Civic Center.

Election day, polls will be open at the Salado Civic Center 7 a.m.-7 p.m.

Only registered voters living within the two-square-mile boundaries of the Village of Salado may vote in the village elections. The boundaries are on display at the Salado Civic Center and the Salado Village Voice.

Following are profiles of four of the candidates who have filed: Rick Ashe, Dr. Raymond Carver, Jackie Mills and Jill Shipman.

Profiles on the remaining candidates will appear next week.

Rick Ashe

Rick Ashe has lived in Salado with his wife Shannon for 10 years, moving here from Waco when he took a job with the Temple Police Department.

He and Shannon have one daughter, Adrienne, who is two years old.

Shannon owns Salado Wedding Wishes and is a member of the Salado

Chamber of Commerce. The Ashes attend First Baptist Church of Salado.

The former U.S. Army MP is now the support services supervisor for the Temple Police Department, which puts him in charge of all civilian employees of the Department and makes him the Department's public information officer.

Ashe was in the Military Police during his stint in the U.S. Army (1981-84), after which he attended the Police Academy at McLennan Community College.

He worked three years with the Midway Police Department before accepting a job in the Temple Police Department.

Ashe says that his experience with the Temple Police Department has given him the leadership qualities needed by the Salado Village board of aldermen.

During his tenure with the Temple Police, Ashe has been a member of the board of directors of the Texas Municipal Police Association for seven years. He was the president of the 7,000-member organization in 1997-98.

As treasurer of the group, he oversaw a $1 million annual budget.

"I have worked with a board of directors composed of a diverse population," Ashe said. "I have learned how to work with a board of directors with a wide range of opinions. I know how to build consensus."

Ashe said that he thinks the essential job for the new Board of Aldermen is to "begin with planning and zoning to protect the historic look and feel of the village."

"We now have the opportunity to use ordinances to determine how we will grow in the future," he said.

The Village board should also look at "how we can protect and clean up our creek."

Another important area for the village is police protection, Ashe said. He added that he thinks the Village can initially contract with the County for these services.

To pay for services such as police protection and road maintenance can be paid for through a one-percent local sales tax levy. "There should be no need for a property tax if we limit what areas of service we need from the local government," he said.

"We already have many things in place," he said. "Most of the services that a city government would provide are already being provided by other entities."

The role of the Village Board should be to determine where and how the village grows "and if it needs to grow," he said.

The Village should also contact the outlying areas to determine if those residents wanted to be annexed by Salado, especially areas to the north that are being encroached on by Belton.

Ashe says he is running for alderman because "we can be on the ground floor of creating our village. I want my daughter Adrienne to grow up here and want to do what I can to help create a great village."

Dr. Raymond Carver

Dr. Raymond Carver and wife Barbara moved to Salado five years ago, when Dr. Carver retired from college teaching after 33 years.

Dr. Carver was the Head of the Fine Arts Department at Angelo State University. He also taught at Salem College in North Carolina and Auburn in Alabama.

Dr. Carver was named the 1999 Distinguished Retired Professor at ASU. While he was director, the Arts at ASU program was the winner of the "Best in State" award by the Texas Arts Alliance. He has produced three events at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. He is also the winner of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Cultural Achievement Award.

He is active in several arts and humanities programs in the area, including being a board member of Living Room Theatre of Salado, Institute for the Humanities at Salado, Bell County Museum, Judy and A.C. Greene Literary Festival, which was the top-funded program by the Texas Commission for the Arts last year and the Central Texas Orchestral Society. He is also active in the Salado Village Friends Mentoring Program and COPS (Citizens on Patrol) program in Salado.

Dr. Carver said that the most important role to be played by the first Mayor and Aldermen elected in Salado will be to "define the economics of growth and change in Salado."

Scandal that changed Texas politics resurfaces thanks to lottery winner

The name John Osorio probably means very little, if anything, to Texans below the 45 year age level other than a moment of passing interest when word flashed across the news lines last week that Osorio had won the largest lottery jackpot in state history.

Thirty years ago, Osorio together with Frank Sharp, played key roles in a scandal that destroyed the political futures of a number of Texas' top elected officials and which later helped a reticent and well liked Uvalde rancher win the Governor's mansion - all over an event known in the early '70s as "Sharpstown".

The tale began after Sharp founded the Sharpstown State Bank in Houston. His friend Osorio, President of the Sharp owned National Bankers Life Insurance company in Dallas did, from time to time, serve as a lobbyist for Sharp.

Due to federal banking requirements (FDIC) Sharp needed stronger dollar reserves in his new bank in order to expand his high dollar loan program.

Osorio thought up a legislative plan that would create a Texas Deposit Insurance Corporation that hopefully would give state banks a monetary edge over the national banks.

Preston Smith, then Governor of the State; Ben Barnes, the youngest Lieutenant Governor in state history and Gus Mutscher, speaker of the House of Representatives plus legislators by the dozens were wined and dined in an effort to get the proposed banking bill introduced and approved.

The bill did pass with flying colors but Smith, on advice from former Governor Allan Shivers, threw a kink into the plan when he surprisingly vetoed the bill. Shortly thereafter the Securities and Exchange Commission began investigating certain stock sales and loans that were alleged to be part of the Sharp-Osorio scheme.

All this took place during the 1969 special session of the state legislature. Many months later, on January 18, 1971 the SEC broke the case open. That was one day before Smith and Barnes were inaugurated to start their second term in office.

For some time a group of "bomb throwing" reformists, who were elected in 1970, began howling for blood and investigations thanks to the scandal that now had a name - "Sharpstown".

Nicknamed the "dirty thirty," the group including Frances "Sissy" Farenthold loudly demanded reform while using the legislature as a forum to liberalize a fairly conservative state government.

Mutscher, besieged with a pending indictment for his part in Sharpstown, tried to corral the reformers but failed and soon was facing trial. He later was convicted and resigned. Still, later his sentence was probated but he was out of high state politics for good.

Osorio was also convicted and went to jail. Preston Smith was labeled an "unindicted co-conspirator" and Ben Barnes, considered the number one "comer" in Texas political circles was tarnished for his perceived, but unproven part in the Sharpstown mess.

Smith and Barnes hit the end of their political road in 1972 when Dolph Briscoe,

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

the largest private landowner in the state, entered the gubernatorial race and defeated not only Smith who was running for a third term but also Barnes who had been heralded by Lyndon Johnson as the next Governor of Texas and a prime candidate for President in the decade ahead.

"Sissy" Farenthold also entered the 1972 fray as a wild eyed reformer; thus, rounding out the ballot at seven including three unknowns, all of which forced a runoff between Farenthold and Briscoe following the first primary. Barnes placed third as he closed his once almost unlimited political future. Gov. Smith came in fourth and also ended his career in politics.

Briscoe edged Farenthold by a scant 200,000 votes out of nearly two million cast in the heated runoff contest. The '72 general election got even muddier when a third party entered the picture - Raza Unida led by Ramsey Muniz who skimmed off many a Mexican vote that had previously been counted as "sure" by Democrats.

The general election of 1972 was a textbook political horse race. It was 15 hours after the polls had closed before Briscoe learned he had slipped past both Muniz and Republican Henry Grover by the skinniest of votes - less than a hundred thousand out of three and a half million cast!

The very next legislative session, with the reform movement on the rise and Briscoe having pledged to open up government - the "Open Meetings and Open Records" bills became law and for the first time in the state's history the public was legally permitted to see and read most of what was taking place under the capitol dome.

Another first marked the Briscoe years when he was inaugurated for a second term in January of 1975 as the first governor to serve the newly created four year term of office. He ran for a third term in 1978 and was defeated by John Hill who later lost to the first Republican Governor since reconstruction - Bill Clements.

The Briscoe forces were largely responsible for Clements' victory thanks to their bitter hatred of Hill whom they felt had pulled every dirty trick in the book to defeat Briscoe.

Looking back - all it took to change the very nature of Texas politics - making it more open and later setting up a true two party system, while at the same time destroying the future of three of the state's top politicians - Barnes, Smith and Mutscher, were two men - Frank Sharp and John Osorio.

And now - three decades later, like the denouement in a cheap novel, Osorio has resurfaced as winner of last week's lottery prize of nearly $35 million.

Just goes to show you that despite the passage of time - honesty, even by way of state approved gambling, appears to be the most profitable policy - especially in Texas politics.

That's -30-

Volunteer Fire Department appeals to citizens for much needed equipment

Dear Editor:

We want to thank the citizens of Salado for their past generosity. With their support we were able to secure a loan, for the purchase of three new fire trucks. These trucks include a 2,350-gallon tanker, which serves as a mobile water supply. Also, two Ford F-550 trucks, these vehicles serve as quick attack units for brush and grass fires, and structures as well. We feel this makes the Salado Fire Department the best-equipped department in Bell County, if not the entire state!

The department fleet now consists of a 1993 Class A Pumper, 1996 Medium Duty Rescue EMS Response Vehicle, 1999 Tanker/Mobile Water Supply, and two 1999 Booster/Quick Attack Units.

As you can see this is a fleet to be proud of, but unfortunately a fleet like this does not come without costs. The annual loan payment for these new trucks is $30,000. In addition to the loan payment, we have other costs such as fuel, vehicle maintenance, EMS supplies, fire equipment, radio equipment, training and insurance.

We also face the cost of replacing our cardiac monitor defibrillator. We have been notified by the manufacturer that the unit is no longer in production and will soon be outdated. This represents a significant cost in itself. Initial inquiries as to a replacement unit are in excess of $20,000.

As our community grows, the demand for quality EMS and fire protection increases as well. This has resulted in an increased number of responses by our department. In the first six months of this year we have had a 50 percent increase in calls! This means more expenses to the department in all areas.

As we have done in years past, we are coming to you for your support. Just as we stand ready to help you at any given time, we hope you are willing to help us in this time of need.

Thank you for your continued support.

The Officers and Members of the Salado Fire Department.

"There is no way we can avoid growth and change," he said, "with the Interstate corridor continuing to develop daily."

Dr. Carver says that the village administration will be expected to "provide leadership and direction, decide what should be done as needs arise, plan for the well-being of future generations review and evaluate performance on a regular basis and protect the value of our property and unique way of life here."

The first job, Dr. Carver says, is "the village administration must invent itself, observing laws and precedents for Type B General Law Municipalities."

"Then an income system to maintain governance must be established, probably a one percent sales tax increase and utility franchise fees (payable by utility companies, not property owners)," he says, "but no property tax for the foreseeable future!"

After establishing income, he adds, "the new administration must budget and moderate spending to insure basic services are provided for as well as services required to maintain the character of the Village. There's a lot of talk about Salado's character for good reason! I believe Salado is unique in this state and nation, and I -- as most folks I know -- feel it must stay that way as we deal with growth and change."

Dr. Carver worked with Vic Means on the ad hoc committee for Salado's Historical Society to investigate operations of small towns in Central Texas. "I learned how important and yet how unpretentious city administrations can be," he said. "Aldermen who don't receive salaries for civic service can pretty much be depended on to govern themselves and others moderately -- or they don't get reelected."

Dr. Carver says he wants to serve on the Board of Aldermen because "I've made some of the best friends I've ever had in my life here. I've learned to respect the attitudes and civility of most of the folks who live here. Anyway, my family's here. What else could motivate a person more?"

Dr. Carver lives in Salado with Barbara, his wife of 42 years. Their daughter Libba also lives in Salado with her family, husband Steve Skarnulis and twins Quinn and Carver.

JACKIE MILLS

Jackie Mills has been active in the village of Salado since moving here with her husband Denver in 1985.

She has been the president of the Salado Public Library, served two years as Salado Art Fair Chair for the Salado Chamber of Commerce and has served several years on the Tablerock Festival of Salado board, where she has been the president.

The author of "Salado Legends," Mills has worked to promote the history of Salado as well as the arts in Salado.

She is active in writing children's books, outdoor musical dramas, lyrics for songs, children's plays, participatory murder mysteries, newspaper articles and making presentations to school children throughout the Southwest.

She has also served on the Cultural Activities Center Board of Directors, the Salado Education Foundation Board of Directors, the Generating Ideas for Festivals in Texas (GIFT) committee and the Salado Committee for the Bell County Sesquicentennial Celebration.

Mills has received many awards for her work, including the following: Outstanding Community Volunteer from the City Federation of Women's Clubs (Temple); Mary Steele Service Award from the Contemporaries; The Louzella Rose Barclay Meritorious Award for Plays; Texas-Wide Writers' Competition Award for Poetry, Central Texas Woman of Distinction Award from the Girl Scouts of America and induction of her outdoor musical drama Salado Legends into the Library of Congress.

Mills states that she has a Top Ten list for the village of Salado.

The first is "with community input, set Village goals," she says.

The second is "to keep working services in place and to seek grants for needed services."

Third, the village board should investigate the collection of fees, franchise taxes, hotel/motel taxes.

The village board should adopt a realistic budget.

The village should "bring the rest of Salado into the newly incorporated Village as soon as possible under the rules and regulations set forth by the state."

It is important that the village board finds offices for the Village of Salado.

In all its endeavors,

Mills says, the village board should "be frugal! We should operate without exorbitant property taxes."

The role of the first board of aldermen, Mills said, is to "set a foundation for Salado's government that will be flexible and livable for present as well as future residents of Salado."

Jackie and Denver have two grown daughters, Nancy Mackey and Susan Humiston, both of Temple, and three grandchildren.

JILL SHIPMAN

Jill Shipman has lived in Salado since moving here from Dallas in 1998.

She and husband Johnny designed and built a new bed and breakfast, StoneCreek Settlement, on College Hill, where cabins grace the property.

As a homeowner and business owner in the village, Shipman is concerned by growth in Salado.

"The first year (of the board of aldermen), there will be lots of decisions and work to be done," she said. "I want a voice in those decisions because I want Salado to stay the same as much as we can."

"We are in a high-growth corridor," she added, "and we have to plan for the future. I want to be a part of that planning."

Planning for the future has to include zoning, according to Shipman. "We should sit down as a group and decide what's best for all of Salado and go from there," she said.

"With zoning, we can retain control. I don't want uncontrolled growth, but with careful planning we will all be winners."

"I want to keep the great sense of community that we have here," she says, "but if we grow too fast, I'm afraid we'll lose that."

In addition to facing issues of growth, the first job for the village board will be to generate income to manage the village. "I think we can generate enough money from a local sales tax, a small hotel/motel tax and perhaps a utility franchise fee to fund the government," she said. "I am not at all in favor of

Protecting yourself on the Internet

John Cornyn

Attorney General of Texas

Q: Each day I receive several emails advertising porn sites. I have young children in the house and do not want them exposed to such things. Are you doing anything to put these sites out of business?

A: The Internet remains almost entirely unregulated, creating ample opportunity for those who choose to engage in undesirable enterprises. It is important to remember that activities which are illegal in the real world are also illegal in cyberspace-like child pornography.

As Attorney General, I take seriously my responsibility to protect the children of this state. To help combat child pornography on the Internet, my office has staff members dedicated to prosecuting those who post illegal images on the Web.

The Internet Child Pornography Unit was created in 1998 through a grant from the Governor's office. Specially trained investigators and prosecutors work with local law enforcement officials to investigate and prosecute those suspected of possessing child pornography.

If you receive an e-mail that appears to be advertising a Web site that contains child pornography, you can file a report directly with the Internet Child Pornography Unit through the "Criminal Justice" section of our Web site at www.oag.state.tx.us.

Last year, my office joined forces with the Texas Internet Service Provider Association (TISPA) to create guidelines for reporting suspected child pornography on the Web. Members of TISPA now have guidelines that they can follow to report possible cases of child pornography to my office for investigation.

Now, when an Internet customer reports allegations of child pornography to his or her Internet Service Provider, that provider can in turn report it to our office. This provides a means for Internet Service Providers to police their own networks and protect their customers.

Q: I get dozens of unsolicited e-mails each day in my e-mail account. Is there any way to stop these people? The messages are usually advertisements for get-rich-quick schemes.

A: Everyone who has an e-mail account has received unsolicited messages, or "Spam." Not only are these messages annoying, they can take forever to download and they clog e-mail accounts. These messages are about get-rich-quick or work-at-home schemes. Others offer phony university diplomas or fraudulent international driver's licenses.

Many messages contain instructions telling the recipient to reply to the message and type "remove" in the subject line. But this rarely works. In fact, it sends a message that your address is an active account and opens you up to receiving more spam.

Many Internet Service Providers have anti-spam policies. Check with your provider to see how to file a complaint. You could also consider using an Internet Service Provider that strictly enforces its anti-spam policies or that filters e-mails for spam.

The Consumer Protection Division of my office can investigate Internet organizations and companies that break consumer protection laws. The Deceptive Trade Practices Act applies in cyberspace just as it does in the real world. If you have a complaint against a specific Internet company, you can file a complaint with the Consumer Protection Division of my office by completing a consumer complaint form. The form is available online through the "Consumer Protection" section of our Web site at www.oag.state.tx.us.

Designer Religion is in the near future

Religion, as an institution, will change dramatically in the coming years, thanks to the communications revolution and an increased emphasis on tolerance, says a Texas A&M University philosophy professor who has studied religion for the past 40 years.

Professor Richard W. Stadelmann said people are picking and choosing their religious ideals and beliefs from a variety of religions, customizing their own personal belief system - resulting in what he terms "designer religion."

This change is occurring as people's preferences for stricter, fundamentalist beliefs systems shifts to more tolerant and accepting beliefs systems, he said.

"There is not a sharp break where religion ends and the general feeling about that which is valuable begins; it's more of a graduation," Stadelmann explained.

Stadelmann believes the change is especially pronounced in America's youth.

Although rooted in the academic arena, the focus of the symposium will be on practical application of ethics in the areas addressed. The symposium will provide an excellent opportunity for both professionals and non-professionals to further their

A Brief Visit With Pastor J. Floyd Franks

The story is told about a man who conned his way into the Orchestra of the Chinese Emperor. He could not play the flute, but he dramatically mimicked the characteristics of a seasoned flutist. His charade afforded him a modest salary and a place to live. He enjoyed the trappings of his deception until the emperor decided he would like to hear a private solo from each musician. In a state of panic, he tried to learn how to play the flute, but could not learn fast enough. In desperation, he feigned illness, but the doctor couldn't find anything wrong with him. On the eve of his presentation, he took poison and committed suicide.

The Bible says, "so then everyone of us shall give account of himself to God" (Romans 14:12). One day, God will demand a "private solo" from each person.

Are you prepared for that day? You might be able to mimic a Christian in many ways, but a real Christian is one who has repented of his sins and is trusting Jesus Christ as his/her personal Savior.

We invite you to our services at Meagan Joiner had a kill and a dig while Amanda Rivers had two digs.

"If we continue to improve our play," coach

Lynna Wilbourn said, "then I think our toughest challenge will be Saturday against Academy."

"I'm glad we face Academy at home in the first round, so hopefully we can get up on them," she added.

The Lady Eagles were District Champions last year. This is Wilbourn's first year to coach volleyball in Salado and she would like to add another district championship for the Lady Eagles.

Battered Eagles face state-ranked Thorndale

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado Eagles face the state-ranked Thorndale Bulldogs in their district-opener 7:30 p.m. Sept. 29 at Eagle Field.

Salado is coming off a tough 48-8 loss to the Liberty Hill Panthers Sept. 22, a game in which the Eagles couldn't seem to get a break.

Salado stopped the Panthers on three-and-out on their first two possessions, but the wheels came off after that.

"We played hard but made a lot of mental errors," Coach Jeff Cheatham said. Those mistakes, like a holding call that erased a Salado touchdown, cost the Eagles on the scoreboard.

Salado's only offensive score came on a 22-yard pass from Stephen Fewell to J.D. Glaeser in the third quarter.

Earlier in the game, Caleb Thompson tackled a Liberty Hill player for a safety.

The Liberty Hill game also cost Salado a two-way starter during district play as junior John Kirk will miss at least the next three varsity games with a strained ligament.

Sophomore Evan Durham will replace Kirk at the center position, while senior Jon McHaney or junior Dillon Reichert will replace him at the line-backer position.

Salado also lost its starting tailback, Chris Ray, who left the team to concentrate on baseball.

Hunter Konzen is now the single back in Salado's offense.

Salado's JV lost 22-6 to Liberty Hill, while the eighth grade lost a high-flier 38-44. The seventh grade teams split with Liberty Hill: the A team lost 32-0 while the B team won 16-8.

Thorndale returns 23 lettermen from last year's 8-4 Area Finalists.

Family Dentistry celebrates 20 years

"It's scary how little I knew then about managing a dental practice," recalls Dr. Douglas B. Willingham about opening Family Dentistry in Salado 20 years ago. "Perhaps it's just as well. The risks involved in beginning a dental practice in a village of 900 people are perhaps best taken by the young and the ignorant."

The return has proven worth the risk for Dr. Willingham, who celebrates the 20th anniversary of Family Dentistry in the Armstrong-Adams House at the corner of Main St. and Thomas Arnold.

Dr. Willingham will host a celebration party at his dental practice beginning 7 p.m. Oct. 7. He invites his clients and friends to join him, along with his family and staff in celebration of two decades of service in the village.

"I remember sitting at the front desk..." Dr. Willingham said of his first days in business. "I had no employees those first few weeks... wondering what could have possessed me to think Salado could support a dentist. In walked Norma Bentley who proceeded to make appointments for her entire family. I'll never forget that."

Dr. Willingham's loyal support began with a handful of people from Salado who corresponded with Doug while he was still at Baylor Dental School. "My earliest friend in Salado was Thelma Fletcher, who, along with C.B. and Mary Hodge, Jack Jones and Robert and Doris Denman, encouraged me to take a chance on Salado's future growth," Dr. Willingham said.

One of Dr. Willingham's earliest employees is Maria Jiminez, who will soon be celebrating 20 years with Dr. Willingham. "Maria speaks very little English and I speak very little Spanish, but we manage to communicate," he said. "She is a very special person to us."

His current staff is Melody Joy, Celestia Winkler, and Sabrina Roessler.

During his two decades in Salado, Dr. Willingham has established a record of civic involvement in the village, especially in historic preservation.

A past president of the Salado Historical Society, Willingham directed the society's preservation of the Salado College ruins.

He is the author of two Texas Historical Commission marker applications. The narrative he wrote for the Armstrong-Adams House marker is the statewide sample application for building markers.

History is a natural for Dr. Willingham. An undergraduate history major, Dr. Willingham is a sixth-generation descendent of Archibald Willingham, the first white settler to establish the first permanent home at Salado Springs in 1850.

In addition to his historical pursuits and the responsibilities of his weekday dental practice, Dr. Willingham has served on the boards of directors of several professional organizations, including the Texas Dental Association and the Baylor Dental Alumni Association.

He has served two terms on the Salado Chamber of Commerce, during which he has been treasurer and Pace Park chairperson.

For seven years, Dr. Willingham was editor of the Texas Dental Journal, the monthly publication of the 6,500-member Texas Dental Association. He is historian for that group.

He was elected Central Texas Dental Society's Dentist of the Year in 1988. He was that group's nominee for Texas Dentist of the Year, the youngest nominee in that award's history.

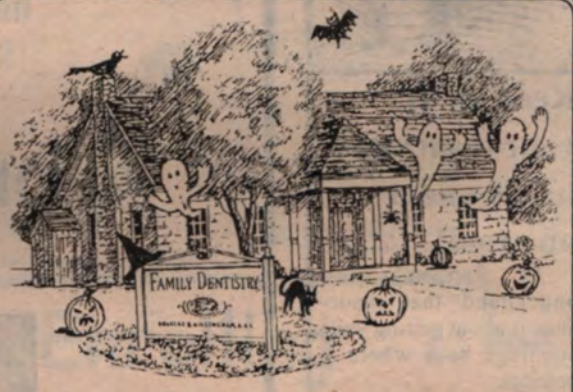

In continuing his service as Salado's family dentist, Dr. Willingham remains enthusiastic about Salado.

"This community has supported me since the day I opened my practice," he says. "Both historically and professionally, Salado is how I define myself, and I am grateful to the people of this community for allowing me to be a part of it and for helping make my dream of a successful small town practice come true."

Women undergoing chemotherapy or radiation treatment for cancer can now receive free professional help to cosmetically disguise the appearance-related side effects of their treatment.

LOOK GOOD...FEEL BETTER, a program developed by the American Cancer Society, the Cosmetic Toiletry and Fragrance Association Foundation, and the National Cosmetology Association, trains volunteer cosmetologists to help women with cancer conceal loss of hair, skin problems, and other side effects that can result from cancer therapy.

"The program will help people look their best - even as they are undergoing cancer treatment," said Yolanda Marcs, an American Cancer Society volunteer for LOOK GOOD...FEEL BETTER in Temple. "Although almost all of the appearance-related side effects of cancer treatment are temporary, they can be very distressing. We hope that by helping people adjust to these side effects, we can also help them feel better."

Dave and Katie Hermann, owners of The Range, present Dr. Robyn Young (right), director of the Breast Cancer Treatment Clinic, with a check for $10,005.

The Range raises over $10,000 for Clinic

"Igniting Hope at the Range," a dinner hosted by Dave and Katie Hermann of Salado, recently helped raise $10,005 for the Scott and White Breast Cancer Treatment Clinic. The Hermanns, owners of The Range at the Barton House donated proceeds from a special dinner on Aug. 20 to the Breast Cancer Treatment Clinic at Scott and White Hospital.

The goal of the Breast Cancer Treatment Clinic is to improve the survival of women with breast cancer, giving special attention to their quality of life. The Clinic allows women to see an educational interactive computer video, and meet with more than six individual health-care providers, from a social worker to a plastic surgeon. Patients also have lunch with the nurse coordinator and a cancer survivor, where they can share in personal experiences.

"We are grateful to individuals like the Hermanns who make it possible for us to provide the necessary psycho-social support as in the luncheon," says Dr. Robyn Young, director, Breast Cancer Treatment Clinic.

Other who contributed to the success of the event included Waco Custom Meat and Seafood Inc., Llano Estacado Winery, Genetech, Performance Food Group, Print Management and Production Printing, Texas Beef Council, Women in Medicine - The Texas A&M University System Health Science Center College of Medicine Chapter, and the Scott and White Community Research and Program Development.

Friends Feeding Friends is an effort by the local Board of Realtors and KCEN-TV to meet the needs of the poor and homeless not just by words, but by action, according to Sue Ellen Slagel, Salado coordinator for the project.

The 11th Annual Friends Feeding Friends food drive recently began and will continue until Oct. 19.

In Salado, the food collected will be delivered to the local food pantry. A collection box has been placed at Brook-shire Brothers. While shopping at Brookshire Brothers, buy an extra can or two and donate it to this worthy cause.

Items needed for the pantry include: dry beans, peas, canned vegetables, canned fruit, canned meat, jelly, peanut butter, sugar, flour, rice soup, jelly or pudding, canned juice or any non-perishable item. Personal hygiene items are also needed such as bar soap, clothes soap, toothpaste, disposable diapers, and baby wipes.

McMillan's "Hoe Cakes" hot water corn bread

Tumbleweed Smith

Eddie McMillan of Cisco makes hoe cakes.

"They're really hot water corn bread, a mixture of corn meal, salt, cooking oil and boiling water."

They're called hoe cakes because they're cooked on the blade of a hoe, a practice that dates back prior to the civil war.

"The old slave masters would give the slaves stone ground corn meal and send them to the fields. They had to figure out some way to eat the stuff. They tried mixing water with the meal and not much happened. But when they added boiling water, they could make a mush. They started making it a little thicker and putting some animal fat in it, a little salt, and then they'd fry it on the hoe they'd been hoeing cotton with all day."

Later, during the civil war, soldiers made it thicker and put it on the end of the bayonet and cooked it that way. They called these "Johnny cakes."

Eddie substitutes Crisco for animal fat and cooks his hoe cakes over a charcoal fire. He jokingly says he cooks them for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

"The hoe cakes will really glisten when you first put them on. It depends on how hot the fire is, of course. Once they start getting a dull color then you know it's time to turn them over. Then you cook the other side and they're done."

Eddie has a special recipe for his hoe cakes.

"I pour the corn meal into a big bowl, put as much salt as I think it needs, and add the oil. Then I start pouring in the hot water. And it's just amazing how much boiling water it'll take. You just won't believe that little amount of corn meal will take that much water, but it does."

He says he doesn't need to use spray like Pam on his cooking hoe. "These two hoes that we use I've had for over 20 years. I kid a lot people and tell them after they eat one of my hoe cakes that I just finished cleaning out a chicken house with my cooking hoe."

He can whip up batch of hoe cakes in a hurry.

"It makes the consistency of pancake dough, really. And we pour it on the hoe with a spoon. The thinner it is, the faster it'll cook and we can turn out more that way."

Eddie cooks hoe cakes at festivals all over the country. He gives people his recipe: two cups of corn meal, two teaspoons of salt, four cups of boiling water, one tablespoon of lard.

He says corn bread originated with the Indians. It was originally called "Appone" and baked in hot ashes. When the settlers started making the corn bread cakes, they called them pones or corn pones. They were more appealing when baked on a skillet or a board propped in front of a fire.

Antiques, etc.

Probably the most areas of collecting today are pottery and porcelain.

One of the most popular is Roseville pottery. The company opened a plant in Roseville, Ohio, in 1890. It was so successful that they added another plant in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1898. The firm continued making pottery until 1954. Twenty years ago, collectors searched for early wares like the brown glazed pieces that were similar to Rookwood and the hand-decorated sgraffito made about 1906. Collectors now favor the later molded-pottery lines that featured raised flowers. Most patterns were used for vases, jardinières, planters and perhaps, matching candlesticks. They were sold to florists and gift shops.

Well-known patterns that picture flowers include Apple Blossom (1948), Bittersweet (1951), Cherry Blossom (1932), Dogwood (1916-1919), Fuchsia (1938), Iris (1939), Magnolia (1943), Sunflower (1930), Water Lilly (1943), White Rose (1940) and Wisteria (1937). The patterns are easy to identify because the flowers are realistic. Most pieces are marked with the name Roseville. Be careful, as many copies are being made.

Q: How long have they been making swizzle sticks? I collect them and have some unusual plastic and glass sticks that my father sved.

A: Tradition says the Swizzle Inn in Hamilton, Bermuda, served a tall drink called a "Rum Swizzle." It was served with a wooden stick that was later called a "swizzle stick." Another tradition says the name came from the German word for beating or stirring. The "naming" was about 100 years ago.

Q: My old brush looks like it has an ivory handle. It is marked "Zylonite." When was it made?

A: The American Zylonite Co. was started in 1881 in Adams, Mass. Cylonite was an English plastic-like Celluloid. It was renamed Zylonite when the rights were purchased in the United States. The company made dresser sets, collar and cuff boxes, rattles, piano keys and other products. It was purchased by the Celluloid Manufacturing Co. in 1890.

The following recipe was taken from the cookbook "Salado Country Cooking." It was sponsored by the members and friends of the Monday Club from the Salado United Methodist Church.

TBC holds retreat at Summers Mill

End-users of Open Systems Business Accounting Software gathered at Summers Mill Retreat and Conference Center for the first-ever meeting designed strictly for end-users of the product.

Sponsored by the South Central VAR Partners, which was organized by Richard Paul Thomas, president of TBC International, clients came from across the U.S. as well as the island of Grenada. Over 75 persons attended the three-day conference which included training sessions, informational breakouts, exhibitor booths and general session.

Participants were entertained one evening by Freddie Fuller and His Sidekicks, who performed old-time cowboy tunes as well as more modern traditional numbers. Out-of-towners learned the Cotton-Eyed Joe and Scottish dance steps after dining on true Texas barbecue by Schoepf's.

Another evening was highlighted by traditional dance program from the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Tribe of Livingston, Texas. They performed a variety of types of dances, dressed in full regalia.

Event coordinator, Michele Fuller, pronounced the Conference "a complete success for all involved," and plans for an annual repeat are already in the works.

Deloria to address Institute Oct. 1

Phillip Joseph Deloria, professor of history at the University of Colorado, will lead a seminar and present the first Fall 2000 lecture on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The seminar will meet 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Sept. 30 at the Salado Civic Center. The title of the seminar is "Negotiating Family Memory: Memories Collective and Selective." Deloria will explore the importance of family history and memory as it is reflected in his own family's stories.

Deloria will present his lecture, "When History Meets Genealogy: Slave-owners, Admirals, Treaty Chiefs, and Disappearing Grandmothers," at Creekside Banquet Hall at 4 p.m. Oct. 1.

In his lecture Deloria says he "will talk about genealogy as a kind of collective memory, taking not only the Deloria family as an example, but my other three grandparents as well."

The Delorias were a distinguished Lakota family whose history includes a set of powerful and important individuals.

"But," he says, "my father's mother came from a family just as prominent as the Delorias. She celebrated her family's collective memory which turns around a pair of Revolutionary War Captains, an Admiral in the Mexican-American War, and a group of mid-19th century captains of industry."

Reconciling both white and Indian family histories can be difficult, according to Deloria, but he is discovering some intellectual and emotional tools that might prove useful.

He has a bachelor's degree in Music Education from the University of Colorado, a Master of Arts degree in Journalism and Mass Communications from the University of Colorado, and his Ph.D. in American Studies from Yale University.

He is the author of Playing Indian, published by Yale University Press in 1998, and editor of the Blackwell Companion to Native American History due out from Blackwell Publishers this year.

He is also the author of many reviews and invited publications including commentary for the Museum of American Folk Art, Encyclopedia of the Great Plains, William and Mary Quarterly, and the Encyclopedia of the American Indian.

"The History and Memory theme this fall will be played out on a personal, family, genealogical level rather than the political arena," said Gary Holthaus, Director of the Institute for the Humanities, "and the primary mode will be stories rather than academic presentations."

Deloria is also a sought-after lecturer, speaking at conferences and universities in Nagoya, Japan; the University of Washington; Helsinki, Finland; Yale University; and the University of Nevada. "I've known Phil Deloria as both a colleague and friend," Holthaus says, "and I'm very happy that he will be with us for these events. He is not only a distinguished historian, but a first-rate public speaker."

The Fall Series is made possible in part by a grant from the Texas Council for the Humanities, a state partner of the National

Phillip Joseph Deloria

Endowment for the Foundation, the Rockwell Humanities, and the Joe and Louise Cook Foundation, Houston Endowment, Inc., the Frank W. Mayborn Foundation, Potts and Sibley

Foundation, and the Trull Foundation. For more information on registration for the Fall Series, contact the Institute at 254/947-5729.

Captain Walker knows Galveston's hot spots

Keith Warren

For once, the seas were calm for me and my fishing buddies in Galveston. We boarded a charter boat at 6 a.m. and set out on our annual offshore fishing trip. After traveling for nearly two hours by boat, we were 55 miles from the jetties. With beautiful clear blue water surrounding us, our Captain idled slowly looking for the exact spot we would fish.

I watched the electronics hoping to see what he was looking for. The Captain was also nervously watching his onboard radar screen, looking for other boats that may be close by. "OK boys, start fishing and make it quick," he said in a serious tone.

We were primarily fishing for red snapper and whatever else would bite. As the cut baits were lowered towards the bottom, we could see the fish coming toward the surface. All six of us headed up and boated keeper snapper. "Hurry up, we are not going to be here long," said the Captain. Yeah, right, I thought.

The next drop proved equally successful. But as the group was unhooking and boxing our catch, the Captain fired up the engines and began to leave the spot. "We've got company" as he pointed to the radar and "I don't want anyone to know about my spots."

At first, we couldn't believe it. But he quickly explained he had dozens of spots that were good and it is better that no one knows about them. "That is why they are so good," he explained.

We stopped on lots of his good spots that day and caught fish on each of them. But the one thing that remained consistent was his nervousness and secretiveness of his snapper locations. He explained how these spots are so sensitive to fishing pressure. If commercial fishing boats found these areas they would wipe out the entire school of fish. The limit on red snapper is four per person per day with a minium length of 16 inches.

Our Captain had not only the latest electronic equipment and radar, but he even had an onboard lap top computer that had hundreds of fishing locations. This guy was extremely organized.

During the day, we caught seven different species including, red snapper, kingfish, bonita, grouper, triggers, shark and blue runners. At one point even had two sailfish come by the boat but we were unsuccessful hooking either of them. With limits of snapper and kings, we headed back in where they cleaned our catch.

The boat ride back gave me ample time to learn more about this competitive business from the Captain. He has been at it for most of his life and knows the ropes. Rather than running the boat for an owner (like most charter boat captains), he owns the boat. I even learned that today's most sophisticated electronics can lock in on a boat's location without having visual contact. That's why we only stayed in a spot for a short period of time.

The cost for our trip was $1,200. That is a lot of money but splitting it up between six people makes this day on the water much more affordable. By the amount of fish we each took home, it really was a bargain. The best I can figure is that the fish cost us about $10 per pound. That way we can all say "our annual adventures was free." If you are interested in an offshore trip out of Galveston, contact Captain John Walker at 713/910-9388.
