county, state and national elections will be at the Bell County Annex at 550 E. 2nd in Belton. Early voting will continue 7 a.m.-7 p.m. through Nov. 3.

Election day polling for all races will be 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Salado Civic Center.

History & Memory Dr. Cole, final speaker in Fall series, will share personal memory, personal stories

Dr. Thomas R. Cole of Galveston will lead the final seminar and lecture for the Fall Series at the Institute for the Humanities. The seminar, "Memory Stories, and the Life of Eldrewey Stearns" will take place Nov. 4, at the Allen Hall. Cole will present his lecture, "Personal Memory, Personal Stories," at Creekside Inn 4 p.m.- 7 p.m., Nov. 5.

Cole, Graduate Program Director at the Institute for the Medical Humanities and a professor at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, is the author of No Color Is My Kind: The Life of Eldrewey Stearns and the Integration of Houston. Cole's experience with Stearns led to the creation of a PBS documentary titled "The Strange Demise of Jim Crow," which won the CINE Golden Eagle Award in 1998. Cole's book The Journey of Life: A Cultural History of Aging in America, was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in 1992.

Vote on Nov. 7

On Tuesday, November 7, Saladoans, along with the rest of their fellow Americans, will be given another opportunity to exercise what many feel is an extraordinary blessing enjoyed by fewer than twenty percent of the world's population, namely an unintimidated vote for those who have put their names forward as candidates for public office, from the community level to the highest in the land - the Presidency, which is arguably the most powerful position in the world.

Editorial writers across the land are scratching their collective heads as they try to find new words to exhort readers to vote and each year half those eligible fail to show.

Fact is, a 55 percent turnout is considered "extra special" in our country.

It is a mystery why so few go to the polls because those who do not participate know full well they are giving their voice to someone else who may or may not have the same belief system that the nonparticipant has.

We often hear citizens who claim to be pragmatic about politics say: "One vote makes no difference and besides one person cannot change the behavior of our political class."

American writer Williams James (1842-1910), considered to be the founder of Pragmatism, felt deeply throughout his life that the best way to solve problems is through a down-to-earth practical approach rather than some "airy-fairy" deeply philosophical think tank obfuscation that fogs up not only the facts but the results.

Our Voice

Thus, James wrote: "There is but one unconditional commandment which we should seek incessantly, with fear and trembling....VOTE so as to bring about the largest total good that we can imagine."

So to the pragmatists, dogmatists, partisans, the unsure and undecided as well as the disappointed or lazy, who don't take part in any election - we urge one and all to adopt a new resolution on this day and pledge to vote every time there is an opportunity to do so - each time thanking our Maker for this right that allows us to live in a nation that grants such a unique privilege.

To those who always vote we say "Well Done". To those who plan to turn over a new leaf and begin taking part in our Democracy we recommend starting on Tuesday, November 7, 2000!

FORUM An Open Exchange of Ideas TAAS results questioned by Rand as Gore-Bush begin final week

No small surprise that the combatants in this quadrennial battle for the White House have turned peevish and sarcastic - not to mention blustery, worried, impatient with an ill-tempered pinch of smirky, smartaleckness tossed in for good measure.

Oh sure, they promised earlier this year they would play nice together and refrain from tossing around personal half truths or even lying - but as the finish line beckons and the race tightens, the inevitable occurs as can be easily discerned by watching last minute TV attack ads from both camps that are well over the line.

According to impartial bean-counters both Gore and Bush have already promised - if elected - to spend all but a few of the elusive "surplus" bucks that are somewhere out there - over the rainbow.

Forget paying off the national debt or resolving social security and medicare woes - these guys are such big spenders they make FDR's New Deal look like a personal savings program.

The Bush folks in Austin are reportedly talking about "transition" plans. Next thing they will be measuring the Lincoln bedroom for a new bed. We can only wonder what Gore's team is up to as the days disappear before the ever looming general election.

RAND REPORT STUNS BUSH

The highly respected RAND Corporation - as conservative and non partisan a think-tank as can be found produced a report last week on the linchpin of Governor Bush's campaign the educational gains in Texas during the Guv's term that he has promised to bring to Washington if elected.

The RAND group examined the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test given regularly to kids here in the State to see how much teaching and learning is taking place.

Bush says the results are outstanding and proved that under his watch - kids are doing better in all subjects with minority and poor youngsters progressing even more dramatically.

"Not so", say RAND researchers!

When TAAS scores are compared to national test results, things do not look so bright. "The large discrepancies between TAAS and National Assessment of Education Progress (NAEP) results raise serious questions about the validity school boards on the basis of test results and kids and parents are tortured with worry over taking the tests - which does in fact take up way too much class time that should otherwise be used to study basic math and English.

RESULT OF STUDY?

The RAND report won't affect the outcome of the presidential election but should cause some careful attention be given to the overall testing program in Texas to see if we are wasting precious classroom time tutoring kids for a test when we should be concentrating on "reading, writing and arithmetic".

This needs to begin at the local school district level and work its way up to the legislature. And if our lawmaking worthies continue to feel that testing kids, teachers and school districts is the only way to find out if tax dollars are being well spent - then we need to develop an exam for lawmakers.

We could call it the "Term Limitation Test For The Thought Challenged."

COUNTY JUDGE VISITS DNGERS

County Judge Jon Burrows paid a surprise visit to Salado's infamous chapter of the National Society of Do-No-Gooders last week. (You recall this group meets with alarming regularity at the Stagecoach Coffee Shop)

The good judge produced a handout showing how favorable Bell County taxes are when compared to other counties in Central Texas. Bell's tax bite for FY 2001 will be 36.51 cents per hundred dollars in property values. A slight drop from this year's levy.

Coryell, Williamson, McLennan, Lampasas, Milam, Travis, Hamilton, Mills and San Saba range from a low of 38.057 to a high of 60.35.

The DNGers appreciated the visit and to a man reported that Burrows is a fellow who likes his job is full of enthusiasm and happy to serve as County Judge.

He also showed signs of being well read of the TAAS scores," the researchers wrote.

One reason given for this difference, according to the experts, is that many Texas schools are devoting an inordinate amount of class time to highly specific TAAS tutoring and test preparation, something they cannot do in prep for national exams.

NOT A NEW COMPLAINT

Teachers, administrators, parents and of course students have been complaining for years about the misuse of the TAAS examination.

Many teachers are rated on how well their kids do on the test and some receive higher pay for higher scores received by their students.

Salado 4th graders Kelsey Williamson and Kaleigh Rank monitor the voting box as Sierra Bell ducks into cast her ballot.

This campaign has shown me that I am a better leader than a politician. I am anxious for the election to be over and the important work to begin. The newly elected officials will be challenged to really hear the Village residents as the goals, priorities and budget are set; as the Master Plan that allows us to maintain our high standards is developed. I am already involved with the Chamber of Commerce and understand the importance of maintaining the quality of our businesses and the critical link between city sales tax revenue and our village budget. I have explored with our school district the concept of having students involved with the Board of Aldermen. I am very pleased to report that several residents have said, "Just tell me what you want me to do. Give me a job." Now that's Salado!

My work with the Citizens of Salado Incorporation Campaign intensified my love for Salado as I worked long hours with some of the most caring and dedicated volunteers I have ever met. I am honored to live and to work here and would be further honored to gain your vote for Mayor.

Forrest Holloway for Alderman

 Vote Forrest Holloway for Alderman. On November the 7th, you will make some decisions that will impact on your life for many years to come. One decision is to choose the government officials to run Salado.

 You have the opportunity to select a team of five Alderman. This team is important because they will decide direction of Salado's growth in the future. This growth will affect you and me in city services, taxes, fees, and our quality of life in the Village.

I am Forrest Holloway. My wife, Theresa and I live on Smith Bluff Road in Mill Creek. We have two daughters, Trisha and Tina who live in Austin. I am a Warrant Officer assigned to the National Guard in Austin and I run their Distance Learning Program.

Congressman Chet Edwards Working Hard for Bell County

In fighting for Bell County, Chet Edwards has always put the interests of our area above partisan politics. His bipartisan leadership as Chairman of the House Army Caucus and member of the powerful Appropriations Committee has made a real difference for Ft. Hood and Bell County families.

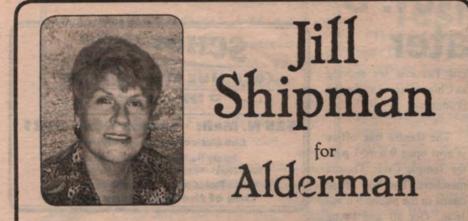

Chet Edwards successfully took on Washington bureaucrats this year when they tried to lower the Base Housing Allowance for Ft. Hood soldiers and their families. He has brought in nearly $600 million in new construction funds for Ft. Hood in the last ten years. Chet Edwards wrote the law to allow the joint-use of Robert Gray Airfield, which will bring in $2.8 billion annually to the Central Texas economy. He worked with Scott & White Hospital to keep the Texas A&M Medical School from leaving Temple this year and persuaded the USDA to keep its state offices-and nearly 300 jobs-in Temple. Chet Edwards secured $11.5 million last year to build a world-class cardio-vascular research institute in Temple. And when Lake Belton's water quality was threatened by upstream pollution and perchlorate contamination from the McGregor rocket plant, Chet Edwards obtained $4 million for a program to protect our lake and our drinking water.

Salado students named to National

Dean's List

A total of six students from the Village of Salado were listed among the approximately 140,000 students included in the 23rd Annual Edition of The National Dean's List, 1999-2000. The National Dean's List, published by Educational Communications, Inc., is the largest recognition program and publication in the nation honoring high achieving college students.

Local students include: Amy E. Boney at Temple College, Christina Fuhs at Southwest Texas State University, Joyce A. Gray at Temple College, Claude B. Hodge at Texas Technical University, Michael Neal Madison University of North Texas, and Alberta Urquiza at Temple College.

When SUZANNA GRATIA HUPP made the promise to Central Texans that she would never vote to increase their tax burden, lots of folks were skeptical, and rightly so. They had heard the same promise made scores of times by politicians running for office, only to see them forget it once they got elected.

But SUZANNA HUPP is a different kind of leader. She keeps her promises.

In her first two terms in office, SUZANNA has never voted for a tax increase. Not once. There aren't many members of the Legislature who can make that claim.

SUZANNA stood up to the special interests, the tax and spend liberals, even those in her own political party who thought raising the tax burden on you and your family was a good idea. SUZANNA stood firm. She said NO to higher taxes and YES to letting you keep more of your hard earned money.

SUZANNA's been busy fighting on other fronts as well. She is an outspoken champion of preserving our freedoms, strengthening public education and protecting our private property and water rights.

Local mayor's race decided Nov.

BY TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado voters will choose between Charlotte Douglass, Carse Williams and Dexter Blevins for mayor of the Village of Salado 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Salado Civic Center on Main St.

Early voting in the village-wide election continues 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Nov. 1-Nov. 3 at the Salado Civic Center.

Following are profiles on Douglass and Williams. We were unable to make contact with Blevins after repeated phone calls to his residence.

Charlotte Douglass

Douglass filed for the mayor's position, because "I really got excited about the incorporation movement then, but I don't feel closure because there is so much more work left to be done for the village," she said.

Douglass chaired the Citizens of Salado group which pushed the incorporation election.

Douglass and husband Dale have lived in Salado for four years. She owns Charlotte's of Salado, a shop on Rock Creek. She is chair of the Salado Business Association of the Salado Chamber of Commerce.

Douglass worked for six years on Ft. Hood as a volunteer services and Army community services coordinator. "I have learned a lot of organization and motivation skills in my various jobs," Douglass said.

The first job of the board of aldermen, Douglass said, will be to "lay the groundwork, philosophy and goals of the village."

The board will have to consider zoning, police and fire protection, as well as road maintenance.

One of the first items for the board of aldermen to consider should be a sales tax. "We also need to look at utility franchise fees, hotel/motel taxes and possibly economic development taxes," she said. "We should also consider grants as long as we are careful about the restrictions behind them."

"We should find an economically feasible way to keep and maintain the ambiance of the village," she adds. "We all want to keep Salado the way it was when we fell in love with it."

Douglas has a Master's degree in counseling, which she earned while raising two children alone as a widow, working fulltime and going to school full-time.

She and husband Dale have three grown sons and two grown daughters.

Carse Williams Williams told Salado Village Voice that he filed for mayor after "all large group of people from all segments of the community came to me and asked me to do it. I was amazed at the number of business people that have encouraged me to run, as well as many private homeowners in the village." Williams says that people have asked him to run because "they know I am fiscally conservative. I am very much opposed to uncontrolled, unmanageable growth."

"More than anything else," he adds, "I want to maintain the charm and unique character of Salado by controlling growth."

The village government can control growth by "the tone and direction set by the board of aldermen working with the civic organizations in Salado to continue what they have accomplished."

"Salado is not 'broke' and it doesn't need a lot of 'fixing.'" Williams said.

"We incorporated to dodge a bullet from Belton. We don't need to create the same situation here that so many of us wanted to get away from," he said.

Williams moved to Salado in 1995 to get away from just that situation in Round Rock, where he owned businesses for 30 vears. "I have lived through the nightmare of uncontrolled growth and a ballooning bureaucracy in Round Rock," he said. "I don't want to see that happen here."

Williams says that he will be an independent voice for the village. "Nothing that could happen in Salado affects my income or lifestyle," he says. "I will not be subject to any internal or external pressures."

He points to his twoand-a-half year stint on the Salado school board as an. Salado." example of his independent streak. "I think I've been a very effective school board member, and I think I'll be a good mayor," he said.

During his service on the school board, Williams has been instrumental in upgrading the technology at Salado schools by working with corporations such as McLane's and Fannie Mae to secure grants.

He also chairs the school board's construction and facilities committee.

Williams listed three areas of concern in the village: Salado Creek, Main Street and petty crime.

Dexter Blevins

quality of Salado Creek and not let it be denigrated," he said. "I don't want Main Street to be turned into a Food Court. I am concerned about the recent increase in vandalism in the village; this has to be addressed."

But he says these areas of concern can be addressed without "developing a lot of departments, ordinances, rules and regulations that will change the quality of life and laid back atmosphere of Carse has been married for 43 years to Bobbi. They have two grown sons Todd and Brad.

Todd lives in Salado with his wife Joanna and sons Brooks and Blake. He is principal of Tarver Intermediate School in Belton ISD

Brad lives in Bulverde with his wife Julie and daughter Bailey. He is principal of Smithson Valley High School

Dexter Blevins

Dexter Blevins is "Bell County born and raised." He has lived in Salado since June 1997, but says his association with the village goes back over 20 vears.

"I've been building homes here since 1973." he says. He works with Early Bird Construction, a custom home building company owned by his father J.D. Blevins.

He filed for the mayor's position, he says, because he feels he can "represent all of Salado, not just one part or another part."

Blevins has been active in the Salado Volunteer Fire Department since returning to live in Salado in 1997.

He first lived in the village over 17 years ago in the little red house at the entrance to Mill Creek.

"I know small town values. I grew up with them," said the 1979 graduate of Troy High School. "I'd like to see that we keep those small-town values here in Salado. It's part of the reason I moved here, because I love it so

The village council can help keep Salado's smalltown feel by "monitoring growth to be sure that the quality of structures and subdivisions are high," Blevins said.

Keeping the aesthetics of Main Street is very important, he added. He says that his experience in the construction business can be helpful to the new village government when it begins establishing building codes and ordinances.

A former military officer, Fred Hairston has lived in Salado with his wife Lisa and son John for over five years. The Hairstons have lived in Bell County for over a decade.

A native Texan, Hairston said that he filed for the position of marshal because it is one way for him to give back to the community.

The marshal's position also would give him the opportunity to "be on the ground floor to have a say in how we create the government that will run our village." "I want to keep the quality of life in Salado high," he said. "We need solid rules and regulations in place to run the village government."

Hairston said he sees the marshal's position as being "a mediator to work with the constable and sheriff's office to try to provide the best law enforcement we can get." "Whether this means we have to contract out with the county for law enforcement, I don't ment for a total of 20 years scope of work will depend zens of Salado," he said.

"Whichever way we go, there is going to be an outlay of money," he said. "We're not going to get our law enforcement for free." Currently, Hairston works as a senior systems analyst with the TELOS Corporation, which is digitizing the Army.

Alan Rogers

Saladoans file for election to aldermen

Candidates for the position of alderman appear on the ballot in the following order: Forrest Holloway, Michael Cooper, Wayne Rutherford, Rick Ashe, Vic Means, Jackie Mills, John Hall, Dr. Raymond Carver, Jill Shipman, Robert Denman and George McAulay.

Five will be elected to the board of aldermen.

Forrest Holloway

Forrest Holloway and his wife Theresa moved to Salado in March of this year after returning to their home in Austin from a 14-year absence and seeing the tremendous growth in the capitol city.

"When we left, Austin was still had a laid-back atmosphere," Holloway says, "but we came back to a downtown Houston atmosphere."

The home they kept in Austin was near the corner of Highway 183 and Highway 620. "When we left, you might see a couple of cars on 620 pulling out onto the highway," he said. "Now it takes seven minutes just to get on 620."

"We immediately began looking for a new home," Holloway said. After visiting communities like Marble Falls, they decided to come look at Salado. "I played golf there for several years," he said.

It took little more than a drive through downtown for the Holloways to make a decision. They chose Salado because it is "easygoing and comfortable," he said.

that Keeping easy-going nature to the village is one reason Holloway is running for the board of aldermen.

"In the next few years, the board of aldermen will make decisions that will affect me in my home and lifestyle for the next 20 years," Holloway said. "I want to have some input on where we are going."

Immediately, the vil-extraterritorial jurisdiction of Salado.

The board should define its vision, mission and goals and adopt projects to reach those goals. In doing so, the board should "set a dollar value for those goals and fit it within the scope of resources for the village," he said. "Concerns should be weighed against the resources available to address them."

In examining the concerns and services of the village, Holloway said that he is not predisposed to altering services that are already in place.

"If I'm predisposed against anything," he adds, "it's rushing and in making rash decisions.'

"I'm not from Missouri, but you'd have to show me that a program would work in Salado, that it would benefit Salado and that the people of Salado could afford it and want it before I would be in favor of it."

In those cases, though, "Once I decide I'm in favor of something, I would try to move mountains to make it happen," he said.

Holloway is a Chief Warrant Officer assigned as the Distance Learning Coordinator for the Texas Army National Guard in Austin.

With over 20 years as full-time active Guard reserve, Holloway says that the career move to Austin is the last move he will make.

He and Theresa have two grown daughters living in Austin: Trisha and Tina.

eral years as a stopping point between Dallas and Austin, where the couple would go to watch University of Texas ball games.

Cooper earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in government from U.T. and later got his LLB from the U.T. School of Law. He has been active as a U.T. Alumni ever since.

Cooper has practiced law in the Dallas area since 1964. He partnered with John Harrison in the Dallas area.

He and his wife Frances-- Mike calls her T9E and so do her friends-decided that when their children were out of the house, they would move to Salado.

That dream came true in 1998, when their youngest son, Stephen, graduated. The Coopers other adult children are Michael, who lives in Austin, and Lucy Oglesby.

Lucy was married here in Salado just two weeks ago," Michael says with a hint of pride.

"When all our kids were grown, we decided to move to Salado to change our lifestyle," Cooper said.

"I wanted to open a small town practice," he added, which he does, with an office behind Fletcher's Books and Antiques and the Episcopal Chapel.

The change of pace is drastic. In Dallas, Cooper practiced business litigation and ran a publiclyowned company for a couple of years.

Protecting the slower pace of life is one of the things Cooper would like to do as an alderman for

of the process and where we are going could help in the future," Cooper said.

The first step for the village government will be organizational, Cooper said. "We have to find facilities for offices, what type of officers we want and paying for a secretary," Cooper said. "We have to examine sources of income, including sales tax, utility franchise fees and potential property taxes.'

"I am circumspect of property taxes. I think we should avoid them if we can," he said.

The village board will also have to consider what services the village government might provide, including police, road maintenance, waste management and water supply.

"Some services are already being provided," he said

The village board will also have to determine the long-range issue of "preserving the historic nature of our community," Cooper said. "We must find ways to control growth within the historic fabric of our community."

Cooper said the village board should also consider how best to clean up the creek.

"We must weigh these needs in light of what fiscal constraints we have before us," he said. "We should provide for those needs in as frugal a manner as possible."

"We have a community of residents and businesses that can work together as partners," Cooper said. "The village council can focus that partnership so that together we can preserve and enhance the quality of life we all enjoy."

Killeen fire department, where he is the fire rescue lieutenant.

A graduate of the Temple Fire Academy, Rutherford has also had extensive training in rescue and emergency aid from the National Fire Academy and Central Texas College. He earned his paramedic certificate 14 years ago.

As soon as he came to Salado, he became involved with the Salado Volunteer Fire Department. Working his way up for "just a firefighter," Rutherford is now Chief of the Department, which was named First Responders of the Year in Texas in 1997.

Last year, the Department was honored as First Responders of the Year by the Central Texas Trauma Council.

During his five years as Chief, the SVFD has become one of the most well respected small departments in the state.

The department continues to upgrade both its facilities and equipment with support from the community.

Rutherford says his experience both in the volunteer fire department, as well as working in a professional fire department will be valuable to the newly formed village government.

"I know how city governments work," he says, "how zoning and safety regulations work and how building regulations work."

"This is going to be a unique time for Salado," he said, "and the groundwork laid by the first board of aldermen will be the framework we will have to live with for years to come." That framework will include "establishing the city itself, writing the city charter, housing the city offices, finding revenue sources and spelling out what services the village is responsible for in terms of public safety, police, fire years. "I know what it's like to be a small business and to have the needs of a small business," he said.

Rutherford said that he wants "to keep the charm of Salado ... I think we can do some of that through planning and zoning. I think my experience in city regulations would be valuable in this area."

He also wants to insure that the village government is open to all people. "We don't need divisiveness and factions," he said.

Something else Rutherford said he thinks is vital to the village is "keeping the spirit of volunteerism in the village," which is something he says he understands from 18 years of work with the SVFD.

Rick Ashe

Rick Ashe has lived in Salado with his wife Shannon for 10 years, moving here from Waco when he took a job with the Temple Police Department.

He and Shannon have one daughter, Adrienne, who is two years old.

Shannon owns Salado Wedding Wishes and is a member of the Salado Chamber of Commerce. The Ashes attend First Baptist Church of Salado.

The former U.S. Army MP is now the support services supervisor for the Temple Police Department, which puts him in charge of all civilian employees of the Department and makes him the Department's public information officer.

Ashe was in the Military Police during his stint in the U.S. Army (1981-84), after which he attended the Police Academy at McLennan Community College.

He worked three years with the Midway Police Department before accepting a job in the Temple Police Department.

Ashe says that his experience with the Temple Police Department has given him the leadership qualities needed by the Salado Village board of aldermen. During his tenure with the Temple Police, Ashe has been a member of the board of directors of the Texas Municipal Police Association for seven years. He was the president of the 7,000-member organization in 1997-98. As treasurer of the group, he oversaw a $1 million annual budget. "I have worked with a board of directors composed of a diverse population," Ashe said. "I have learned how to work with a board of directors with a wide range of opinions. Jackie Mills

Ashe said that he thinks the essential job for the new Board of Aldermen is to "begin with planning and zoning to protect the historic look and feel of the village."

"We now have the opportunity to use ordinances to determine how we will grow in the future," he said.

The Village board should also look at "how we can protect and clean up our creek."

Another important area for the village is police protection, Ashe said. He added that he thinks the Village can initially contract with the County for these services.

To pay for services such as police protection and road maintenance can be paid for through a one-percent local sales tax levy. "There should be no need for a property tax if we limit what areas of service we need from the local government," he said.

"We already have many things in place," he said. "Most of the services that a city government would provide are already being provided by other entities."

The role of the Village Board should be to determine where and how the village grows "and if it needs to grow," he said.

The Village should also contact the outlying areas to determine if those residents wanted to be annexed by Salado, especially areas to the north that are being encroached on by Belton.

Currently, he is an independent consultant to the construction industry.

Before coming to Salado, he was the president of the school board in Commerce and sat on the corporate boards of directors of American Wood Corporation and First Southwest Equity Corporation.

Since moving to Salado, Vic has been involved with the Salado Historical Society, of which he is a past president and current director. He also is a director on the boards of the Bell County Museum in Belton, Central Texas Area Museum in Salado and the Living Room Theatre of Salado. He chairs the advisory board of the A.C. and Judy Greene Literary Festival of Salado.

Most recently, he was very involved in the recent incorporation effort, chairing the committee to research the finances of a small local government. That committee visited several communities similar in size to Salado to find out what services they provided and how they paid for them.

Salado will continue to grow, but with planning, "we will be able to exercise proper management of that growth," he added.

Means said that his experience in business and land development "qualified me to help initiate the things that need to be done for Salado."

In addition, "my past board experience and working with groups allows me to work well with others," he said.

Jackie Mills

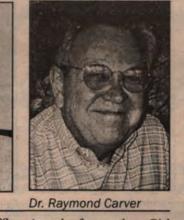

Jackie Mills has been active in the village of Salado since moving here with her husband Denver in 1985.

She has been the president of the Salado Public Library, served two years as Salado Art Fair Chair for the Salado Chamber of Commerce and has served several years on the Tablerock Festival of Salado board, where she has been the president.

The author of "Salado Legends," Mills has worked to promote the history of Salado as well as the arts in Salado.

She is active in writing children's books, outdoor musical dramas, lyrics for songs, children's plays, participatory murder mysteries, newspaper articles and making presentations to school children throughout the Southwest.

She has also served on the Cultural Activities er Board of Dire Ce Award from the Girl Scouts of America and induction of her outdoor musical drama Salado Legends into the Library of Congress.

Mills states that she has a Top Ten list for the village of Salado.

The first is "with community input, set Village goals," she says.

The second is "to keep working services in place and to seek grants for needed services."

Third, the village board should investigate the collection of fees, franchise taxes, hotel/motel taxes.

The village board should adopt a realistic budget.

The village should "bring the rest of Salado into the newly incorporated Village as soon as possible under the rules and regulations set forth by the state."

It is important that the village board finds offices for the Village of Salado.

In all its endeavors, Mills says, the village board should "be frugal! We should operate without exorbitant property taxes."

The role of the first board of aldermen, Mills said, is to "set a foundation for Salado's government that will be flexible and livable for present as well as future residents of Salado."

Jackie and Denver have two grown daughters, Nancy Mackey and Susan Humiston, both of Temple, and three grandchildren.

John Hall

Hall is a charter member of the Salado Rotary Club and a past president of the group.

He was involved in the marketing committee of the Citizens of Salado incorporation group.

He wants to continue that effort as a member of the board of aldermen.

"The first things we have to do as a village government are to locate office space, establish a budget and determine how we are going to provide services like road maintenance and police protection," Hall said.

He added that he thinks many of the services can be contracted through Bell County.

"The entire city can be run on a 1 cent sales tax," he says, "as well as utility franchise fees.'

Hall says his approach as an alderman would be to "keep things as much the same as they are right now as possible."

"The less government involvement we have, the better off we will all be," he adds.

Hall says that his experience in operating a small business for 22 years will help the new village government. "I know how to make and keep to a budget," he says.

He has also developed people skills that allow him to work with people of vastly differing opinions and personalities.

"I learned how important and yet How unpretentious city administrations can be," he said. "Aldermen who don't receive salaries for civic service can pretty much be depended on to govern themselves and others moderately -- or they don't get reelected."

Dr. Carver says he wants to serve on the Board of Aldermen because "I've made some of the best friends I've ever had in my life here. I've learned to respect the attitudes and civility of most of the folks who live here. Anyway, my family's here. What else could motivate a person more?"

Dr. Carver lives in Salado with Barbara, his wife of 42 years. Their daughter Libba also lives in Salado with her family, husband Steve Skarnulis and twins Quinn and Carver.

Jill Shipman

Jill Shipman has lived in Salado since moving here from Dallas in 1998.

She and husband Johnny designed and built a new bed and breakfast, StoneCreek Settlement, on College Hill, where cabins grace the property.

go from there," she said. "With zoning, we can retain control. I don't want uncontrolled growth, but with careful planning we will all be winners."

"I want to keep the great sense of community that we have here," she says, "but if we grow too fast, I'm afraid we'll lose that."

In addition to facing issues of growth, the first job for the village board will be to generate income to manage the village. "I think we can generate enough money from a local sales tax, a small hotel/ motel tax and perhaps a utility franchise fee to fund the government," she said. "I am not at all in favor of property taxes."

"During the first year, the village should concentrate on the minimum of what services we have to provide," Shipman said.

Born and raised in Winnsboro, she attended El Centro, Brookhaven Junior College, North Texas University and New Mexico Highlands University, majoring in Art and Visual Communications.

She has worked for 25 years for Home Interiors and Gifts, Inc. Her positions included direct sales as a manager in training for three years, which included an extensive training program in interior decorating, sales and people skills.

She was the manager for 15 years, where she was responsible for recruiting, training and motivating groups of 35 to 50 women in interior decorating, sales and management.

recently,

Robert was involved in

First Baptist Church in Dallas, Women Ministry Chairman and personnel committee chair, Highland Village First Baptist Church and Sunday school teacher in many different age groups.

Shipman has three grown children: Carlinda Rex, of Salado, Connan Welch, of Canton and Chad Welch, of Denton. She has six grandchildren.

She and Johnny have combined their families for six children and nine grandchildren.

Robert Denman

Robert and Doris Denman moved to Salado from Austin in 1977, "partly to have our son in a smaller school and to escape the fast pace of the city."

Since then, he has been very involved in many aspects of the village of Salado.

The Denmans were charter members of the Salado Merchants Association. "While I was president of the Chamber of Commerce, we integrated that organization into the Chamber and it became a committee of the Chamber," he said. He continues to be active in the Salado Business Association.

The Denmans were also charter members of Tablerock Festival of Salado. Both served on the board of directors.

A past president of the Salado Historical Society, Robert's interest in protecting the historic nature of Salado runs deep.

"Early history tells us that my grandfather had He and Doris have three children -- Cathy Sands, Christie and Larry -- and four grandchildren. After moving to Salado and retiring from TxDOT, he and Doris opened the Royal Emporium in 1989, an antique store at the corner of Main St. and Royal St. which they continue to operate.

"After having lived here 23 years, I believe I would bring some knowledge of the history of where we have come from and what Salado is about," he said.

George McAulay

George McAulay filed for alderman because, he says, he feels that he has knowledge, experience, time and ability to help the village he has called home for almost 15 years.

He and wife Becky were looking to move from the Dallas area when they discovered Salado for themselves. "We had been to look at property at Lakeway (on Lake Travis)," he says, when they saw a billboard sign "for the Robert Trent Jones II golf course. We pulled off the highway and found a community we really liked."

Salado's historic homes were part of the reason the McAulays moved to the village. "At that time, most of them were still being used for residences," he recalls.

McAulay says that protecting the historic nature of the village is an important job for the board of alderman. "One of our challenges will be to come up with a whole new set of ordinances. We can't just rubber stamp a set from somewhere else," he said. "We have to have a set of regulations that work here." The board will also have to establish what services, such as street maintenance, street lights, and police protection, the village will provide. "We should do these things without a property tax, if at all possible," he says.

Getting the most out of a dollar is something with which McAulay has a great deal of experience. A graduate of Abilene Christian University, McAulay has been a Certified Public Accountant since 1961.

He worked eight years with Arthur Anderson Co. in Dallas, where he was an audit manager. He performed independent audits for municipalities across the state, including the City of Abilene, Taylor County and 33 school districts.

McAulay spent 16 year with First National Bank of Dallas. He left the corporate banking world as the C.E.O. of Interfirst Services Corporation, which ran the data processing operations for 125 banks. He oversaw a $100 million annual budget for the corporation which had 2,000 employees.

McAulay also brings experience as a small business and property owner in Salado. In 1991, George and Becky opened their shop in Salado. In 1993, they purchased the shopping center they renamed Old Town Salado. They added the buildings which now house The Store and Cathy's Cafe.

McAulay has been involved in many different groups in the village: he is a member of the Church of Christ, belongs to the Chamber of Commerce and Salado Business Association, of which he is the past president, Salado Historical Society, Salado Lions Club and the Mill Creek Community Association.

"An alderman should have a thorough knowledge of the village. He should have a varied set of life experiences to bring to the table. And he should be available to put in lots of hours.," McAulay says, adding that he feels he meets all those criteria.

cerned by growth in Salado.

"The first year (of the board of aldermen), there will be lots of decisions and work to be done," she said. "I want a voice in those decisions because I want Salado to stay the same as much as we can."

"We are in a highgrowth corridor," she added, "and we have to plan for the future. I want to be a part of that planning."

Planning for the future has to include zoning, according to Shipman. "We should sit down as a group and decide what's best for all of Salado and She was also the catalog coordinator and set designer for seven years. This position included planning work schedules, coordinating personnel, designing sets, and working with photographers to accomplish production goals.

Shipman also worked as a consultant to Sryococ INC., New York, aiding that company in design and purchasing.

She has also worked as a freelance interior decorator in the Dallas area. In addition to her profession, Shipman has served in several capacities through her church. She served as President of WMU, Royal Haven ties to Salado," he says. "He and my grandmother were married at Salado College on a Fifth Sunday when the Primitive Baptist congregation had services. Our lives are intertwined in Salado history."

His support for the Historical Society led him to donate the Moses Denman Log Cabin and place it near the Boles-Aiken Cabin on the grounds of the Old Red Schoolhouse.

Robert and Doris acquired the Moses Denman Cabin, built by his great-great grandfather in 1867 at Sparta, and placed it on the grounds of the Barton House, where they lived for almost 20 years. about six years ago? Or two years ago?"

Denman said he believes that "by being good stewards of finances, we can operated the village without property taxes. We need to encourage everyone to continue to continue with their volunteerism.

Prior to coming to Salado, Denman served in the U.S. Army, and worked for 25 years with the Texas Department of transportation.

Denman served on the city council of the Village of Sunset Valley, outside of Austin. He also helped form the volunteer fire department in Oak Hill, an unincorporated suburb of Austin.

The first priority for the village government, Blevins says, will be to decide issues such as police protection. "Are we going to contract out with Bell County or form our own department? I don't think we can maintain our own department to begin with."

"If we do contract with the county, we have to decide if it's for full-time patrol or patrols during prime times," he adds.

Those decisions have to be weighed with paying for services. "I don't want to be slammed with property taxes," he said. "We already pay enough taxes." By researching and applying for state and federal grants, the village can avoid property taxes for a long time, he said. "There is a lot of money available out there for cleaning up the creek, maintaining the park and other projects if you know where to look."

If elected mayor, Blevins said he will spend a lot of time researching not only grants but regulations and ordinances of other communities like Salado.

"The government should be here to help all of us in the village, not just one group or the other," he said. "I think I can do a good job for everybody."

Methodist honor Zel Elfrink

Zel Elfrink honored The Salado United Methodist honored a longtime member Oct. 29 during the Fifth Sunday luncheon.

According to Cathy Carlson, chair of Outreach, "Zel Elfrink is one of the sweetest, unrecognized ladies in the church. She quietly goes about doing God's work without seeking praise or fanfare."

Every Sunday morning, after the 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. worship services. Zel is out front serving cookies and punch to members. She makes the cookies and punch herself. According to Pastor Skip Blancett, "People enjoy her baking ... but they enjoy Zel more. She always has a smile, a kind word and a 'goodness' that touches her soul. Though she is quiet, love and care radiate from her. She is one of our heroes."

Each Monday morning, she volunteers as a receptionist at the church. During the month, she works with Monday Club. Daily, she walks her dog and greets her neighbors in Mill Creek.

"Zel has proven that you do not need status and power to make a difference in the community," Rev. Blancett said. She influences people daily and makes a difference in the lives of the people she serves. She earns respect the old fashion way -through love and kindness."

Ministry to truckers

Steve and Toni Hudson had a desire to spiritually help truckers on the highway.

Every Sunday, the Salado United Methodist worship services are taped on cassette and video for those who missed the services and would like to have a copy.

Knowing more than a few professional truckers, Steve asked some of them if they would like to have a weekly copy of a cassette tape containing the entire Sunday morning worship. Some of the truckers said "Yes!" and the seeds of ministry began. tapes allow us to worship as we travel down the highway and we do not even have to dress-up. This means a lot to us."

Each week, Steve takes his tapes and gives them to his trucker friends. What began with two people has turned into a ministry that reaches across America.

The cassette tapes are a free ministry of the Salado United Methodist Church. Grief Sessions

Salado United Methodist Church and Scott and White Hospice will sponsor "Getting Through the Holidays -- A Session About Grief" 7-8:30 p.m. Nov. 9.

Dr. Rodney Kruse, Hospice Chaplain and Bereavement Coordinator, will facilitate the group. The session will center on grief during the holidays, and discuss coping skills to help you through the upcoming Thanksgiving and Christmas season.

This session is open to the community who have experienced the loss of a loved one.

It was not long before these truckers were giving and trading cassette tapes with other truckers.

Today, the church receives reports from across the country of truckers listening and sharing their worship services with others. Occasionally, a trucker passing through will stop to say hello and encourage the church to continue.

According to a trucker who recently stopped by, "Due to our schedules, we often do not have time to stop for worship services. Besides, we are not dressed in suits and slacks. What kind of sermon did your preacher give you last Sunday? Was it one that made you "feel" satisfied with yourself? If it did, you better hear someone else next Sunday. But if the sermon awakened in you a consciousness of your need of God then thank God for him.

Describing a sermon he heard, a man said that it was a moving, soothing, and satisfying message. It was very moving for half the audience left before it was finished; it was very soothing because most of those who remained fell asleep; and it was highly satisfying, since many did not see the need to come back for more.

At Cedar Valley Baptist Church the preaching might not always make you "feel good," but you can be assured it will be from God's Word given with love and compassion. Come visit us.

P.S. Some of us have fought for the privilege to vote. Exercise that privilege next Tuesday.

Eagle homecoming overrun by Hippos

BY TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Hutto Hippos ran over the Salado Eagles on their homecoming night 35-0, scoring three touchdowns in the second half.

Hutto's running attack wore down the Salado defense, which four times thwarted Hutto's offense in the first half.

Hutto scored its first touchdown on a 56 yard run with 4:10 left in the first quarter.

The Hippos threatened on their first two possessions, however. They drove to the Salado 14-yard line before the defense forced three incomplete passes, including one on fourth and 11 when #85 hurried the quarterback.

Midway through the first quarter, Hutto drove to Salado's 30-yard line before Seth Dady picked up a Hippo fumble caused by Fran Ruiz.

Late in the first quarter, Caleb Thompson blasted through the Hippos offensive line to recover a snap over the Hutto quarterback's head to give the Eagles the ball at Hutto's 30 yard line.

Salado failed to convert the opportunity and kicked the ball to the Hutto five yard line.

Hutto drove the ball 95 yards on a persistent running attack by Derek Harris, Cory Casey and Jonathan Nemec. The 16-play drive took over six minutes and deflated much of Salado's hopes as the larger team controlled the

An interception of Stephen Fewell's pass at the line of scrimmage but Hutto's Jarred Scruggs cut short the Eagles hopes of scoring in the last minutes of the half. The interception ended a drive that began at Salado's 9 yard line and ended at Hutto's 44 yard line. Runs by Fewell and a Fewell pass to Jose Tonchez highlighted the thwarted drive.

Salado got another chance before going to the lockers at halftime when they stopped Hutto from getting another score.

After forcing a punt on a three-and-out possession, Salado drove from the Salado 20 yard line to the Hutto 37 yard line before time ran out.

Hutto came out in the second half and wore down the smaller Eagle squad, scoring three more touchdowns on the night.

The Eagles travel to face the Academy Bees at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 3.

partnership between BMW of North America and the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, has already raised over $3 million by putting people behind the wheel of a BMW for a test drive in over 200 towns and cities across America. The Ultimate Drive hopes to raise an additional $1 million this year, and enthusiasm is already running high among thousands of drivers in the cities the BMWs are scheduled to visit.

November, two fleets of specially-marked BMWs will drive across America, making pit-stops in approximately 200 cities nationwide. Each city and town will host a day-long fund raising event where participants can test drive a BMW. For every mile test-driven, BMW will donate $1 to the Komen Foundation. Over the past three years, the Ultimate DRIVE has attracted more than 100,000 participants.

In addition, a local "Hero" will be recognized in every community included in the Ultimate Drive, to acknowledge their outstanding efforts in the fight against breast cancer. A photograph of each hero will be affixed to a specially marked BMW "Signature" Vehi-

These X5s will each have a full-color topography map of the United States covering their exteriors highlighting roads across the country in deserts, farmlands and forests. The motif was chosen to visually underscore the philosophy that BMW will go anywhere in their drive to find a cure for breast cancer.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation was established in 1982 by Nancy Brinker to honor the memory of her sister, Susan G. Komen, who died from breast cancer at the age of 36. The Foundation is an international organization with a powerful network of volunteers working to eradicate breast cancer as a life-threatening disease by advancing research, education, screening and treatment.

The Foundation is the nation's largest private funder of breast cancer research and community programs. In addition to funding research, the Komen Foundation funds innovative breast cancer education, screening and treatment projects for the medically under served.

Many annuity owners lose over 70% of the value of their annuity when it pays off! Will this happen to you? It's true. Annuity and IRAs can be double-taxed assets (subject to income taxes PLUS estate taxes). After estate taxes and income taxes, there can be as little as 30% of the value remaining. You can learn how to avoid the loss in the FREE educational booklet "Annuity Owner Mistakes." The booklet is free and shows how to avoid double taxation and get more benefits from your existing annuity value.

Dear Editor:

Salado deserves leadership that preserves and protects what makes it such a unique and wonderful place. It would be a travesty to lose that- isn't that why we came here to live?

So, my vote goes for Charlotte Douglass for mayor because she exhibited an unusual ability to lead and organize during the recent incorporation Add skills and effort. credentials gained through years of experience in previous positions of responsibility to her sense of fairness, optimism, and her untarnished integrity, and Salado has a person who can lead us with distinction through the tasks ahead. We watched her do just that in the meetings and planning sessions earlier this year. She led open forums where all voices were heard, consensus was built, and unity of purpose was defined.

And that she owns a business is an asset. First, because she knows how to run one; and second, because she understands and already works well with our business community-the one that provides the tax base that will make it easier on all of us through the years.

We've seen Charlotte in action. We've worked with her when time was short, immediate information was needed, and deadlines were essential. She got it done. She went above and beyond expectations. She was always responsible, dependable, and prepared. Isn't that the kind of mayor we want and need? Patty Thomas

Dear Editor:

This is a unique time in the history of Salado. We have voted by an overwhelming majority to. incorporate, and now we must take the important step of selecting a group of people to lead us.

Fortunately, we have some very talented and dedicated people who wish to plan and execute this next important step.

I attended most of the Citizens of Salado meetings and served with a citizens that will work hard to preserve the quality of life that we have here.

But the real star of this series of planning and "get out the vote" meetings is Charlotte Douglass. From the very first meeting she demonstrated a comprehensive understanding of

Your Voice

Editorial Opinion the challenges that Salado must face to become an incorporated city. She made numerous inquiries at the state, county, and local level to determine the requirements for incorporation and the procedures to be followed after incorporation. She also demonstrated an exceptional ability to "cut through the fog" and clearly state the salient points of an issue.

There is no question in my mind that she will be an excellent Mayor who can organize, motivate, and execute a master plan for the new city of Salado.

Joe Holt

Dear Editor:

Character is dead! How else can you explain that no one cares what politicians in Washington do or have done; that no one cares what politicians say, how they explode facts and fictionalize (lie) to fit his/ her need? Who cares?

Well, I care! Does it matter to you that someone cares?

There are those within the political realm that do exhibit character. But, who cares? In the past, character was a part of what our nation demanded of her leaders. Now? Undoubtedly, character's time has passed.

What does that say about our present nation or world? It tells me that we have utterly destroyed our "God-things," our creeds, our convictions that come with morality when it is cogent. When I observe lifestyles that are based on this ambiance of Godlessness, they are appalling to me. Who else cares?

Collective wisdom across ages would say it matters tremendously and that we had better care. Learned people know that there is a direct association between the character of of the problem and not part individuals and that of the society as a whole. Individual character is essential to decency, order and justice in public life. Without it, society fails. Alexis Toqueville, in Democracy in America, states: "How can society escape destruction if, when political ties are relaxed, moral ties are not tightened?" So, when Washington and Austin get to be the most free spirited, we as individuals had better be strong moralists. It's inevitable.

The "one world" theme so prevalent today causes us to "sweat not the small stuff," when in actuality, the "small stuff" is the infrastructure on which a so-called "one world" must, by prerequisite, be built. Without the personal incertitude toward perverse or factious actions we cannot, we will not, last as a people. How do you tell someone to "Do the right thing," when they have not so much as an abstract idea as to what you are requesting of them? When one has no idea of what "right" and "wrong" are how can they adjudicate what they are to do?

God forbid the next logical step. One more generation without a moral ballast to keep their ship of life afloat and we will live in tyranny. The prevailing violence we see almost daily is the first harbinger of the future. Already some of us are stressed. Already we dread what is naturally next to follow in our culture. Well, take my advice, brace yourself, you ain't seen nothin' yet. A president that is not expected to tell the truth, why should he/she? A congressperson that sleeps around and lives off our increased taxes, why not, who cares? Who can tell them that those things are wrong when we are already being told that we don't even know the definition of "is"?

It is not within my moral fiber to accept this philosophy, but the majority of our nation appears to be caught up in it. Polls reflect fluctuations based merely on a candidate's facial expression or body language.

November 7 can well be the point of delineation for our future. If you throw a lever on a politician and you don't think about charof the solution: You are selling your birthright for today's mess of porridge. Jim Fitzhenry

Dear Editor:

The newly incorporated Village of Salado is about to embark upon one of the most important events in the history of the Village.

On Nov. 7th the citizens of Salado will be electing the officials who will be establishing the Village of Salado Government.

To accomplish this task, the elected mayor and aldermen will have to devote an inordinate amount of time. The mayor will have the duty of coordinating everything necessary to establish this government. It will require making contacts and working with officials and departments of Bell County and departments of the State Government such as the Comptroller, Treasurer and Attorney General. Establishing Village bank accounts, obtaining liability insurance and many, many other requirements must also be achieved.

Carse Williams will devote the time and energy necessary to setup an effective Government for the Village of Salado. He does not have any business activities which will take priority over his time. He will be a FULL TIME MAYOR and not a PART TIME MAYOR.

As a Member of the Independent Salado School District Board of Trustees, he became familiar with the workings of a governmental entity.

He recognizes the requirements and importance of the Salado Business Community and Mill Creek Golf & Country Club and will work diligently to promote their interests. He also understands the needs of the homeowners and residents of Salado.

On Election Day Nov. 7th, it is hoped the Electorate will select Carse Williams for Mayor. He will have and will devote the time necessary to establish and manage the Village of Salado Govern-number of others on Vic Means finance and fact finding committee. This provided an excellent vantage point to see the really dedicated citizens of the community in action, and it was very encouraging to learn that are many, many

Commissioner Williams endorses David Puryear

"David Puryear and I share the same judicial philosophy," Railroad Commissioner Michael Williams said Oct. 25, endorsing David Puryear (R-Austin) in his run for 3rd Court of Appeals.

Commissioner Williams was a special guest at a reception honoring Puryear in the Salado home of Dr. John and LaFon Ditzler when he handed out his enthusiastic endorsement.

"We both agree that Judges should interpret the law and not try to legislate from the bench," said Williams. "David will be a great judge. He will be fair, impartial and hardworking. He will be a good conservative Judge for the citizens of the Bell County."

Also, during his presentation, Chairman Williams discussed his efforts to encourage more environmentally sensitive oil and gas exploration, as well as his efforts to increase pipeline safety and reduce state bureaucracy.

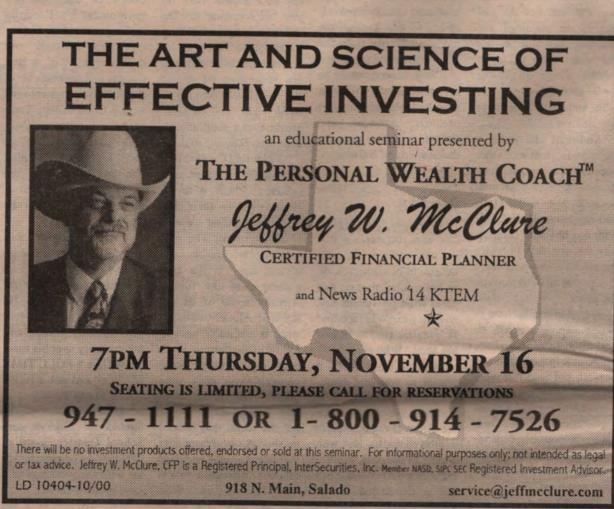

Revival with Tierce Green at First Baptist Church

announces "Revival with Tierce Green" to be held Nov. 5-8. Programs are scheduled for 6 p.m. Sun.; 6:30 p.m. Mon.-Wed.; 7:30 p.m. Wed. Green will address the youth group.

Tierce Green is a speaker, singer, songwriter, and worship leader. The revival theme will be "Blameless Heart" Philippians 2:15. Green communicates clearly to youth and adults. He speaks with compassion and a solid commitment ot biblical authority. He cuts across

First Baptist Church generational lines with precision, building a bridge between youth and adults. His practical applications connect the dots between principles and real life.

> Green said, " More than any other time in history, people are longing for something significant in their lives, something that is not only worth their time, but something worth living and dying for. Presenting the reality of a relationship with Jesus Christ is now more important than ever."

Muscular Dystrophy lock-up Nov. 8 at Slice of Salado

The Salado Muscular Dystrophy Association Lock-up will take place on Nov. 8 at Slice of Salado. Leading citizens will be "locked-up for good" at the MDA Maximum Appreciation Facility for one hour while they raise their bail to help "Jerry's Kids"

Local volunteers will serve as the posse for rounding up the jailbirds. The jailbirds will then be "incarcerated" at the Slice of Salado where they will be served some great "jailhouse chow" and have their mug shot taken.

The monies raised through the MDA lock-up program and other year round fund raising events support the MDA Clinic at Hillcrest Baptist Medical Center, support groups, MDA research, and patient service programs such as providing wheelchairs and braces. It also is used to provide young people aged 6-21 with a neuromuscular disease diagnosis the opportunity to spend a week at the MDA summer camp.

The only criteria for free service is diagnosis of one of the 40 neuromuscular diseases coveted by MDA. These include Infantile Spinal Muscular Atrophy (the number one genetic cause of infant mortality), Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy (which kills the one in 3,500 boys born with this disease by their late teens or early twenties), ALS (Lou Gehrig's Disease-which strikes and kills adults in the prime of life), plus 37 other diseases.

MDA still has openings available for "jailbirds". It is never too late. For more information contact the Heart of Texas Office of the Muscular Dystrophy Association in Waco at (254) 752-9632.

Blood Analysis available at Angelic Herbs Nov. 3-4

CCH, CH, CI, will be returning to Angelic Herbs Nov. 3-4 to offer Live Blood Analysis. Karen has been studying and practicing alternative therapies for over 20 years and is author of 7 Vital Law of Health, a book about the healing and prevention of disease.

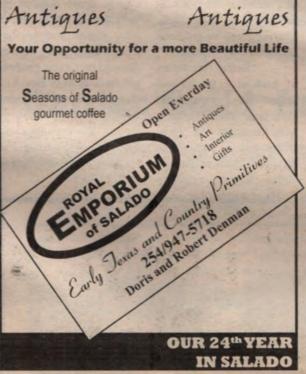

Through blood analysis, Utter can determine the current condition of your blood, whether it's healthy and strong or tired

Karen Utter, CNHP, and weak. Observing your blood cells through a microscope, she can identify conditions within your blood that can be negatively affecting your health. This overall method of evaluation can be extremely beneficial because future problems are detected when they are still in their infant stages providing true illness prevention and an increased knowledge of nutrition, and greater wellness.

At 7 p.m., Nov. 2, Utter will lead an informal discussion on how the Live Blood Analysis can aid in the healing and prevention of disease. The discussion will be held at Angelic Herbs and will give those who attend a chance to see how the testing is done and talk with individuals who were tested in August.

For more information or to schedule your appointment, call CJ at Angelic Herbs. 947-1909.

Parade begins Nov. 30

Preparations are in full swing for the First Annual Christmas Stroll Parade, Tree Lighting Ceremony and performance of Reindeer Tails. The Salado Chamber of Commerce/ Business Association is sponsoring the event scheduled for Nov. 30. The parade will begin at 5:30 down Main St. from Pace Park to the Civic Center. At 6 p.m. the Tree Lighting Ceremony will take place at the Civic Center. The Salado High School Band and Flag Corps under the Direction of Charla Manning and the Salado High School Strutters under the direction of Cara Keeton, will be performing at the tree lighting. Immediately after the Tree Lighting Ceremony at 6:15 p.m. there will be a performance of "Reindeer Tails", at the Civic Center Gazebo. "Reindeer Tails" is a series of 6 skits or "Tails" composed to reflect the holiday season and will be entertaining for children and adults alike. "Reindeer Tails" is sponsored by the Salado United Methodist Church drama committee with participation from individuals throughout the Village of Salado.

Long time Salado resident, Sadie Lou Holland will be serving as Grand Marshall for this year's parade.

"Tradition Begins, Magic Happens, Memories are Made in Salado", is the theme of the Christmas Stroll and parade. Floats and other entries will be judged and recognition awarded in the following categories: Best Use of Theme, Best Commercial /Retail, Best Non-Profit, Best Other. Entries should be returned to the Chamber of Commerce by Nov. 15.

CAC features Village Artists

The CAC McCreary and Upstairs Galleries welcome Salado Village Artists, Inc., for their sometimes annual exhibit.

"Our work will include a lot of watercolors with some acrylics and oils, most of them still life and landscape subjects. We will also have a number of framed needlework pieces in counted cross-stitch and some quilted wall hangings, " says member Joan Hoffman. Selected pieces will be for sale.

Come to the Gallery Opening 7-9 p.m. Nov. 10 and meet some of these local artists. Hoffman describes the talents of The group's 65 members as ranging in ability from hobbyist to professional, and diverse in age, from young artists to retirees.

Salado Village Artists, Inc. is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping its members grow their abilities. Toward this goal, they host workshops three to four times/year, bringing in artists from all over the U.S.

The group is engaged in outreach projects such as summer children's quitting workshops, and a poster contest for Salado schools.. New members are welcome. Call 947-0073 for information.

Diary of Anne Frank performed Nov. 10

Central Texas College will perform "The Diary of Anna Frank" at the Salado United Methodist Church, Nov. 10-11. Under the direction of Ernie Patter- away in an attic for almost son, the cast of "The Diary of Anne Frank," does a collective job of bringing Anne Frank's writing to life. The play is set during one of history's most brutal periods, the Holocaust. Anna Frank was locked two years, but no one could put a lock on her mind and her spirit. Two Salado residents are part of an incredible cast, Richard Dillard plays Anna's father, Mr. Frank and Beth Correa plays Mrs. Van Dann.

Tickets for the performance on Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. are $5. Salado School students and faculty will be admitted free. Tickets for Nov. 11 performance are $20, this includes dinner at 6 p.m. catered by main Street Cafe and Deli. Tickets are available at the church office or by calling 947-5482.

Holthaus goes to Harvard

Gary Holthaus, Executive Director of the Institute for the Humanities in Salado, is attending a conference called "The Ecological Imagination" at this Harvard week. Approximately 20 writers from around the country have been invited to gather to reflect on the roles of science, religion, and "human-earth relations," from Thursday through Sunday.

Each evening three writers will read at First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church in Cambridge, under the auspices of "The Cambridge Forum." The readings will be broadcast live over Massachusetts Public Radio, and recorded for later use on other NPR outlets. First Unitarian Church is a historic edifice on the National Register of Historic Sites, and has been a center for Cambridge conversations about significant public issues since the 18th Century.

On Friday the group will gather at Walden Pond and the Thoreau Institute. They will consider selected readings from Thoreau's work, walk, and discuss the impact of Thoreau on contemporary thought. "If anyone in America has ever had an ecological imagination, it has to be Thoreau," says Holthaus. "To be represented at this gathering is a great honor for the Institute."

Other participants include Thomas Berry, a theologian and author of The Great Work; Barry Lopez, who has written numerous books about the environment; Terry Tempest Williams, author of Refuge; Chet Raymo, an astronomer and author of Skeptics and True Believers; Bill McKibben, author of Hope, Human and Wild. David Lee, Linda Hogan, Ursula Goodenough, and Mary Evelyn Tucker, all of whom are featured in next year's Institute series on "Nature and Spirit."

The conference has been organized by the Forum on Religion and Ecology and the Harvard-Yenching Institute, and some of the conversations will take place at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Conference organizers included Mary Evelyn Tucker and her husband John Grim; Tu Weiming, Director of Harvard Yenching the Institute; Benjamin Webb, an Episcopal priest and author of Fugitive Faith: Conversations on Spiritual, Environmental and Community Renewal; and Holthaus. Holthaus returns to Salado Sunday night, and will moderate the Institute's final fall seminar and lecture on November 4-5

Recorded music today comes on tapes or CDs. A few years ago it was on plastic or wax records.

In the 1880s, the music often came from metal discs made with holes that could activate the right notes on a machine. The disc music box was popular from 1895 to 1905, when the phonograph captured the market. Popular brands included the Regina, Kalliope, Polyphon and Symphonion. Discs varied in size from 11 inches to 26 inches in diameter.

A working example of any of these large music boxes is expensive. Recently a Kalliope Panorama was offered at an auction for more than $20,000. The machine plays a 25-1/4-inch disc. The bottom half of the machine has a panorama of a racetrack.

As the music plays, horses race. It was originally made to be used in taverns so the patrons could bet on the results of the race.

Q: My painted-iron garden settee once sat on our family farm in upstate New York. It has a simple, openwork seat. The back, arms, seat border and legs are decorated with elaborate, leafy grapevines. The grapes are three-dimensional, and the leaves are large. Can you help with age and value?

A: The design of your settee was a standard one used on cast-iron garden furniture from about 1850 to the early 1900s. The ornate Victorian pattern was called grape, grapevine or piazza. Different manufacturers varied the design, but most examples have three-dimensional bunches of grapes with connecting leaves and vines. Keep your settee painted to prevent rust. Depending on its size, age and condition, it could be worth $1,000 or more.

Tip: Fresh air and limited sunlight are good for fabrics. Cotton and linen should be washed once a year, even if stored in a drawer, because dirt will cause damage. Dry-clean wool and silk if cleaning is needed. Protect fabrics from moths with the usual precautions. Paradichloro-

Marker to honor pioneer settler

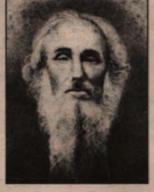

The BellCounty Histori- of Bryan. As early as cal Commission and the Bell County Sheriff's Office will dedicate and unveil a Texas Historical Marker commemorating William Whitaker Reed, first sheriff of Bell County. The ceremony will take place 10 a.m. Nov. 4, at the corner of Pearl Street and W. Central Ave. in Belton.

After the dedication ceremony, a reception and a Sheriffs Office static display will take place at the Bell County Museum. The static display will feature assorted law enforcement equipment and the newest technology being used by today's sheriff

William Whitaker Reed, one of the first pioneer settlers of Bell County, was born in Bedford County, of the Robertson Colony Tennessee, on January 23, 1816, and was the son of Michael and Martha Burnett Reed. The Reeds came to Texas in March of 1833 and settled near the Brazos River near Wheelock, northeast of the present town

December of 1833, William and his family were surveying claims for themselves on the Little River in present-day Bell County between Holland and Rogers and in the fall of 1834 helped in laying off land in the Robertson grant for the new settlers. William applied for admission to the Robertson Colony on January 16, 1834 at age 18 and he received his land grant of 1/4 league from the Mexican government on December 25, 1834.

In March of 1836, when news spread that General Santa Anna had invaded Texas, William Reed and the young men assembled at Tenoxtitlan where they enlisted with many others to join the Texas Army. William was in Captain L. H. Mabbett's company of men with whom he served until independence was won.

Following the war, William married Emeline Cobb on January 15, 1841. She was the daughter of Stancil and Milla Reid Cobb who had come to Texas in 1837. William and Emeline had ten children.

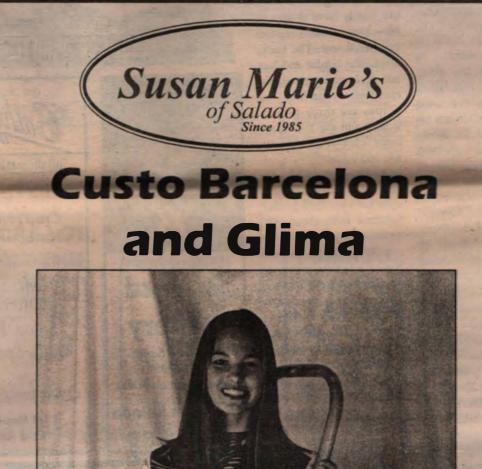

In the spring of 1850, some 30-40 men participated in an election under the "Charter Oak" on the east bank of the Leon River where five commissioners were chosen to organize the county of Bell. William Reed was present at this election and when Bell County was formally organized in August of 1850, William Reed was elected sheriff. He filled the office for two different terms: 1850 to 1852 and again in 1856 to 1858. Contemporaneous documents note that he was a most efficient and popular official.

William died in 1891 and was buried next to his wife who died in 1890. The graves are on the Reed's original land grant across the road from Sunshine Cemetery.

All descendents, friends and those interested in the history of Bell County are invited to the dedication ceremonies.

Peaceable Kingdom scholarship named for Edgar and Mary Monteith

The Brown Foundation, Inc. of Houston has made a grant of $525,000 to Peaceable Kingdom Retreat for Children for its outdoor education program exclusively for special needs children, Sue Mayborn, chair of the retreat, announced Oct. 28.

The grant establishes "The Edgar and Mary Frances Monteith Outdoor Education Scholarship Program for Special Needs Children." It is named in honor of long-time Brown Foundation board member Edgar W. Monteith and his wife Mary Frances Monteith.

Maconda B. O'Connor, President of the Foundation, stated, "The Brown Foundation Trustees are pleased to honor the Monteiths for Edgar's many years of counsel, guidance and loyalty to our Founder's vision."

A plaque dedicating the program was unveiled at a ceremony at the retreat Saturday evening.

The Monteiths have been prominent leaders in civic and charitable work in Houston for many years. Monteith, a noted Houston attorney, is a member of a pioneer Bell County family and is an owner of the historic Monteith Ranch near the retreat, which is the Monteiths' second home.

"Last year, Peaceable Kingdom, in collaboration with the Temple Independent School District, started the only public school off-campus, outdoor education program exclusively for special education children in the state, and perhaps in the nation," Jim D. Bowmer, president Emeritus of the retreat, stated. "With the encouragement of Edgar Monteith, who was familiar with the retreat and its work, The Brown Foundation became interested in the innovative program and made this grant. We are particularly pleased that this program is named for those dear friends."

The grant enables the retreat to work with the participating schools in making its facilities, personnel, literature and research available to the schools and their children throughout the school year, free to the children and the schools. Since the establishment of the grant, the Killeen Independent School District, and other districts are joining in the program. There have already been 60 classes from the participating schools at the retreat in the months of Sept. and Oct., an average of more than one class per school day, and this level of use is expected to continue throughout the school year and on into the future.

"The program is designed to serve as model for other retreats, camps, schools, and organizations to copy in establishing similar programs throughout the state and nation," Bowmer stated. "This grant is devoted exclusively to this program Our other programs at the retreat for chronically ill children continue in operation as before and will continue to depend on donations from the retreat's many other friends. Most of our donations are from individuals contributing small amounts, which help keep the retreat going."

The retreat receives no government funds, and is dependent entirely on donations from private sources.

Ysaye Quartet performs Nov. 11

Central Texas Orchestral Society hosts Ysaye Quartet 8 p.m. Nov. 11. Tickets are available at the CAC Box Office, at SI5/Adult and S5/Student. A free public informance will be hosted one hour prior to the concert.

Appearing with Ysaye at the CAC will be pianist Jean-Claude Pennetier, and violinist Regis Pasquier. The evening's performance will feature works by Cesar Franck, Claude DeBussy, and Ernest Chausson.

Upon forming in 1984, the Ysaye Quartet immediately captured the attention of the French public and press. Earning international recognition in 1988 as the first French quartet ever to win the Grand Prize at the Evian Festival, the Ysaye has been in demand throughout Europe ever since.

In a review of a recent concert, they were lauded for their innovative style, breaking the norm of chamber musicians who play a one-sound-fits-all "international style." Firstviolinist Guillaume Sutre has been applauded for treating Ravel's melodies as if they were romantic themes — even applying oldtime portamento slides in a few expressively strategic spots. Their solo voices were "individualistic, from Sutre's strong, sweet presence, to the wiry sound of Miguel Da Silva's viola," according to one reviewer.

The Ysaye Quartet's international tours are made possible by the generous financial assistance of the French Ministry for Foreign Affairs. Partial funding is also provided by the Texas Commission on the Arts, The Wildflower Guild, and the Wildflower Junior Cotillion.

For more information on the programs and the Central Texas Orchestral Society, contact the CAC, at (254)773-9926.

Christmas Homes Tour set for Dec. 1-3

The Salado Christmas Homes Tour Dec. 1-3 will feature 10 stops to include The Rex House, a unique home originally built in 1980 by a group of musicians who used the dwelling as a sound studio.

The home's tour will be open 5-8 p.m. Dec. 1, 10 a.m.- 5 p.m. Dec. 2, and 1-5 p.m. Dec. 3.

Tickets for the tour are $10 at the door and $8 in advance. For advance tickets call 254-947-5718.

The focal point of the Rex home studio is the gym floor. The floor was recovered from the old schoolhouse which is now the Salado Civic Center on Main Street. Each board was tediously numbered and installed in precise order onto the living room floor, in order to duplicate the center court of the old Salado gym. The studio also features salvaged barn wood and beaded from early Texas farmhouses. This section of the house is approximately 500 square feet.

In 1990, an additional 1,000 square feet were added on the original structure. It was not until 1997 that the Rex family purchased the home and
