P&Z to consider rezoning Golf Course

By TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado Planning & Zoning Commission will conduct a public hearing 4 p.m. Jan. 22 at the Municipal Building on a proposal by the Village of Salado to change the zoning designation of 137.505 acres of the Mill Creek golf course from Single Family Residential to Private Recreation.

Village aldermen added the Zoning Designation Private Recreation to the Zoning Ordinance on the recommendation of Village administrator Don Ferguson. In November, the P&Z Committee voted against adding the new Zoning designation to the Zoning Ordinance on a 3-2 split vote with K.D. Hill, Susan Terry and Ronnie Tynes in opposition to the new designation and commissioners Larry Roberson and Tom McMahan in favor of the new designation.

The new Zoning designation of Private Recreation allows the following usages by right (permit): Amusement Services (Indoors); Country Club (Private); Dinner Theatre; Driving Range; Golf Course (Miniature); Golf Course (Private); Health Club (Physical Fitness); Membership Sports; Museum; Park (Private or Public); Swimming Pool (Commercial); Tennis Court (Private/ not lighted); Theater (nonmotion picture); Antenna (Non-commercial); Church/ Place of Worship; Civic Club; Fire Station; Fraternal Organization, Lodge, or Union; Franchised Private Utility.

The following Land Uses

as "An amusement enterprise that is wholly enclosed within a building which is treated acoustically so that noise generated by the enterprise is not perceptible at the bounding property line, and that provides activities, services and instruction for the entertainment of customers or members, but not including amusement arcades. Uses may include, but are not limited to, the following: bowling alley, ice skating rink, martial arts club, racquetball or handball club, indoor tennis courts or club, indoor swimming pool or scuba diving facility, and other similar types of uses.

Services (Indoor), defined

The new Zoning designation Private Recreation does not include Amusement Services (Outdoors), which would include "entertainment or games of skill to the general public for a fee wherein any portion of the activity takes place outdoors and including, but not limited to, a golf driving range, archery range, miniature golf course, batting cages, go-cart tracks, amusement parks, and other similar types of uses."

No residential uses are listed for the Private Recreation designation, which has led some residents to believe that this would prevent the property owner from subdividing the property to develop into residential real estate. For the property that is inside the Village limits, the property owner would have to request a rezoning of property to subdivide it into residential lots. For property outside the Village limits, no zoning applies. The owner would need to meet other standards of the Subdivision ordinance, however, to develop the property into residential lots, houses or other uses. Village officials stated in their announcement to move forward with rezoning the golf course that it was "unclear exactly why the golf course property was originally zoned for residential use. The Future Land Use Map, found in the Village of Salado Comprehensive Plan, labels the future use of the

"The Mill Creek Golf Course has been in existence for more than 30 years," stated Salado Mayor Skip Blancett in the announcement concerning the rezoning of the golf course.. "The reasonable and right thing to do is to change the golf course property's zoning to match its current and historic use and the designated land use for the golf course property found in the Village's Comprehensive Plan."

Village administrator Don Ferguson announced the plans to rezone the property during the town hall meeting when he said "They (Mill Creek owners) will get the opportunity to stand up at the zoning hearing because the city is about to zone the property golf course."

After announcement by Ferguson during the town hall meeting, Helm and Gravette informed him that they were withdrawing the offer to sell the property to the Village.

In an Aug. 10 email to aldermen and copied to Gravette, Ferguson stated, "Helms and Ron Gravette just left my office after telling me that they were pulling their offer to sell the golf course to the Village. They were extremely upset to hear last night at the meeting that the Village was moving forward with rezoning of the golf course property. They claim the Village is negotiating in bad faith by doing so."

"I reminded them that I had previously advised them of the Village's intent to rezone the property to reflect its current use," Ferguson said. "Mr. Gravette indicated he was unaware of such. Mr. Helms said he remembered discussing it but thought we would be doing that if we acquired the property."

"Mr. Gravette contends we have no right to rezone private property without the owner's permission but I advised him that was not the case and that the Village can initiate zoning on any property," Ferguson stated.

A property's zoning is subject to change at any time. Typically, properties are zoned in accordance with the land uses set forth in a municipality's comprehensive plan, which serves as a blueprint or vision intended to guide future growth, development, and land use decisions for a community.

Meeting with sewer customers lingers

BY TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado administrator Don Ferguson will meet again in the coming days with property owners that will be required to tie-in to the Salado sewer system when it is complete. No date has been set for the meeting, Ferguson told Salado Village Voice this week, but he expects to confirm a date by the end of this week.

"We are posting notice of the meetings online, mailing notice to property owners, in addition to relying on your newspaper to get the word out," Ferguson said in an email response to questions from the newspaper.

Property owners received mailed notices of the first meeting about the sewer tiein process about two days before the meeting itself. No announcement was made in the newspaper of that meeting in December.

Ferguson stated that the Village is developing a list of contractors that will be able to install the plumbing connections to the sewer main lines and decommission septic systems. About 130-140 customers will have 90 days from notice of service to connect to the sewer system.

"They will not be required to use a contractor on the list, as the list is for reference purposes only," Ferguson said. "We can't recommend any particular contractor. We should have the lists available in late January or early February."

Ferguson stated that connection to the system must be done by a licensed plumber and that connection will require a permit and inspection by the Village.

"We are going to the

that they waive the fees for such a permit," Ferguson said.

"Decommissioning the septic system can be done by a contractor or the property owner," Ferguson said. "The work will require a permit and inspection by the Village. We are going to ask the BOA that they waive the fees for such a permit."

"In addition, there is a form that will need to be completed by the property owner and returned to the Village and Health District when the septic system has been decommissioned," he stated.

"The initial customer list will be finalized and available at the end of the month," Ferguson said.

The initial customers will also have to pay a $3,750 per LUE Impact Fee. Board of aldermen voted to allow that over four years at no interest. Some properties, including a restaurant and a church, have reported calculated Impact Fees of $35,000 to $76,000.

However, properties downtown that are currently served by the Stagecoach Inn sewer system will not pay any Impact Fee. "Those customers currently being serviced by the Stagecoach System will not be required to pay an impact fee," Ferguson said. "Those customers will not be required to pay for decommissioning of the Stagecoach Plant as that cost is built into the construction budget for the new wastewater system and will be funded with bond proceeds." The cost to decommission the Stagecoach Plant (with fewer than 20 current commercial users) is $160,000. Since the Village accepted the gift of the Stagecoach Plant from

Board of Aldermen to ask Impact Fee to be paid out Morris Foster in mid-2014, it has subsidized the operation of the treatment plant for the fewer than 20 customers by more than $200,000.

> The Village is working with Salado ISD to tie in the school properties so that those properties will have access to sewer. However, the district will pay no Impact Fee. According to the TCEQ standard of 20 gallons of wastewater per person at a school with a cafeteria and showers, the school district could use 43,000 gallons per day, accounting for 21 percent of the total capacity of the 200,000 gallon plant. The LUEs for 43,000 is 430, which would be $1.6 million.

> Sanctuary development will pay impact fees, if it is ever developed that is. "The Village will collect impact fees from the Sanctuary development, per the utility agreement that is part of the Master Development," Ferguson said.

However, more than four years have passed since Sanctuary developers came to town to pitch their project and nothing in the project has started. No roads, no internal sewer lines, no subdivision plats, no commercial plats. The only thing built for the Sanctuary development so far is the sewer plant at the top of the hill off of Royal Street.

Robert Sulaski told aldermen in September that they should begin to see plans for the development in February or March. The first phase will be residential and an assisted living facility rather than commercial, hotels and restaurants.

Sulaski estimated that 30 percent of the commercial would be built out in the first five years.

Stocks continue slow recovery from December sell-off

The Markets

The S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX) continued its long, slow, slog of recovery following the sell-off in December, closing out the week up 2.54 percent to 2596.26. That rise still leaves it down about 11.4 percent from its late September high point and down nearly 7 percent from this time last year. The good news is that the SPX has risen about 10.4 percent since its bottom on December 24. The bulls and the bears are still struggling and the key to the outcome remains the specter of uncertainty surrounding the government shutdown and the trade war.

The U.S. ten-year Treasury note ended the week yielding 2.692 percent, up a bit from the beginning of the year but down 0.54 percent from three months ago. The sag in the yield curve continued to predict that between two and five years from now interest rates, and by inference, the economy will be lower and slower. It is hard to get excited about a rise in oil prices as that means gasoline prices will rise as well but there was a collective sigh of relief as U.S. Crude Oil rose nearly 7 percent to $51.69 per barrel. Unfortunately, it is still down over 27 percent from three months ago and about 14 percent from last January. Meanwhile, lumber prices continued to fall from last May's peak of $639 per 1,000 board feet to a recent $329. Falling commodity prices and lower future interest rates are worrying signs that a recession could be in the works for a year or so from now. Gold was no haven as it remained down about 6 percent from a year ago although it did rise 0.19 percent to $1,288.60 for the week.

Update

Market & Economic

ment, where we, the Federal Reserve, and many economists get much of the data needed to estimate where the national economy is headed remains closed, but the Labor Department is open and still broadcasting statistics and the information looks good. First, inflation from this time last year is only up 1.9 percent overall while wages are up about 3 percent, giving workers a head start. That low inflation number gives the Federal Reserve cover to skip the next round of rate increases, keeping interest rates low. Speaking of the Federal Reserve, Chairman Powell has indicated in the past several days that the Fed may not increase rates the two times that were widely expected from his earlier comments. Rates are currently set at 2.25 percent to 2.5 percent and have hovered between the two numbers. One of the worry points for the stock and bond markets has been that the Fed would over-react and keep raising short term rates even as this economic expansion is maturing. Chairman Powell's remarks seem to have taken the edge off of that worry. Another statistic that came out of the Labor Department was a validation of the criticality of a college or university degree. Wages are indeed rising, but wages for those with a college education are leading the way. Many workers who do not have a degree are seeing stagnant pay even in this worker-shortage economy. That absence of wage increases is compounded by the issue that a significant number of no-degree jobs are threatened by automation in the next ten years.

Another warning flag of a future recession popped up as the German economy appears to be continuing to contract into the fourth quarter after shrinking 2/10 of a percent in the third. The cause appears to be a decline in exports as China's economic growth slows and the U.S. tariffs make German exports to us more expensive. Here in the U.S., we may fret over the low percentage of our economy generated by exports, but it also means that we are far more self-reliant than countries like China and Germany that are dependent on exports to keep things on track.

The Wall Street Journal released the results from its latest survey of economists and while the survey indicated only a 25 percent chance of recession this year (up from 13 percent in the October survey), 57 percent of the surveyed economists think 2020 will bring one while 27 percent think a recession is likely in 2021. The consensus remains that a recession is coming and the only disagreement is about when it will arrive. The deeper fear, and the one reflected in the market, is that a sudden shock, like the imposition of the threatened tariffs, could put us in recession sooner. Compounding their concern is the absence of critical economic data from the Commerce Department and a general concern about the instability reflected in the government shutdown.

Agee retiring after 21 years of service to Salado ISD

Dan Agee will be retiring this year after 21 years of service with our school district. During that time, Dan has served as our director of our facility maintenance, transportation, and grounds. He has worked many long days as he starts around 4:30 a.m. to get the buses ready and doesn't finish until the last bus comes back from the routes around 4:30 p.m. As a small token of appreciation for his hard work and dedication, Dan was recognized this past Monday as the "Salado Rotary Educator of the Month."

I have posted a "Chief Facilities and Operations Officer" position to replace Dan. This person will be responsible for strategic planning, budget, and facility maintenance and development program. The scope of authority will include the oversight of all plant maintenance and operations.

The case for the Green nergy Plan is based on the alleged climate crisis being so dire that it must overwhelm all cost- and-benefit analysis. Actually, we have already been making incremental progress in reducing emissions, thanks largely to natural gas, which the Green Energy Plan can't abide. While global emissions have been increasing since 2005, U.S. emissions have been declining. Even if we were to kneecap ourselves with the Green Energy Plan. the world's biggest emitter wouldn't follow suit. According to research by the green group CoalSwarm, China is now developing as much new coal capacity as currently exists in the U.S. Pressed on the plausibility of the Green New Deal by Anderson Cooper on "60 Minutes," Ocasio-Cortez said we must pursue change we don't conceive as possible. The Green New Deal certainly meets that standard. It's the perfect program for a movement that has no idea of how to make means meet ends, and doesn't even care to try.

tez's so-called Green New

The Green New Deal calls for a top-down revolution in the operation of American society so sweeping that it would be disturbing if it weren't so wholly ridiculous. It shows all the thoughtfulness of a college sophomore pulling an all-nighter to write a term paper for his Millennial Socialism 101 class.

The Green New Deal, as explained in draft legislation to create a congressional committee to pursue it, would transition to 100 percent renewable sources of national power in 10 years. Since renewables only account for 17 percent of U.S. power now (7.5 percent from hydropower, which might not pass muster under the Green New Deal), the plan would require shuttering more than 80 percent of current sources of American power.

This isn't like a European country adopting an ambitious goal for renewables (Denmark wants to be at 50 percent by 2030); it is a country with more recoverable oil reserves than Saudi Arabia and Russia spurning a stupendous source of national wealth to take a flyer on a lunatic experiment.

is on Tuesday, January 29.

The architects of the Green New Deal apparently believe that once you have lost touch with reality with one proposal, you might as well pile on as many wildeyed schemes as possible.

It would build a new energy-efficient grid, itself a massive proposition.

It would upgrade every -- not just many, not even most, but every -- residential and industrial building for energy efficiency. There are 136 million homes in the United States.

It would eliminate emissions from industry, including farming, offering instead a vision of investment "in local-scale agriculture." It would eliminate emissions from transportation, which sounds like mandatory electric cars and hydrogen-powered planes.

Because the Green New Deal aspires to achieve all of socialism in one energy plan, it includes a federal job guarantee with a living wage and perhaps "basic income programs" and "universal health care."

There's nothing the Green New Deal can't do. It would "mitigate deeply entrenched racial, regional, and gender-based inequali-

By Richard Lee Senate News Service

(Austin) The Legislature will pass sweeping reforms to the way it pays for public schools this session, according to the leaders of both chambers and Governor Greg Abbott. Abbott appeared with Lt. Governor Dan Patrick and newly elected House Speaker Dennis Bonnen at a press conference on Wednesday to announce that all three were committed to addressing education funding and property tax growth in 2019. "If the three of us are aligned, that we're going to accomplish a mission, and pass legislation, it happens," said Patrick. "This is not just a message to the public and to the media, but I think our members will take note, that this is really unprecedented, that we're addressing these issues at the beginning of session, totally united with one another."

A commission made up of stakeholders, experts and lawmakers studied the issue over the interim and issued findings and recommendations in December last year. The Texas Commission on Public School Finance found that the current formulas that determine how much each school gets per student are outdated and insufficient to meet the needs of students, especially those from low-income backgrounds, those with special education needs and those learning English. They recommended an overhaul of allotments and weights, the variables that drive the funding formulas, to redirect $3.5 billion in existing funds towards these vulnerable populations as well as other programs that produce strong educational outcomes for all students.

The commission also made recommendations for property tax reform, offering three solutions but not recommending one above another. The commission found that the amount of recapture, that is local property tax revenue above a certain threshold remitted to the state and then redirected to property-poor districts, is increasing significantly. The number of districts paying recapture is more than 200, up many times more than the 34 who originally paid recapture when the law was passed in 1993. One proposed solution would use growth in recapture to compress local property tax rates. Another would take this growth and divide it equally among the state, school districts, and taxpayers. The final plan would simply cap property tax growth at 2.5 percent per year. What eventually reaches the Senate floor will be developed by a newly formed committee on property taxes.

Also this week, budget writers found out how much money they'll have to work with as they figure out how to pay for state services for the next two years when Comptroller Glenn Hegar issued his biennial reveconstitutionally prohibited from spending more than it takes in, so this estimate sets a cap on how much lawmakers can appropriate. Unlike in 2017, when legislators arrived in Austin to discover they had less money to work with than the previous session, strong economic growth and sales tax collections have increased available revenue by eight percent over last session, for a total of just under $120 billion in non-dedicated general revenue.

Hegar also releases growth projections for the Texas economy with the revenue estimate, and he said that a recovery in the oil market in 2018 and expansion of the national economy led to robust 3 percent growth in gross state product, and forecast an even stronger four percent rate for 2019. Beyond that, he said, economic uncertainties cloud the state's economic prospects. Rising federal interest rates, a drop in the price of a barrel of oil from its October high, and volatility in the global market and questions about US global trade policy will rein in growth. While the state should still outpace the national economy, he said, his office predicts more modest growth in GSP of 2.5 percent in each year of the 2020-2021 biennium. The Senate will reconvene Tuesday, January 15 at 11

Watchdog groups oppose Interior Department's FOIA proposal

By Eric Galatas Public News Service Texas

AUSTIN, Texas – The U.S. Interior Department has taken steps to restrict public records requests allowed through the Freedom of Information Act, or FOIA.

The proposal would allow the agency to deny requests that it deems "burdensome" or "vague," and officials at the agency say it's necessary because FOIA requests are bogging down the department's work.

Jayson O'Neill, deputy director of the Western Values Project, calls the move an attack on open public records and transparency.

"As our organization and others have found, there's been a clear link between special interests, industry interests and the work and the rule changes that have been done at Interior under this administration," he states.

Without access to government records, O'Neill says his group would not have uncovered documents showing industry requests for changes to the Greater Sage-Grouse Management Plan to tip the scale for oil and gas producers over ranching and other interests. Interior Department officials also say the changes are needed because FOIA requests have been used for political reasons.

O'Neill says under previous administrations, Interior Department moves were made in an open and public process.

He says watchdog organizations such as his and the news media rely on the Freedom of Information Act when agencies aren't transparent in their decision making. "Citing an uptick in requests when you're making decisions behind closed doors, that obviously is going to be the outcome because these affect our public lands, our wildlife, our waters – our way of life out in the West," O'Neill stresses.

The public has until Jan. 28 to comment on the Interior Department's proposal.

According to The Hill newspaper, due to the government shutdown, the agency isn't currently processing public comments.

Interior also is the only federal agency that has shut down online FOIA requests until the government reopens.

New organ Console Dedication Jan. 20 St. John Lutheran Church, Bartlett celebrates Phase 1 upgrade

By Nelwyn Persky

What has over 1,000 pipes and can make your heart sing?

For worshippers at St. John Lutheran Church in Bartlett, the answer is their historic mid-century pipe organ.

To celebrate completion of Phase 1 of their project to preserve this stately instrument for future generations, the congregation invites the public to join them in celebrating the dedication of their new organ console to the greater glory of God at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, January 20. The distinctively towering red-brick country church is located a mile north of Bartlett on Highway 95.

Worship will be led by The Rev. Dr. Rebecca Sogge. Two noted guest musicians will provide music during the service: organist Ken Mowell of Killeen, and flutist Sheryl Goodnight of Temple.

Ken, who was in charge of the several-months-long effort to replace the pre-1951 organ console, is a partner with Gary Franklin in Viscount Organs of Texas. Their organ repair and sales company specializes in digital, pipe and hybrid digital-pipe organs. Ken also is the organist at First Presbyterian Church in Lampasas.

Sheryl is in her 25th season as Principle Flutist of the Temple Symphony Orchestra. She is on the Adjunct Faculty of both the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor and Temple College. In addition to her solo career and maintaining a private studio in her home, she teaches privately for Lake Belton Middle School. Sheryl has frequently joined Bartlett's Lutheran congre-

1950-51 with 1,217 pipes (more have been added in the ensuing years), this historic organ was "the most important and largest of all Lutheran organs in Texas." It was custom-built by the renowned Texas organ builder Otto Hofman, who noted:

"This organ is the first in the state to use the regal-type reed in the pedal organ, and one of the first in the state to be installed in the open in the gallery of the church, much in the manner that organs are being installed in Europe and among the finer circles in this country. ...

"The organ is placed in an open position in the choir loft so that the pipes can be heard in all their glory and in full bloom. Great care was taken to arrange the pipes artistically so that the lines would be pleasing to the eye. The natural lines of pipes, the colors and materials used, are all so beautiful that to bury them in a closet would rob the church of its richest adornment; the showing signs of its age. Patchwork repairs were no longer effective, and sometimes not even possible. On the console keyboard, aging ivory keys, keys that had already been glued and reglued too many times, have been breaking, and breaking off. The console stops, also made of ivory and used to admit pressurized air to a set of organ pipes, have cracked so much they cannot be used, the original gothic German lettering crumbling to illegibility. The swell pedal, needed to make the music louder or softer, hasn't worked for much too long.

Other problems reside in the pipes themselves, necessitating a future revamping the entire system of pipes and 1950s wiring. No one knows when a ghostly -- or shrieking -- sound of a wayward pipe will unexpectedly impose its startling sound in mid-sermon, too often just as the Pastor was getting to the good part, the part that was so good it fund -- the pipe renovation in the next phase.

Even at its 1950-51 installation, the organ components were not all new, but repurposed and recrafted by master organ builder Otto Hofmann of Austin. Today, its age is showing. But rather than scrap the magnificent instrument, the congregation voted to repair the pipes and replace the no-longer-viable console in a two-phased project. As the initial step in addressing these and additional problems with the aging instrument, the console components have been totally replaced with a new Viscount hybrid console. All console components and associated labor were completed under contract with Ken Mowell.

The congregation has already begun to enjoy the beauty of the console sound, even though the console cannot be connected to the imposing array of pipes until funds are raised for the second part of the existing historic pipe organ upgrade repairs, when the 68-year-old wiring and the aging pipe components themselves can be repaired.

The pipe organ is played from the console, or keydesk, which holds the keyboards, foot pedals and stop controls. will comprise the next and final step to set up the organ for another half-century or more, following efforts to raise the significant funds required for the extensive effort.

Phase 1 of the organ-renovation project was conducted under the leadership of Duane Kurtin, SJLC Council Chairman; Music & Worship committee chairwoman Donna Campbell; and church property committee members Ronnie Persky, Justin Young, Lenard Steglich, and Dr. Franklin Smalley. The dedication service is being planned by SJLC organist Debra Caldwell, choir director Dotty Kneten, Fellowship Committee chairwoman Imogene Morris, and Ronnie Persky.

Any offering received during the service will be dedicated to the SJLC Organ Fund to initiate the Phase 2 fundraising effort for repair and renovation of the historic pipe organ. An "adopt-a-pipe" fundraiser is planned to provide interested individuals the opportunity to help make the pipe-organ renovation possible.

The congregation of St. John Lutheran Church welcomes the public to join in their January 20 service of worship and dedication.

create lasting unique memories of this incredible artistic process. Glassblowers ages 21 and older can actually participate first hand in blowing their own glass bowl. For this event, an alcoholic beverage in a premade glass drinking vessel is included in the price. How does it work? With the help of Salado Glassworks' professional artists, after the initial gather of hot glass participants use their breath to blow, reheat, and help the Salado Glassworks artist select tools to shape the bowl.

The customer may pick three colors to craft their glass bowl at a more laid back pace to work with the artist and enjoy the evening. Online reservations are required for the "Blow Your Own" Date Night event, and spaces quickly fill.

CTAS Star Party held Jan. 19

The Central Texas Astronomical Society (CTAS) will host a public star party 5:45 - 9 p.m. on Jan. 19. The free event will be held at Overlook Park near the Stillhouse Hollow Lake dam just outside of Salado.

CTAS members will provide telescopes for public viewing. Guests are welcome to bring their own telescopes or binoculars.

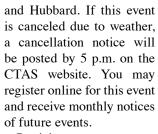

High in the winter sky you will find the bright open cluster known as The Pleiades (M45) in the constellation Taurus the Bull. Also the bright nebula M42 better known as the Great Orion Nebula is visible due South. Both of these objects can be seen with the naked eye and the Pleiades are especially beautiful in even the smallest pair of binoculars.

In the northern sky, you can find the Perseus Double Cluster as well as the Andromeda Galaxy. The public might even be able to spot a couple of globular clusters such as M2 in Aquarius and M15 in Pegasus. There's also some open clusters visible such as M35 in Gemini and a trio (M36, M37, and M38) in Auriga.

Comet 46P (Wirtanen) finishes its trip through the solar system this month as a fading comet as it passes through Ursa Major. It will still be visible for a bit longer

Mars is the only evening planet visible this month. At dark, it's about halfway up the southwest sky and sets at around 11 p.m. All the other planets are early morning stars. Attendees will look at these and many other celestial objects this month.

Check http://www.centexastronomy.org, for directions to the site or to get information on other CTAS Star Parties held in Waco Participants may want to bring a small flashlight (preferably with a red filter) to get around the parking lot and viewing area and a lawn chair to make viewing more comfortable. Be sure to dress warmer than you think you need to due to wind coming off the lake.

Get your recipes ready as Salado Public Library hosts Soup Swap! 6 - 7 p.m. on January 31. Adults are encouraged to bring five one-quart containers of your favorite soup and four copies of your recipe. Attendees will taste test and get a chance to choose five containers of soup to take home. For more information contact the Salado Public Library.

Needle artists of all types enjoy meeting in Salado. Salado Public Library offers Sit and Knit (crochet is welcome too) Tuesdays from 10 a.m. - noon. Salado Village Artists welcomes Knitters from 1 - 4 p.m. on Mondays with Stitchers joining at 1:30. On Tuesday Salado Village Artists encourages needle work artists to join their brush artists from 9 - 11 a.m. at the Salado Village Artist building behind the Civic Center.

Texas Stagecoach Wine Trail plan your journey Jan. 24 - 28

Nine Central Texas wineries invite you to taste complimentary wines and create photographic memories at their locations during the five day Texas Stagecoach Wine Trail January 24-28, 2019.

Salado Winery at 841 N. Main St. will join 3 Texans Vineyard, Country Spring Vineyard, Dancing Bee Winery, Kissing Tree Vineyards, Moose and Goose Winery, Red Caboose Winery Clifton, Valley Mills Vineyards and Waco Winery.

Participants will have five days to visit the nine wineries, at each of which they can enjoy up to three complimentary tasting.

Those who check in to all nine wineries on social media, using #TxStagecoachWineTrail and #Tx-Wine will be entered into a drawing to win a gift basket. Business hours vary among wineries so please verify their business hours as you plan your route.

"You may check in at one of many wineries in order to receive your Texas Stagecoach Wine Trail commemorative glass," said June Ritterbusch of Salado Winery. "You choose which winery to start at when you purchase your ticket. You have to stick with this choice because wineglasses don't move through the interwebs and they are prepositioned the week prior to the event!"

Tickets will not be sold at the door. Buy them online for $29.95 at Eventbrite, keyword Texas Stagecoach Wine Trail. The value of the wine tastings and commemorative glass is more than $95.

"We will be posting special offers from area lodging facilities, dining establishments and recommended tour companies," Ritterbusch added. "Also, when you purchase your Texas Stagecoach Wine Trail ticket, your confirmation will contain discount codes for area lodging facilities such as Stagecoach Inn here in Salado."

"At each winery, there will be plenty of opportunities to purchase additional wine tastings, and buy cool souvenirs," she said, "so bring your wallet."

Traveling groups of more than eight must contact the wineries at least a day before so they can plan on your arrival.

Open 7 days a week 8 am - 9 pm Happy Hour 3 - 6 pm weekdays Weekend Brunch 11 am - 3 pm

In this deal from the 1997 world team championship final between France and the United States, judgment rather than superior card play or systemic bidding differences played the key role in a substantial gain for the French.

The bidding shown occurred when Bobby Wolff and Bob Hamman, for two decades one of the world's foremost pairs, were North-South for the U.S., with Michel Perron and Paul Chemla East-West for France. Hamhis next turn, the opponents were in five clubs. Hamman elected to make a forcing pass, whereupon Wolff rebid his diamonds.

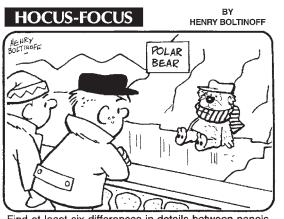

Hamman now showed his true colors by bidding five hearts, and Wolff was at the crossroads. He knew that a cuebid of six clubs, showing firstround control of clubs and implying interest in a grand slam, was the correct bid, but he feared that if only a small slam could be made, his cuebid might provoke the opponents into taking a profitable sacrifice at seven clubs. So he settled for a raise to six hearts, figuring that plus 1,430 or 1,460 was better than setting seven clubs doubled four or five tricks.

Wolff was correct in this regard, since seven clubs doubled would probably have gone down five for 1,100 points. But the tactic did not allow for the possibility that the French pair at the other table might bid and make seven hearts for a score of 2,210.

Wolff's "less is more" strategy did indeed backfire when Christian Mari and Alain Levy reached the grand slam despite similar interference by Eric Rodwell and Jeff Meckstroth. The 750-point difference gave the French a pickup of 13 IMPs, which helped them capture the world title that year.

The House Finch (Carpodacus mexicanus) is unquestionably one of the most common, although lesser known birds in North America, occurring in every state in the Union. This was not always the case however, for at one time it was restricted to the western United States. The first introductions in the east began in New York in the 1940's, and from there it has spread rather rapidly throughout the remainder of the continental U.S. It is not a migratory species, which means that it can be observed here at any time of the year.

Adult males of this species are quite conspicuous with their colorful adornment of a bright ruby-red breast and face. The back during the non-breeding season. During the breeding season, they known to pair up with the male and female remaining monogamous during such time. The nest is constructed by the female and is typically found in human structures such as the backs of advertising billboards, street signs, and bird boxes. It will occasionally utilize abandoned nests from other species of birds.

The 2 to 6 eggs are small (roughly ³/₄ inch by ¹/₂ inch) and are usually colored a light blue with black spots that are found primarily on the larger end of the egg. These eggs hatch in about two weeks after being incubated by the female, and both parents share the responsibility of care-giving to the helpless young until they leave the nest approximately three weeks after hatching. Juveniles are colored similar to the adult females. Up to three broods per year have been recorded.

This avian variety is definitely one species of bird that has adapted quite well to human habitation, with many individuals seen foraging in lawns and gardens. They are not particularly bashful, and many will utilize bird feeders that are littered with seeds such as millet and sunflower. This species was first introduced to the eastern United States as a cage bird due to its dazzling colors.

HOME SAFETY PLAN

Every home should have a fire and safety escape plan in case of an emergency. Here are a few things you can do to safeguard your family:

- Have a fire extinguisher on each level of your home and know how to use it.
- Include a fire escape ladder in each bedroom on the upper levels of your home. Practice your escape route in the dark or with your eyes closed.
- Install dual sensor smoke alarms that can detect high flames as well as smoky fires. Change the batteries and vacuum the units at least twice a year. Set off the smoke detector so everyone knows what it sounds like.
- Know the location of the fuse box and the main shutoff valves for the water and gas lines of your home.
- On a regular basis have a fire drill and practice your family's fire escape plan. Designate a safe meeting area away from your home once evacuated.
