SISD Trustees discuss bids, financial status May 19

The Salado ISD Board of Trustees met in regular session May 19 at the Salado Civic Center to approve bids for construction of the Middle School. The majority of bids will be approved at the June meeting.

Because the board meeting was held after presstime for this issue, actions taken by the board will be reported in the May 27 issue of Salado Village Voice.

New trustees Frank Carlson and Carse Williams were administered their oaths of office and the board reorganized, electing officers for 1998-99.

During her superintendent's report, Dr. Robin Battershell discussed the 1998-99 Food Service budget, including a meeting with Pat Goode, Rod Stockstill and Stephanie Abassi from region 12. Dr. Battershell will present several options to the board in later meetings, including these:

Eliminating the snack bar at the elementary school, thereby decreasing staff.

Maintaining the high school snack bar with 1-1/2 workers.

Shifting the number of hours worked for cafeteria employees whereby more employees are present during peak times and fewer employees are required at other times, decreasing the daily number of hours worked.

Using Coop bidding.

Having a nutrition analysis completed free of charge by Baylor University.

Having Abassi complete a job analysis during August/September, free of charge.

Using Commodity Processing.

Dr. Battershell also reported that the administration is exploring having high school administrators move to the Seventh/Eighth grade wing during the summer. There are individual air-conditioner units which can be operated much less expensively. The thermostat could then be set on 80 degrees for the rest of the building. Current monthly utility costs of the high school are near $8,000.

The board also heard a report on the response from Dr. Ed Flathouse, from the Texas Education Agency, concerning the school district's financial status.

According to Dr. Robin Battershell, Dr. Flathouse approved three requests made to TEA by Dr. Paul Fleming April 9:

1. Calculate and pay 1997-98 state funds based on the Fall 1997 PEIMS data, which will generate additional cash for the district this year.

2. Give the district additional time to refund the overpayment so that it isn't all due this year.

3. Advance the final August payment of state funds.

Dr. Flathouse stipulated that it is imperative that the school district hire someone to help the district calculate revenue for 1998-99. He also recommends that the district consider hiring a business manager in the future.

According to Dr. Battershell, Dr. Flathouse's approval was based upon SISD having completed all recommendations made by Dr. Fleming and SISD submitting a quarterly report to him detailing procedures which will keep the district in good financial standing.

5 volume series of books memorializes spur maker

by Tumbleweed Smith

J. Martin Basinger ranches near Slaton. Recently, he has gone into the book publishing business. He and his daughter, Laura Lynn Wilson, are in the midst of doing a five volume series about a spur maker.

Sounds kinda strange, you say? You're right. But these two folks are serious about what they're doing. They've done all the work themselves, laying out their page and cover designs on tables and floors in their office in Slaton. They have traveled the country to find the best people to do the finest work possible so their books can be first class. On deluxe editions, which sell for $200, the pages are hand marbled: colorful designs show up on the page edges when the books are closed. It's an old art you seldom see today.

The subject of the series of books is a man named Adolph Bayers, who made bits and spurs from model T car axles around Truscott, Texas. His original drawings and spur orders are included in each volume, along with hundreds of photos and short stories about the people who bought the spurs.

The book is called ARTISTRY IN SILVER AND STEEL and sells for $49.95 from J. Martin or Laura Lynn at 806/828-6919. Only 200 of the individually numbered limited edition leather bound versions will be produced for each of the five volumes. They've published two volumes. Volume one has 360 pages, volume two has 460 pages. Volume two has already gone into its second printing. Volume three is due out in the fall. The book has sold all over the world to bit and spur collectors, cowboys, polo enthusiasts and people interested in our country's western heritage. The book is huge. Pages are 8 1/2 x 11 inches.

J. Martin ordered his first pair of spurs from Adolph Bayers in 1961. Six years passed before he got them. Mr. Bayers was always six to fifteen years behind in his work. He only made spurs when he felt like it. He never made spurs for celebrities. He made them for working cowboys and priced them accordingly. He charged twelve to fifteen dollars a pair.

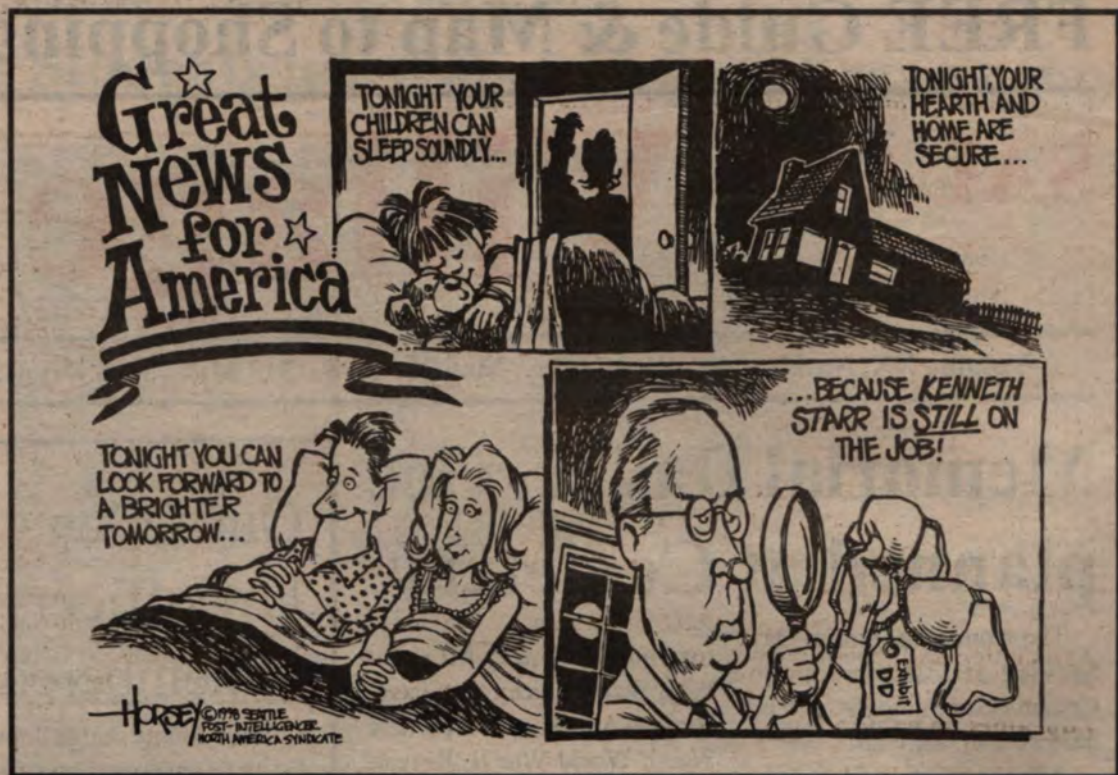

J. Martin started buying spurs made by Bayers from people who owned them. He paid $150 to $200 for each pair. He kept buying them until the price got to be over $1,000. He wishes now he had kept on buying them. Today those spurs are bringing $10,000. "There'll be some of Bayers bits and spurs sold in the near future for twenty thousand dollars," says J. Martin.

Mr. Bayers kept good records. "After he got through with a pair, he drew them to actual size with every detail including engraving, measurement, date and who he made them for," says J. Martin.

When Mr. Bayers passed away in 1978, all his records went to J. Martin. "People have offered as much as five hundred dollars a page, but of course I wouldn't split these records up."

J. Martin says he had no qualms about making his books something special. "Mr. Bayers would not turn out anything that wasn't absolutely a work of art. We're not either."

J. Martin and Laura Lynn started producing the books in 1996. They don't know how long it will take them to tell the story of Adolph Bayers.

Teachers turning to labor unions in hopes of better pay, benefits

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

Education in general, and graduation in particular, are on our minds these days as the Cap-And-Gown crowd takes over the news at all levels from kindergarten to graduate schools across America.

Education has been a front-burner subject for nearly four decades, starting with the 1957 Russian Sputnik that lent credence to the cold war fear that the Soviet Union was ahead of us in science and math.

American education was immediately blamed and with a follow-up blast describing the plight of "Johnny" and his inability to read, the financial and public support of public education started a downward spiral.

In more recent years this disaffection caused every kid to suffer through the TAAS testing rigors; brought doubt in the minds of parents and taxpayers about what is being taught and how prepared the teachers are that do the teaching.

And many lawmakers, not wanting to miss the boat, are on board with ideas that range from silly to inane to disruptive - which can always be expected when ignorance meets arrogance in the legislative halls of our long suffering nation.

With all this facing the administrators and teachers of this country, one would think their problem-plates would be full enough, but now we learn that millions of classroom teachers will be turning to labor unions as a barricade against further assaults by the public as well as the lack of adequate compensation that continues to dwindle as demands for a more perfect product increase. More on this in a moment.

TEACHING EVERYONE IS DEMANDING TASK

Unfortunately, few have memories long enough to recall that education in these

United States was designed to be open to everyone regardless of ability, background, language skills, handicaps. It has been this way since the early days of our country - a novel experiment to educate everyone within certain age limits at public expense.

Added to this burden is the fact that teachers and principals are not allowed to segregate kids according to mental acumen and general ability, desire to learn, vocational interests and/or behavior.

Teaching all children regardless of differences in one classroom setting is the unfortunate current regimen, particularly at pre-secondary levels. Then following this up with national standardized examinations and using the results to grade teachers as well as pass or hold back youngsters at certain grade levels, based on one test, rivals foolishness on the grand scale.

Is it any wonder that teachers are being forced to spend an inordinate amount of time teaching kids to pass national quizzes rather than the comprehensive curriculum they were trained to teach?

And now, after absorbing the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune from lawmakers, school boards, an unforgiving taxpaying public and an impatient complaining national parent community - teachers have come to what many consider is a bad decision, by a hapless occupation that very much wants, but has not achieved, the status and funding of a true profession. Ergo, the movement by many educators to labor unionism.

TEACHERS TO WEAR THE UNION LABEL

Sometime this summer the giant National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers will merge and become one of the largest components of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations - the AFL-CIO.

Well over three million teachers will then be wearing the union label while seeking higher wages, better working conditions, shorter hours through arbitration and the ultimate weapon, strikes, in states where that is permitted.

Teacher Unions In Texas

In Texas, the history of teacher organizations is interesting and has had a profound impact on salaries. The Texas State Teachers Association was for years the premier voice of the profession in the state.

Teachers, principals, superintendents, counselors were all part of this powerful professional lobby and when they went to Austin seeking higher salaries and a larger share of the tax dollar to support public education - they spoke with authority - political and social.

They were listened to and usually good things happened.

During the 1960's a change took place that saw teachers challenge administrators for control of TSTA and eventually the teachers took over.

The administrators were given the boot and at once the legislature found they could deal with a teacher-only group with ease. No longer did they have to worry about the huge TSTA led by superintendents who carried a lot of political clout locally. As a result teacher pay hikes slowed down and the professional teacher lost ground.

TSTA then joined forces with the NEA which early on denied it was a union. Later the union tag stuck and now with the AFL-CIO merger - we see a true labor organization evolving from what used to be a professional alliance.

A large number of Texas teachers, thankfully including the vast majority of our professional instructors here in Salado, forswore the unionist movement and joined independent professional groups including the Texas Classroom Teachers Association and the Association of Texas Professional Educators, to name a few.

Administrators, supervisors and counselors organized their own groups. School boards stayed with their statewide school board association that to this day has very little to say when it comes to school legislation matters.

The overall result has been a splintering of the education community which means the legislature can continue to pay teachers a salary that ranks them 35th in the nation; can determine classroom size; testing of both kids and teachers and a whole host of other items that would never have seen the light of day had the pros stuck together in one non-union professional educators organization.

HALCYON DAYS GONE

The teachers and administrators in those halcyon days of a unified professional organization rarely heard the charge that they were not doing a good job teaching. They rarely faced a complaining public and legislature that seems determined to let parents choose between public and private schools - all at taxpayer expense.

And the reason was simple. The professionals did their job well, without the micro-management that today is exhibited by parent advocacy groups, state and local boards of education and legislators. Early educators brooked no interference from those untrained in teaching. And the product was competitive.

It was only when teachers and principals and superintendents began to distrust each other and split their professional organizational blanket did they start to fall apart. A vacuum appeared and leaderless confusion took over.

PENDULUM WILL SWING BACK

All is not lost despite the foregoing because when things reach the point where the inmates start running the asylum, changes begin to take place. The bright and the wise step in and cause the pendulum of common sense to swing back to normalcy.

Things will get better because there remains a corps of educators who won't let the system fail. There are citizens who will come forward and lead the way. And surprisingly enough, there will be lawmakers who will eventually step up and deliver the funds and the laws needed to make our system work properly.

We have seen some of all this happen right here in Salado and as a result we have a school system we can be rightfully proud of and a corps of teachers who rate the "professional" stamp.

So it is that Saladoans, as another school year ends, can truthfully salute with pride, our local educators from classroom to administration, from counselors to supervisors, from aides to support staff, even while we wonder aloud "how", and many times "why", they bother.

But thank goodness they do, perhaps because they may see - where we cannot - a better day ahead! And a goal worth the effort!

Salado United Methodist Church invites children to a tropical island adventure. The church has an exciting summer program planned for the children in the Salado community June 22-26.

This summer, the church will transform into SonLight Island, where children will discover the treasure of God's love.

The Vacation Bible School will feature songs, skits, crafts, games, Bible studies and snacks, all of the things which make VBS popular with children and their parents.

"On top of that, we will be helping children grow in their love for God and learn to share His love with others," said volunteer Leigh Drake.

The SonLight Vacation Bible School will be 9-11:30 a.m. June 22-26 at the Salado United Methodist Church. It is open to children ages 4 through sixth grade.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE We Are All God's People

"For the Lord will not cast away his people, for his great name's sake, because it has pleased the Lord to make you a people for himself."

— 1 Samuel 12:22

We can all take comfort in knowing that the Lord will not forsake us. We are all God's creation, the rich with the poor, the young with the old, the good with the evil. Yet it is His magnanimous nature that allows Him to tolerate such contrast. He knows that few can resist the temptations that life offers, but He is willing to make allowances for our weaknesses, for He will not cast away what is His. That does not mean that He condones misdeeds or will easily forgive. But God is a gracious being, offering us the hope and the choice to walk in the paths of His righteousness, always proffering His love and protection.

A Tax Assessor came to a poor minister to determine the amount of taxes he would have to pay.

"What do you possess?" he asked.

"Oh, I am wealthy," replied the minister.

"List your possessions," the assessor instructed.

"First, I have everlasting life (John 3:16). Secondly, I have a mansion in Heaven (John 14:2). Thirdly, I have peace that passes understanding (Phillipians 4:7). Fourth, I have joy unspeakable (I Peter 1:8). Fifth, I have divine love that never fails (I Corinthians 13:8). Sixth, I have a faithful wife (Proverbs 31:10). Seventh, I have healthy, happy, obedient children (Exodus 20:12). Eighth, I have true, loyal friends (Proverbs 18:24). Ninth, I have songs in the night (Psalms 42:8). Tenth, I have a crown of life awaiting (James 1:12)."

The tax collector closed his book and said, "Truly, you are a very rich man, but your property is not subject to taxation!"

My friend, are you "rich toward God (Luke 12:21)?" The poorest person in the world is he whose only wealth is money.

Bush marries Voelter May 16

Teresa Catharine Bush of Salado and Andrew Kinnison Voelter of Salado were married May 16, 1998 at the Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Cornhill. Father Arthur Michalka performed the double-ring ceremony.

The brides parents are Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bush of Salado. The groom's parents are Karen Kinnison of Salado and David Voelter of Georgetown.

The bride wore a gown with an open sweetheart neckline edged with pearls. The silk Basque bodice was covered with Alencon lace pearls, capped lace sleeves trimmed with sequins. The bouquet finished the mood with Stargazer lilies, pink blue-bonnets, rose and babys breath.

Baseball team wins district title with extra-inning win over Hutto

The Salado Eagles baseball team captured the District 26-2A title May 16 by defeating the Hutto Hippos, 7-6 in nine innings, in a district playoff game at neutral-site Georgetown High.

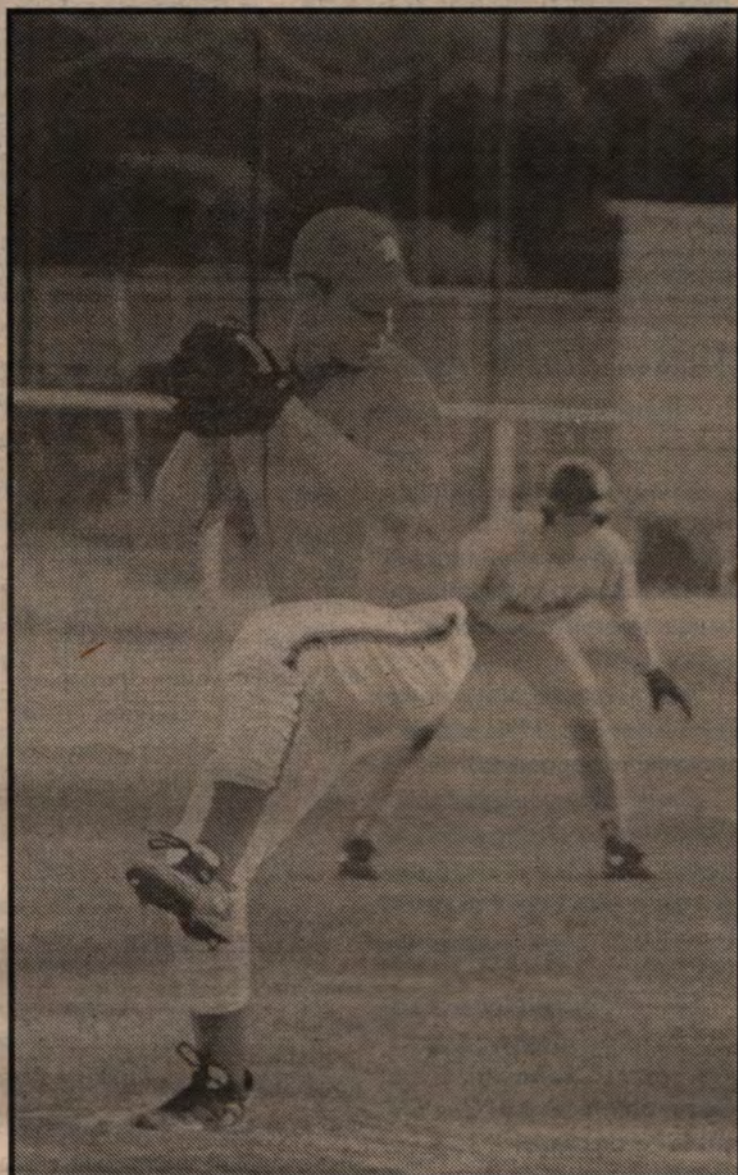

The game was required, after both teams finished the regular season tied for first place with 11-1 district marks. Their lone district loss was to each other.

Salado (21-2) will open the Class 2A state playoffs against Academy, the District 25-2A runner-up, in a best-of-three series beginning May 22 at 7 p.m. at Temple High. The next game will be at 1 p.m. May 23 at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, with a possible third game to follow thereafter.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for students.

Just like the two previous games between Salado and Hutto (20-5), the third one was -- in the words of Coach Melvin Bates -- "wild, crazy and exciting."

The boisterous crowd of close to 1,000 got its money's worth. See Baseball, Page 11A

America can depend on Farmers

Imagine this scenario come football season: Salado and Troy meeting for the District 26-2A championship in the regular season finale Nov. 6 in Troy.

Hey, it could happen.

The district lost the top two finishers from last season, state finalist Rogers and district runner-up Hutto, during the state-wide realignment of districts earlier this year.

Verses and Versus by John Eubanks

Salado's Eagles finished third in 26-2A with a 3-2 record and 6-4 overall (not 5-5 as was reported in the athletic banquet story from the May 13 issue).

Troy's Trojans move down from Class 3A and should be a formidable opponent.

The Eagles will play their first two district opponents at home: district newcomer Academy Oct. 9 and last year's fourth-place team, Holland, Oct. 16.

That's followed by an Oct. 23 game at another district newcomer, Johnson City. Game time is 8 p.m. (as opposed to the usual 7:30 p.m. district starts) to allow fans more time to get there.

A home game Oct. 30 with Florence will be followed by the game at Troy.

Head coach Joe Mullins said the schools randomly draw their district opponents, and Troy-Salado came up for the district finale.

Archrivals usually play the last game of the season, and this matchup may be the start of something special.

Speaking of special starts, Cedar Park High in the Leander ISD will begin playing football this season. Its opponent on Sept. 25 will be Salado, which will play a team of freshman and sophomores for homecoming. Cedar Park will reportedly become a Class 4A or 5A varsity for the 2000 season, when the current sophs are seniors.

The 1998 football schedule is as follows:

8-28 at Crawford 5 pm

SOFTBALL UPDATE

The Jarrell softball team, which tied Salado for second place in the district, will advance to the Class 2A/1A state tournament in Austin May 22 at Pleasant Valley Sportsplex.

The Lady Cougars (17-4) will play Blooming Grove (28-7-2) at 3 p.m. The winner will meet the winner of the 1 p.m. Grand Saline-Coahoma game at 9 a.m. May 23 at UT's McCombs Softball Field.

Jarrell advanced to the final four after beating fellow district foe Holland, 3-2, in a regional contest. Holland captured the District 26-2A title and was the odds-on favorite to advance to state because of two outstanding pitchers.

But Jarrell scored three runs in the second inning and held off a two-run Holland rally in the final inning.

Jarrell defeated Salado 4-3 April 20 in a district playoff game to determine the district's second playoff team.

If you recall, Jarrell's volleyball team advanced to the final four this school year before losing in the title game. Should Jarrell win the softball title, it would occur within a week of the one-year anniversary of the devastating Jarrell tornado.

It would be nice for Salado to say that it ended the regular season tied for second in district with the eventual state champ.

Much of Salado's success goes to pitchers Shelly Dillon and Stacy Krueger. They were named co-MVPs at the athletic banquet May 7, but their names were left out of the story in the May 13 edition.

Error on the "write" fielder.

If you attended any of the state track and field meet in Austin May 15-16, you witnessed the last state meet at Memorial Stadium, where it's been held for some 75 years.

Three things stood out from the Class 1A and 2A portions that I witnessed: the runner-up in the boys 200-meter dash, who pulled up 10 yards shy of the final line (thinking he had crossed the line) and lost the gold medal; the girl from Wheeler in the Class A high hurdles, who laid motionless for several minutes after landing hard on the track; and, last but not least, the hazy conditions that blanketed Austin.

Saturday will go down as one of my busier days of late.

After racing to Austin before the noon start of the track meet (greeting Saladoan Dennis Cabaniss in the ticket line) and watching 3 1/2 hours of track, I took a 30-minute swim in the 69-degree waters of Deep Eddy Pool (to wash off the layer of gunk from the Austin air), before heading to Georgetown to take photos of the Salado-Hutto district playoff baseball game at 7.

I then raced to Salado to change clothes, before heading to the Expo Center in time for the 8 o'clock kickoff of the Texas Bullets-Green Bay Bombers eight-man indoor grid game on a 50-yard field.

It was my first game of that type to cover, and my head was spinning from the action. When the dust had cleared, both teams had scored a league-record 120 points total.

As the game ended, I thought I heard a pop similar to when a pin-ball signals a free game. It was just my back going out, after a very long day.

worth as the game was not decided until the ninth inning of the scheduled seven-inning contest.

The Eagles scored quickly, with three runs in the top of the first, as Paul Mashburn got things going with a leadoff walk. After a strikeout, David Kirk singled past third base. Adam Nuse then delivered a sacrifice fly to centerfield to score Mashburn.

The runners at first and second advanced then on a passed ball. When Chad Kiphart hit a ground ball to shortstop, the ball was fielded cleanly. But it was thrown over the first baseman's head, allowing the two baserunners to score, and making the score 3-0.

Hutto managed one run in the bottom of the first as Salado starting pitcher Chris Michna had control problems. Michna hit the leadoff hitter and walked the second man. Hutto's run came on a first and third double-steal situation.

The Eagles came back with two runs in the top of the second. Dan Alcozer drew a one-out walk, but was erased on Mashburn's fielder's choice.

Back-to-back two-out doubles by David Palmer and Kirk gave Salado a 5-1 lead.

The Hippos again scored a single run in the bottom half of the inning. The run came on a single, a walk and a double.

In the third inning, an Alcozar single scored Kiphart who had drawn a walk and moved to second on a passed ball. But the 6-2 lead was short-lived as Hutto scored two in the bottom of the third.

Neither team scored again until the bottom of the seventh. Adam Nuse made a fine defensive play in the bottom of the fourth to prevent Hutto from scoring. Recording an unassisted double play on a line drive to end a Hippo threat.

In the bottom of the seventh, Hutto used three singles, a hit batter and two wild pitches to tie the game. With the winning run on third base, Michna pulled himself together and struck out Hutto's number two batter.

Neither team scored in the eighth, although Hutto got a runner to third. Salado reliever Jon Phelps, who came in to start the eighth, coaxed two ground-ball outs, to get out of the inning.

Nuse led off the top of the ninth with a single, and Troy Smith came in to pinch-run for him. After a strikeout, Phelps hit a single off the first baseman's glove. A fielder's choice by Drew Oldham erased Phelps but placed runners on the corners.

As Oldham stole second, the Hutto catcher tried to pick Smith off third, but threw the ball into left field and allowed him to score the eventual winning run.

In the bottom of the inning, Phelps set the first two batters down on a ground-out to Nuse at third and a strikeout. After a single, the number three hitter in Hutto's lineup hit a grounder to Mashburn for a force-out at second, the ball game and the district championship.

Kirk was 2-of-3 on the night with an RBI. Palmer, Nuse and Alcozer all drove in a run, too.

Michna pitched the first seven innings of the game. "He showed a lot of character by battling without his best control," Bates said.

He struck out 10 on the night and allowed six hits. Phelps earned the win, his fifth of the season.

"The baseball team would like to thank the many fans who supported the team," Bates added. "You being there was the difference."

The Eagles wrapped up the season May 12 with a 19-7 win at Holland. Salado produced one of its biggest run totals this year, despite getting just two extra-base hits among 14 total hits. David Palmer was the winning pitcher, upping his record to 6-0.

Blake Cameron places seventh at state golf tourney, after placing 15th as a frosh last year

Cameron shot rounds of 77 and 74 for a 151 total.

Michael Pruitt of Idalou in West Texas, shot a 138 to capture his fourth consecutive Class 2A boys individual title. Pruitt shot a four-under par 67 during the second round to pull away from runner-up Riley Gardner of Hamilton.

Gardner led by one stroke after the first round with a 70, but shot a 75 the next day.

Hamilton still won the team title, with a 605, as three members of the team finished among the top 10. Memphis was a distance second with a 634.

Cameron's 151 was one stroke ahead of Hamilton's Brian Funderburk and one stroke behind Bubba Bailey of Memphis. Cameron was one of only five golfers who shot under 75 during the second day, in windy, hazy conditions.

Last year, as a freshman, Cameron placed 15th at the state tournament with rounds of 84 and 78 for a 162 total.

Cameron advanced to state this year by placing second at district and second at regionals. Regional champ Brad Bessler of Tidehaven faltered at state, placing 19th with rounds of 80 and 81 for a 161.

Salado Cemetery is one of the oldest community cemeteries in Central Texas, with the earliest known burial taking place in 1856.

Salado, formerly known as Salado Springs, was a busy stage-stop located on a well-traveled route between Austin and Waco, when a United States Post Office was opened on April 29, 1852, the second oldest in Bell County.

Among the families living in the area was that of William Tandy Bush, frontier Church of Christ preacher, whose first wife, Zilla, was the first person to be buried on land donated as a cemetery by Colonel E.S.C. Robertson. W.T. Bush is buried between Zilla and his second wife, Mary.

A review of the gravestones reveals many interesting facts about early Salado history. Other preachers buried here are the Reverend James E. Ferguson, a Methodist circuit-rider and Confederate soldier and the father of the late governor of Texas, James E.

Ferguson, The Reverend George Washington Baines, a Baptist, and the great-grandfather of the late President Lyndon Baines Johnson, and John Paine, another Church of Christ preacher, who fought in the Texas War for independence in 1836.

The town of Salado came into being as a result of the founding of Salado College in 1859. A number of pioneer educators are buried here. These include Professor James Smith, head of Salado College for many years, and Dr. Samuel T. Jones, head of Thomas Arnold High School. Dr. Jones also served on the Board of Regents of the University of Texas at Austin. Major A. J. Rose, who once served as chairman of the Board of Regents of Texas A & M University, is also buried here.

A number of pioneer physicians are buried in the cemetery, including Dr. Welborn Barton, Dr. Welborn Barton, Jr., Dr. J. E. Guthrie, Dr. W. A. Davis, Dr. F. G. Kimbrough, and Dr. B. D. McKie who served in two wars and as an early-day Texas Ranger.

The ages of persons buried in the cemetery reveal something of the hardships endured by the early settlers. There are many infants, small children, and young women buried here. A large number of men and women who served in eight wars and in peacetime in all branches of the armed forces are found to be buried here.

The middle section of the cemetery, known as "The Old Original Cemetery" and the "1906 Addition" provided for approximately 3,000 graves, many of which are lost. The vacant areas in this part of the cemetery are the sites of lost graves.

There are five other sections of the cemetery: Rose Addition, East Addition, East Extension (1976), 1950 Addition, and the Hodge Addition which was opened in 1992.

For 14 decades, loved ones have been buried here in this quiet, peaceful cemetery: grandparents, parents, children, siblings, cousins, aunts, uncles, friends. Each has played a part in the history of our community and our country.

An historical marker can be seen near the flagpole at the main entrance. Securing and dedicating of the marker was a project of the Salado Chamber of Commerce in 1969. At the dedication ceremony the marker was unveiled by Mrs. Virginia Kinnison Matthews, the great granddaughter of the Reverend George Washington Baines.

Maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery and sale of lots is the responsibility of the Salado Cemetery Association and the Friends of Salado Cemetery Association.

Behind the Wheel

Fact: no matter how well your car seat is designed and how good it feels to sit there when you first get in the car, long hours behind the wheel will make you uncomfortable. From professional truckers to traveling salesmen to car-pooling moms, almost all drivers suffer the same strains. Locked in place between the seat belt and the accelerator, bouncing with road vibration, holding tight to the wheel, eyes on the road ahead, you can feel your muscles tightening. Traffic tie-up? That adds to the tension level.

Take time to find the best seat adjustments -- height, pitch, distance from the pedals -- for your needs. On a long trip, plan regular rest period when you can stretch and loosen muscles.

Best of all, make an appointment to see your chiropractor. The spine specialist knows how to locate the source of the tension strain and identify imbalanced muscle congestion. Expert spinal adjustments can restore displaced vertebrae to help relax muscles.

Aunt Granny's owner Mary Lynn Totty celebrates special two-year anniversary

Aunt Granny's "antiques and uniques" in Old Town Salado celebrates its two-year anniversary this month. It is a special anniversary for owner Mary Lynn Totty.

Last September, a fire damaged the gift shop, forcing Mary Lynn to close the shop for a month-and-a-half -- and, more importantly, to assess the future of her business, which at the time, was only a year-and-a-half old.

The following is Mary Lynn's story about the traumatic experience and her efforts to get back on track.

Fire!

Did someone say fire? They did, and it had my shop name behind it.

How frightening, that Sunday, when the call came to my home telling me Aunt Granny's was on fire. The drive from my home to Old Town Salado seemed to take forever. I remember I kept reassuring my daughter, "If no one was hurt physically, then all the rest is just things and things can be replaced, people can't."

And now, seven months later, the things have all been replaced and we are still praising God for the blessings and that no one was hurt.

May represents my two-year mark for being in business at Aunt Granny's, and as I thought of what I wanted to say about two years of business I could only think of the fire.

Not the frustrations or headaches with putting a business back together or insurance adjusters, but the joy and blessings that came from it all. The list mounts very high.

Many merchants told me how the fire made them take a quick look at their insurance coverage, and their words were comforting to me, knowing that was one reason for all of this. Another was God's everlasting strength to get me not just through this ordeal, but doing so with an attitude of excitement and a deadline to meet. The Christmas Stroll was just around the corner when the fire happened, and my shop was almost full of holiday stuff.

Having to start all over from the very beginning was tough, but once we got started it was the right thing to do. Someone even asked me if I had considered not going back into business.

Glenn Lyles is half of brother-sister duo to show at Art Fair Aug. 1-2

Plainview artist Glenn Lyles is half of a brother-sister duo who will show at the Salado Art Fair Aug. 1-2. He and sister Linda Jaynes, also of Plainview, will have booths next to each other during the Art Fair.

This is the first year for either artist to show at the Salado Art Fair. However, neither is a stranger to Texas art.

Lyles quit farming after 19 years to go into painting full-time in 1992.

Since then, he has won many awards. He has won awards in the Amarillo Fine Art Association, Lubbock Art Association and Plains Art Association shows.

He has studied with Ruth Barnett of Hale Center and Jack Sorenson, of Amarillo.

Lyles has participated in workshops at the Cowboy Artists of American Museum in Kerrville.

He has also been juried into the Ruidoso Art Festival in 1995, 1996 and 1997.

He was the featured artist at the Fall Festival and Roping at Paducah, Texas in 1996 and won first place in Oil Paintings at the Texas Caprock Arts Festival in Silverton, Texas in 1996.

He participated in an invitational art show at Caprock Winery in Lubbock in 1996 and 1997, sponsored by Collier Fine Arts of Lubbock. Artists from Texas and New Mexico were represented at the show.

He has also shown his work at the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Convention in Ft. Worth, as well as the Fiesta Art Show at the Austin Museum of Art at Laguna Gloria.

He had a one-man show at Landmark Savings Bank in Dodge City, Kansas in 1997.

He also participated in the Round Top Arts Festival in 1997.

His works are in collections in 13 states, including the House Speaker's office in the Texas State Capitol Building in Austin.

Lyles' work is realistic oil paintings in Western, wildlife and rural themes.

Congratulations Graduates Class of '98!

Son's reunion with father leads to book

by John Eubanks

Imagine the anticipation Jim Lee must have felt as he stepped off a plane in Springfield, Mo., in November 1988 to get together with someone he hadn't seen in 42 years.

His father, 81-year-old Dud Lee.

Jim, a Salado resident since 1994, was just shy of his 62nd birthday when the meeting occurred at a nearly empty air terminal in front of a television crew.

Jim later wrote about the meeting in the prologue to his book, Nine Years In The Saddle, which details his father's wild and wooly exploits -- from cow punching to lion hunting to bootlegging -- during a nine-year period in the 1920s and 1930s.

Dressed in western attire from his wide-brimmed hat to his cowboy boots, his six-foot frame retained a certain vigor that belied his years. When he saw me, a smile spread across his square face illuminated by alert, penetrating blue eyes as he extended a firm hand, molded by a lifetime of hard work.

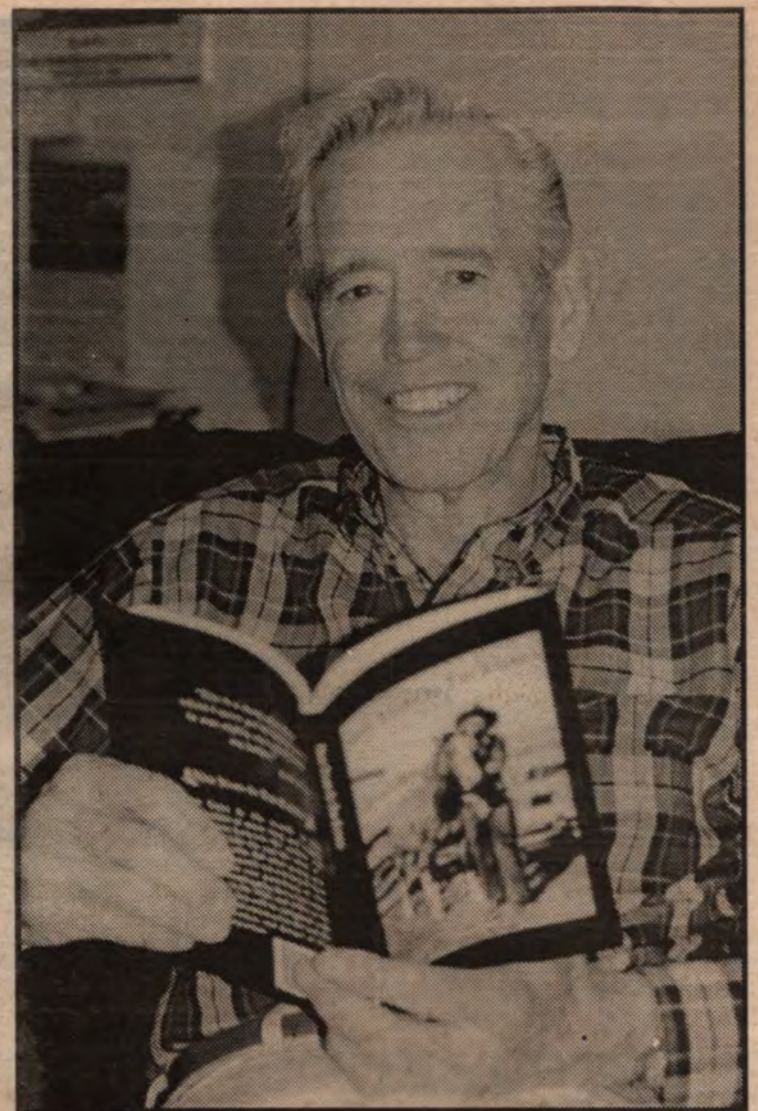

While the camera rolled, the interviewer plied us with questions about my search that culminated in this meeting. This is a story of a man whom I never got to know until he was eighty-one years old, my father.

Judson Warren (Dud) Lee was 19 when his first child, James V. Lee, was born in December 1926.

Dud and Rita Belle Greenlee had gotten married the previous January when Rita was 16. Dud soon went to work for Rita's father, a West Texas cotton farmer, for 35 cents an hour.

The family later moved to New Mexico and then to Arizona before the decade was out.

In 1930, a year after the stock market crash, Dud was working at a copper mine in Arizona, when his restless nature finally got the best of him. He left his job at the copper mine, took Rita and the baby back to her father's place in Texas, and gave her all but $16 of the money he had.

Fletcher's Books on Main Street, Salado, will hold a book signing 3-5 p.m. May 23 for James V. Lee (Nine Years In The Saddle), A.C. Greene (They Are Ruining Ibiza and The 50+ Books on Texas) and William E. Reeves (Texas Art and a Wildcatter's Dream).

Dud later recalled those trying times in Jim's book.

Rita and I weren't getting along very well anyway. We had a lot of difficulties that really didn't amount to a whole lot, but we were both kids, and neither one of us had many adult ideas about anything. When things didn't go right, they just didn't go right.

Jim Lee was 3 years old when his father left.

"He just got fed up and walked out and never came back," Lee said. "That was during the Depression. People did a lot of things during that time that they normally wouldn't do."

Jim wouldn't see his father again for another 16 years. That was in 1946, after Jim (then 19) was discharged from the Navy in California. While heading home to West Texas, Jim stopped off in Bisbee, Ariz., for a one-night stay with Dud and his wife.

The next day, Jim left on a bus from Tucson to Big Spring, Texas, en route to his mother's home in Ackerly.

He wouldn't see his father again for another 41 years. Out of deference to his mother and stepfather, "I let that situation alone."

Jim got on with his life. He earned a college degree in English from Abilene Christian College in 1949, the same year he married the former Hazel Juanita Lee (the same last name, but no kin). They had two children, Kerry and Gail.

Jim also earned a master's degree in education from Southwest Texas State, and led a varied and interesting life as My answer was ...not really. I didn't come here to Salado to give up. I came here to start a retirement business."

So, with two years under my hat, I would like to sum it up by saying, "what more could a person ask for than to have two beginnings in two years!"

I am blessed with the events that have taken place and the merchants who have been so supportive of me!

As for the shop itself ...

Writer gives 'big thank you' to those who helped with quilt show

Dear Editor:

One more fund-raiser was put to a test in April, "The 1998 Salado Quilt Show." I need to thank all who helped. You know who you are and I could not possibly name everyone without forgetting someone.

I do want to mention my committee. Barbara Pipes, Shirley Pinkston, Jo Griffith, Carolyn Hampton and Doris Metcalf. I could never have done it without them.

A big "Thank You" to all the merchants who helped sell our tickets and cookbooks and to the Merchants Association, the boys and girls in uniform and Dianna the "Village Secretary." The Chamber of Commerce office with Dianna's help, lightens the work for committees, and makes organization possible.

Our Civic Center is a pleasure to work in and out of; and we can all be glad of that!

I'm sorry this is a little late but I have a couple of other projects going - my garden being one that was neglected.

Looking for ribbon to match anything, you are bound to find it in an inventory of over 2,000 yards of ribbon to choose from. And as a bonus, Granny will make your bow at no additional charge.

If you enjoy designing your own florals, you'll delight in Aunt Granny's full line of silk, latex and dried flowers, fillers and the works for wreath-making. Writer says Salado Youth Soccer Association had a great first season

Dear Editor:

The Salado Youth Soccer Association had a great first season. We had 18 recreational and two Select Division II teams compete. The kids all had a great time. Without your support we could not have begun the league here in Salado. So many parents have thanked us for being able to have the game here in town. It makes it so much easier for the children as well as the parents to attend the game when they don't have to travel very far.

Your generous dollars helped to purchase the jerseys and pay the certified officials that refereed the games. We also had to pay a fee to CAYA (our home association in Austin) for each child to be insured (where their policy coverage leaves off).

I hope you were able to see the children play on our new fields. It was wonderful to see all those kids in their bright colored jerseys running down the field, listening to their coaches, friends, and family cheer them on. You may have noticed the "Thank You" banner with your name or company on it. Your sponsorship support means everything to our Association as without it we could not exist. We had at least 10 children that could not pay the registration fee for one reason or another. Everyone of them were placed on a team as we never want "money" to be the reason a child can't play soccer. We appreciate the $50 "scholarship" gift that many of you sent in.

Soccer is a great team sport that teaches children not only athletic skills, but with good coaching, teaches them many life lessons. Thank you again for making it possible for the children in Salado and the surrounding area to participate in and enjoy the fastest growing sport in America.

Well-known artist LaJuana Westerfield will conduct June workshop in acrylic painting

The Salado Village Artists are pleased to present internationally known artist LaJuana Westerfield who will conduct a three-day workshop in acrylic painting June 17-19.

For those who are interested in painting in acrylics as a beginner or a more experienced painter, this is a significant learning opportunity.

As a native of Central Texas, Lajuana Westerfield captures the beauty which surrounds her country home in her landscape paintings for which she has become known. The purpose of her work is to remind viewers of the beauty of nature with which all are blessed.

LaJuana has studied art with many noted instructors and at McLennan Community College. She has been included in Who's Who in American Women and Notable Personalities of America.

She was invited by the International Biographical Center in Cambridge, England to attend the International Congress of Art and Communication and to show her works in the Congress Gallery in Amsterdam, Holland.

Her works are owned by individual and corporate collectors throughout the world, including Samsung, Ernst and Young, MBNA Bank of Dallas, and Austin mayor Kirk Watson.

Classes begin at 9 a.m. each day. A supply list will be mailed to registrants. The cost of the workshop is $120. Send your check to Salado Village Artists, P.O. Box 363 Salado, Texas 76571.

Mail it today to assure yourself a place in the class.

Several other workshops have been planned to take place later this summer. Joan Hoffman will teach a class in watercolor July 15-16 and artists will make watercolor collage along with Evelyn Foster on August 6 and 7. On August 8 Alice Taylor will reinforce what LaJuana Westerfield has taught about painting with acrylics, adding her own expertise. Mark your calendar for these events.

You know what charm is: a way of getting the answer yes without having asked a clear question.

a successful salesman and educator.

As a civilian teaching aboard U.S. Navy ships for five years, he traveled extensively in 40 countries and to "more islands than I can remember."

But there was still one thing left to do: get to know his father before it was too late.

After several phone calls and letters between the two men, Jim and Dud began making up for lost time.

In 1989, a year after the emotional meeting in Missouri, Jim began his five-year stint teaching aboard Navy ships. It was also during this time that Jim convinced his father to record his life story on tape for a possible book.

But, as Lee admits, "The book was a pipe dream those five years riding ships."

Jim began the tedious job of transcribing the tapes -- "that's when the real work began" -- in the summer of '93.

He moved to Salado in January 1994, but went back to teaching on the ships for a few months. He returned home in April, intent on finishing the book, only to be diagnosed with prostate cancer.

Instead of working on the book, Jim put his efforts into fighting the cancer. Four doctors had suggested different treatments, but Lee instead turned to alternative means, which included a strict diet and massive antioxidants.

Jim also spent that time learning to play golf, after son Kerry bought him a set of clubs.

"I started with a 40-handicap and ended with a 40-handicap," Jim said, laughing.

His hope was that the book would be more successful than his golf game.

In December 1995, with no sign of cancer, Jim threw himself back into the book.

"I rewrote it and rewrote it and rewrote it," he said.

The first-time author also got help on the book from daughter Gail Lee Dunson, who works for the "Barney" TV show in Dallas. Finally, on April 10, 1998, Jim's 138-page self-published book was delivered from the Dallas printer.

More than nine years after the book's subject and author reunited, Nine Years In The Saddle has become a permanent bridge between the two.

As the book's cover notes, the book is "the culmination of many long and happy discussions between the author and subject."

"The story is essentially about the nine years my father spent punching cattle and hunting mountain lions and breaking wild horses and selling booze illegally during Prohibition," Jim said.

Dud, who turns 91 in September, lives with his wife, Mary, and raises calves on 10 acres near Billings, Mo., in southwest Missouri.

Fascinated by his father's stories, Jim once told him, "I can't imagine you running up and down those mountains trying to catch a mountain lion."

Smiling, Dud replied, "I loved every minute of it."

Reporter's notebook: As I told Jim, I had initially planned to read the first couple of chapters and then skim the rest of the book. But by the middle of the second chapter, entitled "Man Stuff," I was hooked.

The part in that chapter about a mule getting into cornmeal mash cracked me up. Jim's little book is chock full of interesting stories, both funny and serious.

There was the time when Dud and his cousin Dale Lee had managed to get a rope around a mountain lion's neck, and then stationed themselves on opposite sides of a hole in a rock ledge where the lion was hiding. Dud writes:

I was tying up some dogs on one side and Dale was tying up dogs on the other side when I suddenly heard my rope go 'zinnng' through that rock! That lion had bolted from his position dragging the rope and heading straight for Dale who was still tying up dogs. Just as Dale turned around, the lion hit the end of the rope and spun around with his tail right in front of Dale! Astonished, Dale just grabbed the lion's tail and held on while I got the rope out of the rock.

There was also the time when Dud finally broke a horse named Angel of a habit of kicking. But it was a rough experience for both horse and man:

That was the last time he ever kicked. I rode him to Ernest Lee's house one day and tied him up a short distance from the house. A little later, I looked toward the horse and was dismayed to see a little three-year-old girl hugging Angel's hind legs. Afraid that I would spook the horse if I intervened, I breathlessly watched until the girl walked away from the horse, who seemed to sense that a harmless child was near him.

Angel turned out to be a good mount, being equally good at punching cattle or hunting lions. And when he let me use him as a packhorse to carry lions, I knew that a bond of trust had been established between us.

Fourth-graders earn $1,273 from annual play for senior trip in '06

Tablerock Festival of Salado is proud to announce that the 1998 fourth grade class at Thomas Arnold Elementary School has earned (to date) $1,273 from their melodrama Sumpin's In The Water that was presented at Tablerock's Goodnight Amphitheater on May 2.

Copies of video tapes, currently on sale for $5, will earn additional money to be deposited into the children's funds.

First State Bank President David Matthews accepted the fourth-graders earnings this week and opened a savings account for a month. After the earnings from the videos are deposited, First State Bank will oversee the purchase of a CD at the best interest possible for the children. First State Bank also furnished a safety deposit box, a "Time Capsule," to house scripts, photos, video and artifacts to be opened when the fourth-graders graduate from high school in the year 2006.

Tablerock's annual Theatrical Workshop for Salado's fourth-graders is the only program in the state of Texas that teaches children to write, cast and crew their own stage production and then arranges financial help to bank all of the proceeds in the fourth-graders' names.
