Weekend features parade, antique show

The Salado Chamber of Commerce will present their annual Bluebonnet Festival on April 17th and 18th. The festival is a celebration of Spring with a reflection of the past.

The opening ceremony of the festival will be the Bluebonnet Parade. The parade will begin at 10:00 am and the route will run from the IGA Shopping Center down Main Street past the Stagecoach Inn. The theme of the parade is "OUR TEXAS HERITAGE". The parade will be led by a 1957 Chevy Police Car from the White Settlement Police Department. Fort Hood will furnish a military band, horse detachment and color guard.

The Salado High School Band and the Cornbread Moon Band perform.

The Grand Marshal is Mrs. Sterling Robertson. The Robertson home will be open following the parade.

The Texas Volunteer Militia will be in the parade and will perform a civil war encampment on the grounds of the Robertson Plantation.

The Salado Elementary Choir and the Heart of Texas Twirlers will perform during and after the parade.

View antique Lincolns at the Halley House and antique Packards at the Stagecoach Inn.

Many organizations, individuals, antique cars and businesses have already entered the parade. If you would like to enter or receive additional information, please call Rita Brown, Parade Chairman, 947-5050 or 947-5714. Deadline for entries is March 31, 1993. Entries will be judged and awards given.

The Bluebonnet Antique Show on the Old Red School House Grounds will feature over 40 upscale antique dealers. The show will be Saturday, April 17 from 9:00 am to 6:00 pm and Sunday, April 18 from 10:00 am to 5:00 pm.

Antique pie safes like the one above will be just a part of the Bluebonnet Antique Show April 17-18 in Salado. The Antique Show is joined with the annual Parade down Main St.

Speaker examines Asian, American cultures

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Asian cultures have a completely different view of the role of the child, family and teacher than does the American culture, according to Harold Stevenson, who discussed these differences at the Institute for the Humanities lecture March 21.

Dr. Stevenson conducted cross-national studies of children's academic achievement in Japan, China, Taiwan, Hungary, Canada and the United States.

The differences begin early in life. Asia cultures view children as "angels who have come to visit from heaven. If parents do not indulge them, then they will go back."

During early childhood, discipline for Asian children is not as strict as for American children, Dr. Stevenson said.

However, this changes when the child enters school. "The Asian families are much more focused than American families. If you ask an Asian parent what his goal is for his child, he will reply: 'To do well in school.' An American parent may respond, 'To be popular, to compete in sports, to join clubs, to do well in school....'" iron. She is not just rubbing a piece of iron, but making a needle. This is the tenacity handed down in Asian cultures," Stevenson said.

Dr. Stevenson said that if Americans expect to compete with Asian cultures in a global economy, then we should adapt some of the things they're doing right. "For years, they have taken what works in American and made it work in their countries," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said he thinks the best thing we could do here is to adopt the philosophy that our greatest resource is our people, not our land.

Also, Asians are particularly affected by Confucian beliefs and values: hierarchy, malleability, work ethic and family are all important to Asian cultures.

Asians believe the group (family hierarchy and society as a whole) is more important than the individual; whereas, Americans aspire individuals are important.

"If an Asian child does something bad, it is a reflection not just on him, but on his family and his ancestry," Stevenson explained. "If what you do brings dishonor on your whole family, you are less likely to do that."

More important than innate ability or talent is hard work in the minds of Asians. "Asians have stories of the old woman rubbing a piece of

Rumors flying about Commish

Candyman

rated R

starring Virginia Madsen, Tony

Todd, Xander Berkely

Our rating: ****

by Tim Fleischer

Based on a Clive Barker short story, Candyman is a great horror film. But make no qualms about it, Candyman has the components of most films of this genre: blood and guts and violence.

However, unlike most horror films, Candyman is intelligently written. Candyman is about what happens to a myth, or a story when it is no longer believed.

The Candyman (Todd), a horrible killer with a hook for a hand, is forced to come back when his story is disbelieved by student Helen (Madsen).

From this beginning, Candyman is a rollercoaster ride in a house of horrors. It will make believers of many of us.

Rumors have been flying or at least on the runway ready to take off for weeks now concerning Bell County Commissioner Bob Shoemaker and his plans for the future. Shoemaker heads up Precinct Two and for years was the only Republican on the Court. Courthouse pundits have been putting out information to the effect that Shoemaker plans to step down when his current term expires next year. Shoemaker was joined in January by GOPer Richard Cortese as commissioner of Precinct One thus giving the court a three-two split, party-wise.

Shoemaker denied all the drop-out rumors in a recent interview, but not as emphatically as expected. "I have not decided to run or not run at this time. Plenty of time before the sign-up deadline at the end of this year,' he noted.

A second rumor had it that Shoemaker planned to step down so he could run for County Judge John Garth's slot which also opens up in 1994. Garth does plan to seek reelection and Shoemaker was adamant about not seeking that post. With two Republicans now on the Commissioner's Court, it would appear likely that the GOP will go after Garth to try and seek a majority for the first time in modern day Bell County history. Or they may tackle Com. Royce Matkin, whose precinct four job also comes up for grabs next year. Or both! Either way this coming year will bring out the big conservative guns in a go-for-broke battle to control Bell County.

Judge Garth told this column last week that he fully expects to be challenged by the Republicans next year. His tenure in office as County Judge has been a conservative one that has given the county a solid financial footing.

Thus giving him an edge when appealing to the conservative Demos as well as the so-called independents that lean to the GOP. Look for a strong Garth campaign to be set up complete with large numbers of volunteers fueled by a suitable war chest.

Observers of politics at the local level say they expect the Republicans to use every trick they have in their play-book to defeat Garth. Those who have watched both parties go at each other over the years know that "no-quarter" is given by either group. However - the edge in shenanigans has to go to the GOP at most levels of play. One case in point would include the dirty campaign waged against Chet Edwards when he first ran for Congress.

Neither party has a monopoly on clean campaigning and fair play during hotly contested elections but it has been apparent that the GOP does a superior job of record-distortion and misleading-issue-information. They claim they learned it from the liberals. If so - they get an A+ from the school of mischief.

Communicating at work

Discussing frustrations, concerns, fears, and anxieties with our work peers can be an effective means of handling concerns. In doing so, people grow and develop as individuals, and bond together as a work group.

Peers at the work site may come to you to seek advice, look for support, or to release their frustration related to events and situations at the work site and at home. We all find satisfaction in working with people who take the time to listen, care, and understand. Following are some tips to assist you in being an effective "helper" to others at the work site.

1. Have a high regard and respect for others. People seek out people who are accepting, trusting, warm, non-judgemental, and caring.
2. Be honest, sincere, and open.
3. Be sensitive and understanding to the needs and concerns of others.
4. Keep your discussions with peers confidential.
5. Be a good listener, and then give feedback as to what it is you hear the other person saying.
6. Don't try to give advice. As a "helper," your job is to facilitate the other person in her/his attempts to solve their own problems. When you force your personal views onto others, the problem then becomes yours.

7. Make a point to follow up with the peer at another time, and get an "update" on their progress in dealing with their concern.

Your interest in the matter will be appreciated, even if the problem has not been resolved.

8. If the concern is one which is too big to be handled by the individual, refer her/him to a supervisor, clergyman, counselor, social services agent, etc. for assistance.

Auxiliary to meet April 8

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Salado Chamber of Commerce met recently in the Garden Room of the Stagecoach Inn Club.

Blanche Miller and Maurine Powell, both of Salado, were introduced as new members. Membership Chair Virginia McCracken reported a current membership of one hundred sixty-five.

Members of all committees are working busily "behind the scenes" on various Auxiliary projects.

Bluebonnet Parade

One of these projects is that of building a float to be entered in the annual Bluebonnet Festival Parade to be held on Saturday, April 17. Present plans call for all past presidents of the Auxiliary to ride on the float.

Art Fair

A major volunteer project of Auxiliary members is that of serving as official hostesses for the annual Salado Art Fair to be held in Pace Park on August 7 and 8. This is a project shared with members of Village Artists of Salado. Members of both groups will be in charge of ticket sales, admissions and information, otherwise known as "manning the gates."

Christmas In October

The 1993 theme for this annual event is "Christmas Around the World" with an "International Bazaar." Cricket Jones announced the need for donations of empty glass jars with lids and spice shakers. Individuals as well as merchants are being invited to place items for sale on consignment. Ruby Townsend and Bea Stewart are in charge of the bazaar.

The "Christmas In October" event is the major fund-raiser of the year and enables the Auxiliary to be a generous contributor to a variety of community service projects each year.

April Meeting

Wylene Williams, Vice President for Programs, announced that the next program to be held on April 8 will feature a book review by Jan Siegel Hart, who has written two children's books based on her own Jewish heritage.

Eagles hardballers win 3

The Salado Eagles baseball team won all three of their games over the Spring Break holidays. The wins boost the Eagles' record to 6-1 on the season.

Eagles beat Thrall
Thrall Tigers came to town to take on the Eagles March 16. Salado did not hit the ball very well on the day. However, they did put the ball in play enough to collect 10 hits and allow Thrall to commit seven errors.

Salado started fast as Brandon McGregor hit a Texas Leaguer to right for a double. Chris Jackson drew a walk and both runners moved on stolen bases. McGregor scored on Jeremy Fischer's infield hit and Jackson scored as the first baseman held the ball.

Fischer stole second and moved to third on an infield hit by Richard Berumen. Fischer scored on a fielder's choice Richard Jackson. Andrew Voelter singled to bring in Berumen. This gave Salado a 4-0 lead.

Salado beats Eagles
Salado faced the Rogers Eagles in a doubleheader March 18 in Salado. The first game was very exciting as Salado held a 5-4 lead after four innings of play.

Salado broke the game open with seven runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. The big blow was a bases-loaded triple by Scot Sloan.

Both teams added a run in the sixth inning for the final 13-5 score. Chris Jackson and Jeremy Fischer lead the Eagles at the plate in the game with two hits each. Richard Jackson picked up the win on the mound. He pitched a complete game, allowing four hits while striking out nine batters.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Salado held a 2-1 lead after 3-1/2 innings. In the bottom of the fourth, Salado bunched six singles and three walks together for seven runs. Brent Cabaniss, Mark Tubbs, Richard Jackson, Chris Jackson, and Richard Berumen all had singles during the inning. Berumen had two singles.

Rogers managed single runs in the fifth and sixth innings. This brought the final score to 9-3.

Cabaniss, Berumen, and Chris Jackson all produced two hits. Jeremy Fischer pitched the complete game for the win, allowing two hits and striking out eight batters in the game.

Anise Vance, Murrell Thompson and Lucile Fisk with their book

Antelope history book nominated for award

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

If you ask most folks where the Antelope Community sits, they'll probably draw a blank. For Anice Thompson Vance, Lucile Thompson Fisk and Saladoan Murrell Lee Thompson, Antelope was the home of their youths. Today, it is part of Ft. Hood Reservation, located between Copperas Cove and Gatesville, and "just west of Pidcoke" in Coryell County.

It is the subject of a history book nominated to receive the T.R. Fehrenbach Book Award from the Texas Historical Commission. Anise Vance, Lucille Fisk and Murrell Thompson researched and compiled the book Antelope community, Cornell County Beginning to End. Few books are nominated each year. Results will be announced next month.

Antelope was formed as a country community in 1920, when four small schools were consolidated by the Coryell County School Trustees, according to Vance. The school consolidated were Ross No. 5, Table Rock No. 47, Latham Prairie-Salem No. 35 and House Creek No. 66.

In a June 1920 meeting, the Coryell County School Board decreed the formation of the Antelope School by consolidation. The school was located "near the Leslie Thompson place." George Henry and Effie Jean Middick deeded three acres of land for the school.

The school received its name not from its proximity to the former Latham Prairie School or from the Middicks, who gave the land for the school, but from old-timers who always identified the area as, "Where the antelope roam," according to Vance.

So, Antelope was formed in 1920. It would exist until the creation of Ft. Hood (then Camp Hood) caused its termination.

Antelope was more than just a school, Vance told the Salado Village Voice.

Residents remember the Antelope Country Store, which had several owners: Jerry Carmichael, Jim Bell, Jim Edwards, Herman Sherwood, Harace Aldrich, Cy Clayton, Aubrey McLean, Irvin Young and Grady Calvery.

Churches were also a big part of Antelope, including Antelope Missionary Baptist Church, formed in 1924. "Yes, Antelope Baptist Church was good, but it was not heaven," reads the Antelope book. "Summer temperatures drenched members. A slight breeze sometimes floated through the windows carrying a heat that burned and smelled - smelled of parched crops and of ashes; its dryness stung nostrils and eyes. The fierce heat of the Texas prairie produces only one kind of moisture-sweat!"

Antelope contributed 35 young men who served in World War II, which was near the end of Antelope's existence as a community. Antelope resident Angus Randolph Morse died in service to his country in 1944.

The servicemen were not the only ones to make sacrifices for their country. All of Antelope sacrificed when the U.S. Government decided to build the largest military reservation in the world in Central Texas. Camp/Ft. Hood was over 150,000 acres of property purchased from landowners in the area.

"The acquisition of land for the forming of Ft. Hood did close and put an end to the Antelope Community, but nothing can cause the extinction of the Antelope people! We shall remember the love, concern for and the interest in, each and every person who ever lived in and around the Antelope Community!" wrote Vance in the Antelope book.

Families moved from Antelope in 1942 to settle in Coryell and Bell Counties. Others moved to Lampasas, San Saba and Hamilton Counties, according to Vance.

But once a year, the first Sunday of May, they gather at Hancock Park in Lampasas to share the memories of Antelope, a place they called home.

The Antelope book is dedicated to that memory.

Clinton administration creates uncertainty for health care investors

If your investment portfolio contains drugs and medical products companies' stocks, you're probably aware that, in general, the prices of these stocks have been affected by President Clinton's effort to control the health care industry's rising costs. In fact, Standard & Poor's Index groups recently showed that the major drug companies' stocks were down more than 18% and the medical products stock were down approximately 14% between December 1992 and February 1993. As an investor in the health care industry, what can you expect in the future? The following questions and answers may help.

Why is the Clinton Administration targeting the health care industry?

The administration believes that controlling health care costs is key to addressing the federal deficit problem. In addition, the prior image of the drug industry, based on conspicuous price increases and high profits in the 1980s, has made the industry an easy target. However, drugs are only a small portion of the ballooning health care budget. Hospital and doctors' expenses represented a much larger percentage of total costs in 1991.

What single issue is primarily hurting health care stocks?

The stock market dislikes uncertainty, which is the most prevalent factor right now. The Clinton Administration's health care task force is scheduled to release its plan on May 1. Definitive plans will not likely be known until this summer.

What might change the negative sentiment toward the drug industry?

The short-term outlook remains negative for health care stocks because of the uncertainty that lies ahead. The market seems to be saying there is additional risk of which to be aware. A positive move in the drug stocks will probably be seen only if the current uncertainty is greatly diminished.

Mike Miller

Might the reform being presented be devastating to all health care companies?

It's unlikely that the U.S. health care system will go "bankrupt." It appears that companies with innovative, cost-effective and full product pipelines will be successful, despite health care reform.

Health-related stocks fell dramatically in 1992. Is this different from historical trends?

No. In fact, the group's recent performance up to the beginning of February has been fully consistent with the historical record. Health care sectors have a strong affinity toward underperforming the market in the late stages of a recession and early to middle stages of economic recoveries. It is the uncertainty awaiting the administration's reform package that has pushed shares down even further since the beginning of February.

I own health care shares at much higher prices. Should I sell now?

Probably not. Try not to lose faith in issues where the fundamentals remain intact. If you're uncertain about the particular stock you own, talk to a professional investment broker.

If I want to buy a pharmaceutical stock now, what factors should I consider?

Keep in mind that these stocks will likely be volatile over the next six to nine months; the best strategy may be to sit on the sidelines. However, if you insist on owning a pharmaceutical stock now, recognize selected companies for their dominance in current and expected products and their strong underlying fundamentals.

Chicken with Fruit Is Springtime Fresh

Start Spring dinners on a healthy note with skinless chicken and mixed fruits. Chicken with curried fruit is loaded with flavor and it's easy to prepare, using only a single skillet. The tangy-sweet combination of pitted prunes, fresh fruit and lightly curried chicken breasts is a satisfying entree with each serving containing only 274 calories and more than 3 grams of dietary fiber.

The National Cancer Institute recommends eating five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day. Add chewy-sweet California prunes to fruit salads, pork and chicken dishes or enjoy them straight from the bag. It's an easy and delicious way to get your 5 a Day.

Chicken with Curried Fruit

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 tablespoon margarine | 1/2 cup pitted prunes |
| 4 chicken breast halves, skinned and boned | 2 cups diced peaches, pears and pineapple, and grapes |
| 1 teaspoon curry powder | 2 tablespoons brown sugar |
| 2 tablespoons dry vermouth or dry white wine | 1 tablespoon toasted slivered almonds or walnut pieces (optional) |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional) | |

In large nonstick skillet melt margarine over medium heat. Add chicken; sauté until light brown on both sides. While browning chicken, stir curry powder into margarine. Add vermouth and prunes. Cover and simmer over low heat 5 to 7 minutes until chicken juices run clear. Remove chicken to plates and keep hot. Add fruit and brown sugar to pan juices, bring to boil and cook until syrupy. Pour over chicken. Top with nuts, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

EIC may be good news for some

Here's good news for working parents. If you worked and earned less than $22,370 last year, and have at least one child living at home, the Internal Revenue Service probably owes you money — maybe as much as $2,211 — through something called the Earned Income Credit (EIC). The EIC is a federal benefit for both married and single working parents.

Getting your Earned Income Credit takes just two simple steps. First, file a federal income tax return for 1992, either Form 1040A or Form 1040. Second, fill out a form called Schedule EIC and attach it to your tax return. If you are eligible for the credit, you'll either owe less money in taxes, or the government will mail you a check. You can get the EIC even if you don't owe income tax, but you must file a tax return and Schedule EIC to qualify.

If you earned less money in 1992 than in previous years, you may not be aware of the Earned Income Credit. There are many reasons why you may have earned less in 1992 than before. Loss of a job, a reduction in hours worked, a change in your marital status or poor health are some of the reasons why your earning may have been lower in 1992 than before.

The EIC is a valuable benefit for working families. The maximum credit for families with one child is $1,324. Families with two or more children may receive up to $1,384. Some families can also qualify for additional credits for a total EIC payment of up to $2,211 if they had a child born in 1992 and pay at least part of the premiums for a health insurance policy that covers a child.

You can get more information about the EIC by calling the IRS toll-free number, 1-800-829-1040. You can also call your local IRS office or ask your employer for information.

INCREASING YOUR TAKE-HOME PAY WITHOUT A RAISE

If you are eligible for the Earned Income Credit, you, like most working parents who receive it, probably receive the payment in one large check from the IRS after filing a federal income tax return and Schedule EIC.

There is another way to receive the EIC. It can be added to your paychecks throughout the year. This is called an "advance payment."

For many working parents, receiving the EIC in each paycheck can make a difference in paying the rent, buying groceries, and meeting other day-to-day needs. For example, a

Austin Aqua Festival's Executive Director Emie Gammage announced major changes in the annual Festival and a new multi-year, statewide marketing thrust for the 32-year-old event. This year's Festival, which runs eight nights August 5-8 and 11-14, debuts a new music focus, unique participatory sports events, a growing component of cultural offerings and an increased emphasis on affordable children's and family activities.

"This community deserves a festival that truly reflects its vitality, diversity and unique character. The organization and its volunteers believe that the 'new' Aqua Festival fills that bill," said Gammage. "By creating a fresh Festival, one that is attractive to Austinites and visitors alike, we are fulfilling Aqua Festival's original purpose: to bring prosperity and fun to the citizens of Austin and Central Texas."

Building on Austin's reputation as a national live music center, Austin Aqua Festival will step forward to become the Texas music festival, a showcase of the best Texas artists, past, present and future. All acts will have a significant tie to the State of Texas and appear as part of nightly musical themes. These theme-nights include Hometown Heroes (a sampling of the best of Austin talent), Lone Star Ladies (top women performers), Axes & Saxes (guitar heroes and jazz giants), Texas Homecoming (celebrated artists who have left the State), The Stars of Texas (top Texas-based acts), The Gospel According to Texas (a gospel music extravaganza), Texas Unplugged (acts performing in an acoustic setting), and Lone Star Legends (the true greats). Additionally, area clubs will take part in a program which moves patrons off the Festival grounds and into participating Austin clubs each night, so that the "Best of the Fest" happens all over Austin.

A new sporting event will be held along the shores of picturesque Town Lake on August 7. This statewide competition offers ample opportunity to the recreational and amateur sports enthusiast and also pits teams of crew rowers, bicyclists and runners from Dallas, Houston and Austin. First year participants are expected to number between 1,500 to 2,000. Also planned is the first citywide bass fishing tournament, held over two weekends.

To celebrate Austin's diverse arts and cultural scene, Aqua Festival is offering local artists and arts organizations the opportunity to present their "Best of the Best" in theater, dance, the visual arts and more in conjunction with the Festival, creating added value for visitors and building on Austin's growing cultural reputation.

Also new this year is a special, separately fenced, shaded area on the Festival grounds devoted entirely to children's play and entertainment. Open from 10 a.m. until dusk throughout the Festival's run, the area will feature structured interactive play with a focus on water. Tents for storytelling, magicians and puppeteers as well as a stage for the presentation of local children's groups will be offered in this alcohol-free area. One night each weekend, a special event with music, contests and exhibitions for area teenagers will be staged at the Austin Coliseum.

"These changes herald a watershed year for the Austin Aqua Festivals" said Gammage. "Additional changes and developments which will increase the Festival's value to Austinites and enhance its attraction to out of town visitors are anticipated in future years. Austin will be proud of Aqua Fest for years to come."

Christmas in October

"Christmas Around The World" is the theme chosen for the annual "Christmas In October" to be held in Salado October 14 in the Stagecoach Inn Longhorn room and Club

This is the time that members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Salado Chamber of Commerce introduce the upcoming Christmas holiday season to residents and visitors in Salado.

The International Bazaar in the club will be the place where visitors will find a wide variety of hand-crafted items for early Christmas shopping.

Ruby Townsend and Bea Stewert are co-chairing the bazaar committee this year. They have announced a major change in the acquisition of items for the bazaar

Merchants, shop-keepers, artists, and craftsmen, as well as individuals are being invited to place items on consignment in the bazaar.

Those individuals wishing to donate items to the Auxiliary for sale in the bazaar are encouraged to do so.

The bazaar committee reserves the right to refuse any item which it considers inappropriate. Twenty-five percent of all monies from sales of consigned items will go to the Auxilary. Articles for sale may be taken to the club 10 a.m.-4 p.m. October 13. Left-over items must be picked up and all accounting completed no earlier than 5 p.m. Oct. 14.

For more information, call Ruby Townsend at 947-5219 or Bea Stewart at 947-9148.

worker earning between $625 and $989 a month can have an additional $50 added to each bi-weekly paycheck.

The extra money may make the difference in being able to make ends meet, pay bills, or set aside money for savings.

To get EIC advance payments, you must fill out a W-5 Form, called the "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate," and give the bottom portion to your employer. The form is available from employers or local IRS offices, or can be ordered by calling the IRS toll-free at 1-800-829-3676.

Some employers may not be familiar with the EIC advance payment procedure. However, federal law requires that you be given EIC advance payments if you are eligible for EIC and file a W-5 with your employer.

Eggciting Ideas

(NAPS)—Parents looking for some colorful ideas on egg decorating are coming out of their shells and helping their youngsters "eggspress" themselves through egg art.

A book to inspire even novice egg artists is available free.

It's not hard to do, thanks to a free 32-page activity book full of colorful new ideas and practical tips on the creative art of egg decorating. The book was developed by PAAS, the undisputed leader in the Easter egg decorating market.

For a copy of the book send two UPC symbols from any PAAS products plus $1.00 for shipping and handling to Great Eggspressions Activity Book, P.O. Box 964, Cleveland, TN 37364-0964.

Great Eggspressions Contest

As an added incentive, PAAS also sponsors a contest providing "eggspressive" individuals a chance to win one of over 500 prizes, including a Norwegian Cruise Line vacation for four. To enter, send a photo of your original egg creation, an appropriate message (e.g. "You are eggstra special"), a list of materials, step-by-step instructions and a self addressed stamped envelope by May 31, 1993 to PAAS Great Eggspressions, Dept. PGE, 701 Lee St., Suite 1000, Des Plaines, IL 60016-4570.

Test Your Nutrient Know-How

It used to be that getting enough food was sufficient, but now we know the importance of eating a balanced diet... or do we? Test your food I.Q. on this true/false quiz.

1. According to the USDA, fewer than one in 10 Americans regularly eat the recommended five daily servings of fruits and vegetables.
2. Women age 25 and over would need to drink approximately three glasses of milk or eat six slices of pasteurized processed American cheese to get the recommended amount of calcium.
3. People most likely to suffer from vitamin deficiencies include dieters and exercisers.
4. The best time to take vitamins is at breakfast.
5. Cantaloupe is the best source of vitamin A.

Answers

(will appear upside down)

1. True. In fact, the federal government has initiated a "5 A Day" program to increase fruit and vegetable eating.
2. True. Recommended Daily Allowances (RDAs) for calcium for women are 800 mg although the U.S. RDA's and National Institutes of Health recommendations are higher. One glass of milk provides about 300 mg, a 1 oz. slice of processed American cheese 174 mg.
3. True. Add to the list pure vegetarians, smokers, women taking oral contraceptives and people on certain medications.
4. False. For optimum absorption, vitamins should be taken with meals.
5. False. While half a cantaloupe at 5,158 I.U.s. nears the top of the list, three ounces of beef liver will provide 30,690 I.U.s, more than six times the RDA.

For a free booklet on how to assess your diet and learn more about the important role vitamin supplements can play in a well-balanced diet, write: "The ABCs of Vitamins," 444 N. Michigan Avenue, Suite 1600, Chicago, IL 60611.

Record

Incidentally, Shoemaker's precinct is almost a shoo-in for any Republican since it was gerrymandered for just that purpose. Think about it - a narrow corridor starting in Salado and streaking west to Harker Heights; on through the middle of Killeen and finally coming to rest within Fort Hood! A real hot-bed of conservatism which translates today into Republicanism since the old conservative Bell County Demos who ruled the roost for so many years were chased away by the screaming liberals at the state and national level in 1972. What has saved the local Dems from extinction in Bell has been their ability to use fiscal conservatism with a moderate attitude towards social programs. This is an acceptable stance and one that has traditionally thwarted the GOP locally - or has up until recent days.

In any event 1994 will be an exciting year at the local county level as both parties take aim on control of the commissioner's court and Bell County. It will take a lot of money, finger-pointing and debate by the GOP to wrestle control of the county from the Demos - but look for each side to give it the old college try!

Youth Corporation

On March 25, a public meeting will be held to form up a Salado Youth Corporation with the express purpose of raising funds to buy some land out north of town near the present baseball field. The goal is to eventually set up a youth sports complex to meet the needs of our growing young population. It is a good idea and worthy of our full support.

One suggestion from an old hand in the money raising field would be add four or five ladies to the current all-male board of directors of the youth group. Reason is that most of the businesses in town are either owned or operated by women and it is from these stores that large donations will be sought for the project. Another even more practical reason is that to get things done properly in our village - we need the leadership and workship of the ladies. They get things done and done right. And lastly? The moms are just as enthusiastic followers of youth sports as the dads and we presume that both boys and girls will be using the planned sports complex. Just an observation, "for what its worth."

This column congratulates those putting this idea together and hopes all of Salado will take hold and support the sports complex project!

That's -30-!!
