

Village sets 48.60¢ tax rate, adopts FY 2025 budget

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Following an Aug. 22 public hearing on the FY 2025 budget and an Aug. 26 public hearing on the tax rate, Village of Salado aldermen unanimously adopted the budget and set the tax rate at $0.4860 per $100 valuation. The tax rate is composed of $0.3019 for maintenance and operations and $0.1841 for debt service costs.

Aldermen unanimously adopted the FY budget on a motion by alderman Jasen Graham that received a second from Zach Hurst.

The budget raises more total property taxes by $604,467 than the 2024 FY budget, an increase of 48.47%. Of that, $205,031.98 is tax revenue from new properties added to the tax rolls this year.

Aldermen also voted unanimously for the $0.4860 per $100 valuation property tax rate. Graham made the motion, which received a second from Hurst.

The tax rate is composed of $0.3019 for maintenance and operations and $0.1841 for debt service costs.

The adopted tax rate is $0.0913 higher than last year's rate of $0.3947 per $100 valuation. Of last year's tax rate, $0.1786 was for maintenance and operation and $0.2160 was for debt service.

The average homestead taxable value increased by 12% to $350,015, up from $312,263.

The taxes payable on the average homestead in last year was $1,232, while the taxes payable on the average homestead in 2024 will be $1,701, an increase of 38.01%.

The total tax levy on all properties in 2024 will be $1,851,555, an increase of 48.47% over last year's total levy of $1,247,088.

A petition to force an election to rollback the tax rate to the Voter Approved Tax Rate of $0.3711 per $100 is currently being circulated. If the petition is determined valid, a May 3 election will be called because the deadline to be put on the Nov. 5 ballot passed on Aug. 19.

If the election passes, the Village will then have to payback the difference between the amount of taxes paid at $0.4860 and the amount of taxes that would be due at the Voter Approve

Rate of $0.3711.

For the average homestead value of $350,015, it would be the difference between paying $1,299 and $1,701.

If the petition receives enough signatures to be put on the ballot and if voters vote to rollback the tax rate, the Village would face repayment of those taxes when the fiscal year is three-quarters of the way over.

The Voter Approved Tax Rate of $0.3711 is composed of $0.1798 in maintenance and operations taxes and $0.1841 in debt service.

The adopted tax rate of $0.486 raises $1.15 million in operating revenues, according to the adopted budget. If the election rolls back the tax rate to $0.3711, it would generate $684,894 in operating revenues, a loss of more than $465,000 in operating revenues.

How will the Village pay taxpayers back the $465,000 and meet its escrow obligation of more than $950,000?

The Village would likely see a mass exodus or lay off of administration and police as a starting point as the Village could find itself unable to make payroll. Where would it end?

Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs by Troy Kelley

PALS raising money to cast Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs

Troy Kelley is working with Public Arts League of Salado (PALS) to place a new sculpture in the Village called the "Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs."

Kelley says he got the inspiration for the "Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs" from his travels in Italy. "I saw a carved marble sculpture composed of two cherubs in the round," he said. "I used this as inspiration for 'Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs.'"

"I envisioned two cherubs floating on a cloud over Texas," he says. "They saw children Mutton Busting. They thought that would be fun. So, down to earth they came and grabbed a very surprised goat!"

Public art is an intricate part of tourism in our community, he says. He should know. His sculpture of Sirena has been photographed and published in books, calendars and promotional material for Salado. His Troll and Billy Goat Gruff guard the lenticular walking bridge over Campbell's Branch on Main St. His sculpture "Late Again," featuring a Depression-era little boy on his way to the old red schoolhouse being faithfully followed by his furry friend.

Kelley's sculpture of Christ graces the grounds of the Salado United Methodist Church, as well.

His public sculptures can be found around the state, including a heroic statue of Col. James Earl Rudder in Brady.

"The Public Arts League of Salado would like to place this whimsical sculpture by Troy Kelley on Main Street here in Salado," said PALS President Helen Alexander. "Troy is donating his time and talent to create this new clay sculpture for PALS. Contributions are being accepted for the expense of the bronze casting and installation."

Donations to the Public Arts League of Salado, a 501 (c) (3) non-profit organization, for the casting and placement of the "Texas Goat Doggin' Cherubs" are tax-deductible. Checks can be mailed to PALS, PO Box 1242, Salado, TX 76571.

BoA mulls sewer hook-ups, permit fees, advisory boards

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Village of Salado aldermen unanimously adopted Ordinance 2024-18 to require properties outside the municipal limits that request sewer service to voluntarily annex into the Village and to pay sewer impact fees in order to receive those services.

"This will take any doubt from anybody that if you request sewer, you must annex," De La Rosa said.

The ordinance was approved on a motion by Mayor Pro Tem Rodney Bell and second from alderman Michael MacDonald.

Aldermen also adopted a new permit fee schedule for commercial and residential construction on a motion by alderman Jasen Graham and a second by alderman Zach Hurst.

After approving an escrow agreement with Campbell Branch Investment, LLC of $3,000, aldermen then approved Ordinance 2014-15 which authorizes the Village Administrator to enter into escrow agreements with developers in the future. Bell gave the motion, receiving a second from MacDonald.

Aldermen approved Ordinance 2024-16 dissolving the Parks Advisory Board, the Tourism Advisory Board, the Economic Development Advisory Board and the Music-Friendly Community Advisory Board. The unanimous vote came on a motion by alderman Hurst and a second from alderman Graham.

The board will meet again 6:30 p.m. Sept. 5 at the Municipal Building.

Fed likely to lower interest rates in mid-September

The Markets

Our dear old Index, the S&P 500 (SPX), turned in another excellent week, soaring 1.45% to close at 5634.61, leaving it up an astonishing 18.13% this year, 27% from a year ago and about 26% from three years ago. Our other watched index, the CRSP US Mid Cap Value Index, was even more jubilant, rising 2.46% for the week to 2805.84 and is now about 12% higher this year and up over 19% from this time last year.

On the other side of the market, the benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury note closed, yielding 3.81%, while the 30-year bond was paying 4.10%, and the 1-month T-bill held steady with an annualized interest rate of 5.51%. From the 2-year maturity at 3.90% to the 30-year bond at 4.10%, the yield curve is now positively sloped for the first time in two years. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) settled down to $74.91 per barrel after a threatening climb toward $80 earlier in the month.

The Economy

In the background, well behind the headlines about political candidates and soaring stock markets, some critical things have been happening. At the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank's annual symposium (a big event for economists), Fed Chairman Jay Powell stated, "The time has come for policy to adjust," which means lower short-term rates are at hand. In context, he suggested that the Fed will begin decreasing its benchmark Fed Funds Rate downward from its current 23-year high of 5.25-5.5 percent in its mid-September meeting. He also warned that while the direction of short-term rate moves was clear, the frequency and degree of the reductions would be data dependent. Lower interest rates on short-term loans are generally considered to increase the profitability of

Market & Economic Update

by Jeffrey W. McClure

publicly traded companies, so there was rejoicing on Wall Street.

Behind the headline though, something quite different was happening. The Bank of England and the European Central Bank have lowered short-term rates by a quarter percent. Thus, global interest rates might decline, but that may not be the case. Beyond the very short-term rates lie the longer-term interest rates from which loans for automobiles, mortgages, and industrial equipment are set. Those rates are strongly affected by rates on longer-term Treasury securities, with the ten-year note being the benchmark. As the world's largest holders of intermediate-term government securities, the Federal Reserve and other G-7 countries' central banks' buying or selling in the open government securities markets are the foundation for those rates. During the pandemic and the recession that followed, the Fed and other central banks purchased vast amounts of U.S. government bills, notes, and bonds. The Fed reports having about $4.4 trillion worth of those securities plus about $2.3 trillion worth of mortgage-backed securities and other bonds totaling $7.1 trillion, making it the 800-pound gorilla in the bond market. For comparison, according to Statista, China holds a total of about $771 billion, and Japan holds about $1.2 trillion in U.S. government debt.

That was factual background; now for the real news: According to Bloomberg, the U.S. Fed, the Bank of Japan, the Bank of England, the EU Central Bank, and others are all quietly moving to "shrink their balance sheets." During the pandemic and afterward, when economies were in danger of a serious contraction, those banks bought bonds on the open market, lowering longer-term interest rates and flushing dollars into the global economy. When things had stabilized, those same central banks began to sell longer-term bonds back into the market. The Fed began to sell in late 2022, causing mid-to-long term rates to rise, but recently, the last holdout, the Bank of Japan, joined the selling process. That selling of bonds does the opposite of buying bonds, it pulls cash out of circulation. The net result? Yes, the Fed will almost certainly be reducing short-term rates gradually, beginning in mid-September, but at the same time, it and the other central banks will be selling government and government-backed longer-term holdings, effectively raising longer-term rates. If so, expect the yield curve to finally return to a positive slope with short-term rates lower and longer-term rates higher. That shift in the yield curve may be bullish for stocks but not for bonds.

In the domestic economy, Target (TGT) reported a 3% increase in same-store sales in the last quarter, following Walmart (WMT) reporting an increase of about 5%, suggesting the American consumer is still charging ahead and both companies forecast rising sales for the rest of the year. That elusive and much-forecast recession is getting harder and harder to locate. U.S. economic growth still appears to be moderating to a sustainable rate and has plenty of steam left.

Enjoy Labor Day America

By GLENN MOLLETTE

Labor Day weekend is upon us. Let's celebrate the laborers.

The willing workers of America have been the backbone to making our country the greatest nation in the world. People from all over the world have come here in search of a better life by having the opportunity and the freedom to work hard in order to make their dreams come true. The will and the joy of working has made life better for millions who have realized their dreams in America.

An acquaintance of mine who has done very well throughout his life has always been a hard worker. He has said, "The harder I work, the luckier I get." Good fortune has never just fallen on him accidentally but he has always worked hard and good things have come his way.

There is no way that Americans can stop working. Our government and all that we have and know flourishes or dries up based upon our work. Our work produces products, delivers goods, raises crops, provides fuel, and feeds our families.

A country cannot sit down and expect that all the people will be clothed, fed, and medically cared for without a large group of working people. The nation who does not work will soon fold. Our government cares for a lot of people now. Millions of Americans receive Social Security checks and other types of government monetary support. This money does not grow on trees but is reproduced daily by America's laborers who have their nose to the grindstone.

If you have a job and are earning a paycheck, then rejoice for your good fortune. There are many less fortunate who would love to be working who no longer have the physical or mental ability to do so.

Work is a good way to spend your time. Good honest work will keep you out of trouble and is helpful in keeping you out of a state of depression. In most situations, work is physically, mentally, and emotionally healthy for people. There are always those dead-end jobs that may be very tough physically and mentally. Sometimes you may have to change jobs. In America, you can change jobs or start your own business, but you have the option of making a new plan.

My dad was a hard-working coal miner. We would have starved if he hadn't been willing to work in underground coal mines for almost 37 years. My mother was a hard worker. Thus, we always had food to eat. Work has a payoff; you can go to the grocery store. Of course, in this economy, we haven't been able to buy as much.

A dear friend manages a restaurant with 85 employees. Most of them are immigrants who have come into the country in the last three or four years. He said, "Without them I couldn't operate the restaurant. They are faithful, work hard, and do a good job. They also have a network of friends who want to work so I don't have trouble filling jobs. If I had to depend on the local American people in our community, then our restaurant would never survive. The locals don't want to work." Sadly, I've heard farmers in Ohio and Indiana talk the same way. Their farming labor is dependent on the immigrants.

America will continue to be a strong and great nation if all Americans will keep working. When we hand all our labor over to others and quit working, we will lose our country.

Kamala Harris is no investor

Rich Lowry

Kamala Harris took a few brief minutes on the campaign trail to answer a couple of questions from reporters and flash her policy chops.

When asked how she is going to pay for her lavish spending plans, the vice president explained that it would be covered via those indispensable fiscal tools -- pixie dust and magical thinking.

The expansion of the child tax credit, which will cost $1.2 trillion? According to Harris, "The return on that investment, in terms of what that will do and what it will pay for, will be tremendous."

Tax credits generally, including a $150 billion expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit? "We know that there's a great return on investment."

Subsidies for home ownership, costing $200 billion? "When we increase home ownership in America, what that means in terms of increasing the tax base, not to mention your property tax base, and what that does to fund schools. Again, return on investment."

In general, the vice president opined, "I think it's a mistake for any person who talks about public policy to not critically evaluate how you measure the return on investment."

Because, she continued, "when you were strengthening neighborhoods, strengthening communities, and in particular the economy of those communities and investing in a broad-based economy, everybody benefits and it pays for itself in that way."

Clearly, someone mentioned "return on investment" to her in a policy briefing somewhere along the line, and the phrase stuck. Now, Harris thinks she's the Warren Buffett of deficit spending.

The concept of investment tends to be inapt in the context of government spending. In the private sector, when someone takes the risk of investing in a business or product and if it doesn't work, he or she pays the price. This ensures a measure of accountability and rigor that is lacking in government.

There's a reason that no one ever confuses the Department of Health and Human Services with Apple Inc.

That doesn't mean that some projects don't create real returns. By making New York the country's most commercially vibrant city, opening up the West to settlement and drastically reducing transportation costs, the Erie Canal was indeed a great investment. Spending $330 billion during World War II to defeat the Axis powers and to make the United States the world's preeminent power was worth it by any measure.

These are the exceptions, though. There's been so much so-called investment by the federal government in general and the Biden administration in particular, that it's a wonder that the budget hasn't already balanced itself. Instead, the deficit is nearly $2 trillion a year, and the debt is $34 trillion.

Where's the return? There is some, no doubt, but it is overwhelmed by the geyser of spending on every priority, from the Administration for Children and Families to the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau.

Harris is proposing to layer on another $1.7 trillion in deficit spending.

It's not just that there will be no return to almost all of it, government intervention often has the opposite of its intended effect by driving up prices. There's a reason that health care, higher education and housing cost so much. Regardless, the answer from the likes of Kamala Harris is always more intervention. An element of her program is more subsidies "to help Americans afford health insurance on the Affordable Care Act marketplace." Wasn't that what the ACA itself was supposed to do?

So, no, the Harris spending program won't pay for itself any more than the Biden program did, or for that matter, the Trump, Obama or Bush program did. Magical realism -- or magical unreality -- in budgeting is an entrenched, bipartisan phenomenon in Washington. That's why we've gotten so much "investing" with so little return, except an ever-escalating debt and a series of worthless pledges about impending fiscal probity.

Like any huckster working in a boiler room, Harris is hoping to find people credulous enough to believe what's too good to be true.

JOE THOMAS CASSADY

JANUARY 26, 1939
AUGUST 18, 2024

Joe Thomas Cassady, "Joe T" to his friends, went to be with his Lord on August 18, 2024, at the age of 85. Joe was born January 26, 1939, to Burton J. Cassady, Jr. and Elvina Roesler Cassady in Charlotte, NC.

Joe worked for Morrison's Cafeteria Company out of Mobile, AL where he rose from peeling potatoes in a cafeteria in Ft. Smith, AR to the office of Executive Vice President for Business and Industry. He was a brilliant businessman to whom many people turned for advice and wise counsel. Joe retired in 1995 after a little over 35 years with Morrison's.

Joe's passion was his family first. His love language was to help them in any way he could and he often did — anything to "ease the burden".

In addition to his family, Joe loved the outdoors and enjoyed saltwater fishing, hunting white wing dove in Mexico, and playing golf with his friends. He had a home in Matagorda, TX, his favorite place, where he would sit on the pier or on the porch and watch the tugs pushing their product laden barges through the Intracoastal and past our house. Even after Alzheimer's robbed him of so many things, he would look at a picture of the Intracoastal waterway and it brought him such peace.

An extensive pleasure for Joe was Studebakers. Among his collection were business coupes, pick-ups, a Wagoneer, an Avanti, Silver Hawks, Golden Hawks, Presidents, Larks and even his very first one - a 1955 pink and white Studebaker Commander named 'Peggy Sue' by his wife who was sure he bought it just for her.

Joe came to know the Lord as his Savior in his later years. Very early one morning, after a difficult, sleepless night in the hospital, music on an iPhone began to play Fernando Ortega singing, "In the morning when I rise, in the morning when I rise, in the morning when I rise give me Jesus.". You could see the anxiety and confusion begin to fade as Joe said, "that's so nice" meaning it reached through the noise in his head and meant something to him. What a gift our Father gave him that morning. During his recent hospital stay, Joe was heard to say to someone ... "Bottom line, love God first and family next." I guess you could say that Joe had reached the point where he knew what life was all about — even if it was toward the end of his own.

Joe is preceded in death by his parents, sister Karen Keller, and an infant great, great granddaughter, Lottie Griffith. He is survived by his loving wife of 47 years, Margaret (Marty) Mingus Cassady of Salado, daughters Catherine Templeton (Gary) of Fayetteville, AR and Sharon Cassady of Little Rock, AR and sons David Cassady (Jody) of Matagorda, TX and Chad Cassady (Summer) of Lander, WY.

He is also survived by six grandchildren: Susanna Cassady Lytle (Austin) of Austin, TX, Elizabeth Templeton Arredondo (Devon) of Cave Springs, AR, Laura Templeton Morrow (Eric) of Elkins, AR, and Wade Cassady, Hank Cassady and Harlon Cassady of Lander, WY., six great grandchildren, as well as two nieces, three nephews and their families.

He will be greatly missed but not for long. We rejoice that we will one day be reunited and that is the hope that sustains us as we say a temporary goodbye to a dearly loved husband, father, "PePaw" and friend.

Services are 10 a.m., September 7 at First Baptist Church of Salado.

We want to thank the staff at Canyon Creek Memory Care and Gentle Transitions Hospice for the loving care they provided Joe during his final weeks, and our heartfelt and unconditional love for Juanita Snow with Visiting Angels who walked this road with us for many months and provided care, companionship and compassion to our family. She will always be part of it. A memorial will be held in September. In lieu of flowers donations may be made to: J.A.L.L. Ministry, Hope Pregnancy, or a charity of choice. Please sign the guestbook at: Broeckerfuneralhome.com. Paid obituary

Three Day Jingle Walk presented by Ladies League

The Salado Ladies Community League is in high gear planning their fourth Annual Jingle Walk. The event will last three days, Friday, October 11 through Sunday, October 13. Friday and Saturday shopping hours will be from 10-6 p.m. Sunday hours will be from 12-4 p.m. There will only be 250 tickets (passports) sold. Tickets may be purchased only online at Central Texas Tickets Website, centraltexas-tickets.com; click on the Salado Christmas in October Jingle Walk event.

The Jingle Walk allows participants to walk along the Salado "Magic Mile" and shop locally for lovely clothing and unique, one-of-a-kind gifts for everyone on their Christmas list. Each participant will need all three days to see everything the shops have to offer. Each $30 Passport entitles participants to collect a special gift from each of the participating businesses that are visited during the shopping day(s). Shoppers who visit the designated shops and make purchases will be eligible for the three drawings of special door prizes.

On the event weekend the purchaser will first need to visit the Salado Civic Center, 601 N Main, where a passport map will be issued to help the shopper locate the participating businesses.

As a 501(c)3, all proceeds are returned to the community through grants and scholarships. Donations for the event may be made. For more information and deals on local lodging visit us on Facebook the web site at WWW.SaladoL-CL.org.

Work progresses at Gus Plaza

Work is progressing on the new retail and office building at Gus Plaza, according to owner John Barclay.

And even before the 3,000 sq. ft. building is done, it will be full.

Christy's of Salado will take the 2,000 sq. ft. space downstairs.

Barclay Insurance and Goodfellow Leadership Coaching will take the two offices upstairs.

Barclay said he expects the building to be completed by the end of the year or beginning of 2025.

Christy's of Salado will continue to operate in her current location for a period of time after opening in the Gus Plaza location.

Her new spot will feature a two-story entrance with a stained glass Texas star and a fireplace to add warmth to the spacious spot.

Lange Spence with Blake Commercial of Salado is the builder. John Volz of Volz and Associates of Austin is the architect. The two-story building will feature a limestone exterior with a metal roof to fit in well in the historic district.

"The property has room for several other structures," Barclay said. "If I did another building it would also be retail. Main Street Salado is in a prime spot for top flight retail traffic with the lighting and sidewalks."

Barclay is investing in historic Salado because he says "I believe it will only get better."

He plans on Texas landscaping to grace the grounds of Gus Plaza and complement the bronze statue of Gus McCrae by Salado sculptor Ronnie Wells.

"We hope to attract some of the Monarch Butterflies on their journeys north and south," he said.
