Mustang Springs PID

Aldermen to discuss

Village of Salado aldermen will consider at the 6:30 p.m. Sept. 5 meeting a resolution accepting a petition for creation of the Mustang Springs Public Improvement District and calling for a public hearing. The board will also consider authorizing and negotiating the execution of a professional services agreement for the Mustang Springs Public Improvement District.

The board will adjourn into executive session to discuss legal matters pertaining to the agenda items before taking any action in open session.

In other business, aldermen will conduct a public hearing on a Conditional Use Permit to allow mixed beverage sales on property zoned historic district overlay located a 2 Peddlers Alley. The proposed name of the business is Bourbon Speaks. It will be owned by Troy and Andra Parsons of Salado.

The board will consider an interlocal cooperation agreement between the Village and Bell County Emergency Services District No. 1. Under the agreement, Bell Co. ESD #1 would provided the following services within the Village boundaries: fire inspections, review of plat application for issues related to emergency fire service; monitoring and enforcing burn permits issued by the Village; assistance in arson investigations by Salado Police Department and other related services agreed to by the District and the Village.

The board will consider an independent contractor agreement between the Village and Media 2 Social LLC for marketing services to include basic website design (3-5 pages), $700 per month maintenance (two hours of page changes), $2,000 face lift fee up to $100 monthly installments $800 per month with facebook grabs for events.

The board will consider a request from Legacy CTX to remove the walking bridge across Salado Creek during Legacy CTX's Oct. 5. event. According to the request signed by Theresa Howard, "We have modified our event to no longer include alcohol and would therefore like to keep it off the premises during the event. This year, our insurance will not include any coverage for alcohol and the presence of the bridge creates an unnecessary liability for our organization."

The board will also consider lease agreements for the Visitors' Center and for the Sculpture Garden as well as insurance for the Salado Historical Park where the log cabins and 1908 Church are now located. Construction is now underway on the historic 1908 Church that the Salado Historical Society moved on April 3 behind the Civic Center in the Salado Historical Park.

The building and contractor permits were issued on Aug. 6 so work could begin.

The work is now focused on the exterior siding that will be replaced and the three-room addition on the back and side, along with a handicapped ramp.

The renovations on the exterior will take until about the middle of October to finish, weather permitting.

After that, the interior work will begin.

Interior work involves repairing and replacing the long leaf pine flooring, finishing the walls and adding beams to the ceiling, insulation, painting, installing air conditioning and light fixtures, connecting to the sewer system and finishing the break room, store room and handicapped restroom.

The work that the contractor is doing is called "rehabilitation."

"This is the process of repairing or replacing the old material and adding to it where necessary to make the building useful and up to code," said Bill Kinnison with the Salado Historical Society. "Because of extensive termite damage, we are not able to simply restore the building. There is more to it than meets the eye, especially after the siding is removed. Most of the foundation consists of new 6" x 6" wide beams that were needed after the old siding revealed rotten foundation beams."

"The 1908 Church is our voyage of discovery since it reveals what is under the shell of the building.," Kinnison said. "No doubt we will find more places that need repair or replacement as the work continues. The Historical Society hopes you will watch our progress as the contractor, Eric Rendon and crew, takes the historic 1908 church apart and rehabilitates it into a place where the community can come and meet together."

"It goes without saying, the Historical Society greatly appreciates the community support that has enabled us to get to this point after moving the building and then starting the rehabilitation work," he said. "In order to complete all the work that needs to be done, we need to raise additional funds. Please consider helping us complete this project."

Donors who contribute $500 or more will have their names engraved on a wall of honor in the 1908 church. Tax deductible donations may be sent to the Salado Historical Society, P.O. Box 251, Salado, Texas 76571.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Durable goods orders up 9.9% in July, mainly in transportation

The Markets

Despite loudly voiced worries about whether Nvidia earnings can keep soaring forever and whether or not AI is going to make us all rich, the dear old S&P 500 Stock Index, eked out a small gain for the week, rising 0.24% to close at 5648.40. That leaves the 500 mega-stock market gorilla 18.42% higher than when the year began, and up an ongoingly astonishing 25% from this time last year and just under 25% from three years ago. Yes, again, all three years' appreciation has happened in the last year. Our other indicator for the market, the CRSP US Mid Cap Value Index, had far less angst this week and rose 0.94% to 2832.09. up about 13% this year and 18.60% since last August.

The benchmark 10-year Treasury Note ended the week with a yield of 3.91% with the 1-month T-bill yielding an annualized 5.41%, and the 30-year bond at 4.20%. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) slipped down about 1.60% to a price of $73.63 per barrel, almost 10% less expensive than last year at this time.

The Economy

There were a couple of lead data points this week and some less obvious economic news that may be critically important longer-term as August draws to a close and the unofficial end of summer arrives. Perhaps the more significant report was issued by our favorite government agency, the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA). There normally is little attention paid to revisions in statistical reports from a government bureaucracy, but this one is worth examining. The BEA revised its estimate of the second quarter U.S. Gross Domestic Product (GDP) annualized rate of growth to an astounding 3.0 percent! That is a higher growth rate than our infrastructure can sustain, but it certainly looks good in the short-term. The drivers of that probably unsustainable growth appear to be private inventory investment by businesses, nonresidential fixed investment (buildings and equipment spending by companies) and of course, consumer spending.

In the same report, the BEA announced that PCE inflation, the inflation reading most relied on by the Federal Reserve, was 2.4% over the last twelve months, and was running at an annualized rate of only 1.2% in the last quarter. That is about as stable an inflation number as is possible and for the last quarter, below the Fed's target of 2% annually. Better yet, disposable personal income rose at a nominal 3.6% rate in the quarter. As long as disposable personal income is on the rise, the main driver of our economy, consumer spending, is healthy. When spending is rising and disposable income falls to below zero, batten down the hatches.

The other important report came from the Census Bureau. New U.S. durable goods orders increased 9.9% in July. It even gets better if we take government defense orders out of the picture. Without the Defense Department, orders almost 50% in about three years and domestic money supply (M1) has been contracting. A falling M1 almost inevitably leads to a falling or stagnant GDP. According to economist Edward Yardeni, China's nominal GDP growth could fall to zero or turn negative over the next six months.

Why is that ominous? Because for an authoritarian dictatorship with a big military, the easiest way out of a pending recession/depression is to invade someone. History is replete with that lesson. In the face of what looks more and more like a developing economic contraction, the Peoples Republic of China (PRC) increased military spending 7.2% this year. The economic disruption that an invasion of Taiwan would cause would be catastrophic. The lesson? Bad things sometimes happen even when our economy is on a roll. Be prepared both mentally and fiscally. The second lesson can be seen in Germany's economy, where business is in a real funk. Germany's economic surge over the last decade was driven by exports, as was China's. China is buying less as its economy slows and Germany was exporting to China. We are blessed with an internally focused economy where our biggest customer by far is, quite literally, US

For safety's sake, keep the bridge

To the Editor:

I am writing regarding the agenda item on the Board of Aldermen's Sept. 5 meeting to remove the footbridge between Pace Park and the south creek bank at Barrow Brewing.

This footbridge was purchased, assembled and installed and is maintained at no cost to the Village and is a direct response to the repeated and continuing dangers to visitors and Villagers making 2-way pedestrian traffic across the creek Main Street Bridge. These dangers were brought glaringly into focus when a car struck a (thankfully) empty baby stroller.

A private entity (Legacy CTX) holding a fundraising event in Pace Park Your Voice is requesting the Village to force another private party (Barrow Brewing) to remove the footbridge. This request coincides with what is expected to be a very busy visitor and shopping day for the Village (Sirena Fest and Oktoberfest).

Having all pedestrians use the narrow walkway across Main Street Bridge on what is expected to be a very busy day is a bad choice. Forcing them to do so by intentionally removing a safe alternative is a much worse choice. I am requesting that the Village consider the agenda item to remove the footbridge and reject it after weighing the considerable potential for public harm against the non-existent potential for public good.

If you agree, please attend the meeting and make your voice known to the board of aldermen.

Respectfully, Jay M Ritch, PE Salado

How to Keep Teachers from Leaving their Jobs

By Emily McGinnis

There's never been a more stressful time to be a teacher. I say that as someone who worked in K-12 schools for more than 20 years, first as a teacher and then as a principal.

Educators enter the profession out of a passion for teaching and helping kids. But today, they're leaving in droves. Between 2020 and 2022, about 300,000 public school teachers and staff quit. K-12 teachers have the highest burnout rate of any profession. Nearly a third are considering leaving the profession. For the sake of the next generation, school districts and local governments need to figure out how to keep teachers in classrooms. Improved salaries would help -- teachers are underpaid. But even that wouldn't entirely solve the problem. We need to turn schools back into places where teachers want to be. Many of these institutions are no longer havens for learning. Pressure on teachers has mounted over the years as society has made them scapegoats in cultural and political battles. They face unprecedented criticism from parents and governmental officials. Stressors are also increasing inside. Schools are growing more violent. Since the pandemic, 38% of K-12 schools have seen an increase in physical violence between students, 45% have seen an increase in threats, and 37% report an increase in bullying.

The teacher shortage, along with staff cuts, force those who remain to take on more responsibilities -- supervising morning drop-off, recess, or afterschool programs. Most teachers can't afford to spend more time on the job. Already, more than 80% of teachers have worked a second job to help make ends meet.

Burnout is a downward spiral. It drives teachers changes to support their teachers. For instance, administrators can show teachers they value their expertise by standing behind their decisions when dealing with quarrelsome parents.

It also makes a difference to respect their time. When I was a teacher, I'd often be up by 5 a.m., at school by 6:30 a.m., and home at 6 p.m., all while juggling family responsibilities -- and preparing the next day's lesson on my own time.

It doesn't cost any money to have administrative staff take turns covering morning drop-off or lunch supervision. As a principal, I provided teachers with meals donated by local restaurants, freeing up time after work so they could enjoy dinner at home with their families.

rose 10.4%, mainly in the transportation category.

Now for the less obvious and more ominous data. China appears to be in economic trouble. Consumer confidence is now down by a third from where it was over the last decade. Since the end of 2023 house prices have fallen about 5%. Their stock market has declined The bottom line remains largely unchanged here in the good old U.S. of A. Our economy is ignoring the doomsayers and continuing to produce jobs and money at a good pace even as inflation fades away and those still hoping for and forecasting an economic downturn remain disappointed.

away, which increases the workload -- and burnout -of those who stay.

Of course, the elephant in the classroom is money. Local and state governments must allocate more funding to their public schools.

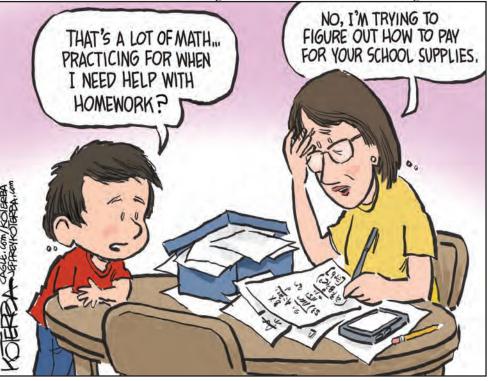

Instead, states like Connecticut and Utah are slashing education budgets. Tennessee, South Carolina, and Oklahoma are considering rejecting billions in federal education funding. Nearly $200 billion in Covid-era federal aid is set to expire soon. In Texas, lawmakers failed to approve teacher pay increases despite a $38.7 billion surplus.

We need to increase school funding to retain and attract more teachers. But how we go about using funds is just as important. Schools should prioritize hiring assistant teachers and tutoring services.

Even schools dealing with budget cuts can make

If we care about children, we have to nurture their teachers. Too many have lost the joy of educating. By respecting their time and improving their workplaces, we can bring that joy back.

Carsons celebrate 65th

By CHARLENE CARSON

Maurice and Charlene Ochsner Carson of Salado, Texas celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary August 24, 2024 with a gathering of family and friends at the Salado Civic Center.

The couple married August 22, 1959 at the First Baptist Church of Chattanooga, Oklahoma with the bride's uncle, the late Rev. Virgil L. Goodwin, performing the ceremony.

The celebration began with a delicious finger food buffet catered by Frank and Cathy Carlson of Cathy's Boardwalk Café. Music for the occasion was provided by a You Tube playlist of tunes compiled by the bride's great nephew Colton Ochsner of Columbia, Missouri.

The pastor of the bride and groom's church, Bill Pinalto of First Baptist Church of Salado, asked a blessing over the meal. Since they were celebrating their 65th anniversary, the pastor referred to Psalm 65. He pointed out that they had fulfilled their vows to each other, and he continued by thanking the Lord for the couple and asking Him to continue blessing them. One of the bride's favorite songs on the YouTube playlist was Lollipop by the Chordettes. After the playing of the song, she a passed around a basket of lollipops and invited the children to take one. The bride then showed the original 12 black and white photos of their marriage on August 22, 1959. She pointed out that in 1959 pictures of weddings were made with big, heavy cameras, and indoor pictures used flashbulbs. Therefore, usually only one shot was taken of each event. Unlike today where dozens of shots can be taken of one event and the bride can choose the shot she wants.

The groom shared some personal history regarding the couple. He said that he and his bride had their first date at Falls Creek Baptist Assembly at Davis Oklahoma, located in the Arbuckle mountains. He went on to say that they dated during their last years in high school and throughout their college years. After he got his engineering degree from the University of Oklahoma and a job at Boeing in Wichita, Kansas as a design engineer, he proposed marriage and she accepted. They became parents in 1962 when their daughter, Donna, was born. Not long after that wonderful event, Maurice got an offer to work for Chrysler Corporation in Huntsville, Alabama as a heat transfer specialist. Chrysler was a NASA contractor and he worked on NASA funded projects. Maurice continued by saying that during his employment with Chrysler he set a goal toward getting a job in Houston working on the Manned Space Program as a NASA government employee. He achieved that objective in 1964 so he packed up his family and moved to Houston.

Maurice's career at NASA worked out well. He started as a heat transfer specialist but soon transferred over to the Apollo PLSS (backpack) design and development group.

He was eventually promoted to manage and supervise the design and development of all crew equipment which included the spacesuit, backpack, maneuvering system, space tools, and crew clothing.

Charlene went back to college and finished her education earning both a BS and MS degree in elementarv education. In 1973, she started and made a career of teaching for the Pasadena ISD.

Maurice continued by saying had both he and Charlene have had a strong spiritual and church upbringing. They have always tried to be obedient Christians in the way they brought up their family, lived their lives, and the way they interfaced with the community.

Charlene is a historian and an archivist; she has written four published history books. One is a 140year documentary of the First Baptist Church of Salado. One is an illustrated book about the historic grist mills of Central Texas. She coauthored a book that is an illustrated history of Salado. The last is the story of her paternal grandparents, Heinrich and Anna Ochsner, German immigrants to America, 1893.

She has collected and archived artifacts of historical significance about both the First Baptist Church and the village of Salado. There is a room at the church, and a section of the Salado Public Library dedicated to her research and materials and to the items which she has archived.

Maurice concluded his reminiscing by saying that in his prayers he thanks God every night for their good fortune and asks for His continued blessing on his family.

"Imagine the comfort and security of a child growing up in a home where the parents always showed respect to each other and where you had the assurance that no one would ever come between them. As a kid, I didn't even realize that I had this advantage. I was probably in my twenties before I learned that it wasn't the kind of home everyone had."

"Today, my parents depend on each other more. Mother depends on my father to help her get around. My father depends on my mother to help him hear what is going on. They don't do this out of a sense of obligation. They don't do this because it's in their vows, for better or for worse. They do it because they want to. They wouldn't have it any other way!"

:This is why whenever I hear someone say, "There's no such thing as a perfect marriage," I shake my head in disagreement. My parents have the perfect marriage.

Their daughter, Donna Johnson, then read I Corinthians 13: 4 – 7. Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres.

Grandson Dashiell Johnson closed the program by saying, "Throughout my life, my grandparents have always modeled a loving and healthy relationship. We can all only hope to receive the same well-earned admiration of our friends and family that I see here today. I'm grateful for their presence in my live, and I'm so happy for them to be celebrating this impressive anniversary today."

Now it is time to serve the cake!

The event was attended by 153 guests. Out-of-town guests include two of Charlene's best school teacher friends, Rene Fleming and husband Steve, from Deer Park, Texas; and Dianne Hilkemeier and husband Ron of Houston, Texas.

Other out-of-town guests, all from Cache, Oklahoma, were Larry and Julie Logue; Russell and Tanya Goodman, and Jordy Goodman; Antonio and Talisha Chavez, and Aleighsiana Chavez; Noah Hollars and AleJandra Logue-Chavez, and Stetson and Swayzen Chavez. Other guests from Cache were Janice Slape and Anna Marie Ochsner; Jarred and Erica Ochsner, and Colby and Blake Ochsner.

Guests from Chattanooga, Oklahoma were Kaleb Ochsner; Arthur and Rose Marie Ochsner; and Jeff and Salomi Ochsner.

Other guests from Oklahoma were Ryan Ochsner and Heston Ochsner from Edmond, Oklahoma. Tyson Ochsner, and Jameson and Abel Ochsner from Stillwater, Oklahoma.

Guests from Texas were David Carson, Friendswood, Texas; Dashiell and Venenzia Johnson, Austin, Texas; Darren and Cindy Ochsner, Waller, Texas; Wyatt and Kaitlynn Whorton, and Walker Clive Whorton, Eddy, Texas; Nathan Ochsner and Harrison Ochsner, and Hope Ochsner, Houston, Texas; Hyder Ochsner and Ashley Rayo, Austin, Texas; Mark and Charlotte Carson Brewer, Granbury, Texas.

Attending from outof-state were Donna Carson Johnson from Franklin, Tennessee, and Daryl O'Bryant from Columbia, Tennessee.

The Carson's son, David, then shared his thoughts on, "There's no such thing as a perfect marriage." He said that after living at home with his parents for 28 years, he does not agree with that statement. He pointed out that he has never heard his mother say one derogatory word about his father to anyone. Nor has he heard his father call his mother a name; e.g. "you're such a blank" or "you blank." For example, on the TV show, "All in the Family," Archie would call his wife a dingbat. David stated, "I never thought that was funny and I didn't like it. I believe a man shouldn't call his wife a name like that, not even as a joke."

David continued by saying that there has never been any hint of unfaithfulness between my parents. There has never been an inappropriate smile, or word, or touch between them and another man or woman.

Eagles fall to Troy 52-28

BY TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

In a renewed rivalry game, Troy took advantage of turnovers and special teams play to beat the hosting Salado Eagles 52-28 at Eagle Stadium Aug. 30.

The game was very competitive in the first half, despite the Trojans capitalizing on two turnovers.

Troy took advantage of a Lincoln Hossfeld fumble at the Salado 30 on the Eagles' first possesion. Joseph McMurtry, who carries a last name well-known in Troy football legend, hit Reed Ketcham for 28 yards before handing the ball to Jadence Tarrence-Lucky for a 2-yard dive at 10:26 in the first. The PAT gave Troy a 7-0 lead.

Salado answered quickly. On second and 8, Hossfeld connected with Landon Noske on the run for a 69yard touchdown. The PAT tied the score at 7-7 with 9:36 in the first.

Troy drove 55 yards before Townes Sather landed on a Trojan fumble at the Eagle 15.

The Eagles were forced to punt from deep in their own territory and Troy scored on a 28-yard pass from McMurtry to Jake Smith. The PAT gave Troy a 14-7 lead.

Salado answered with a eight play drive. Hossfeld hit Noske again, this time for 52 yards. The PAT tied the game at 14-14 with 11:51 left in the half.

Anthony Angel intercepted near the goal line and returned it to the Salado 24. Facing a third and 9 to go, Hossfeld found Brendan Wilson for a 75-yard strike. Salado took the lead with a successful PAT, 21-14, with 8:27 left in the half.

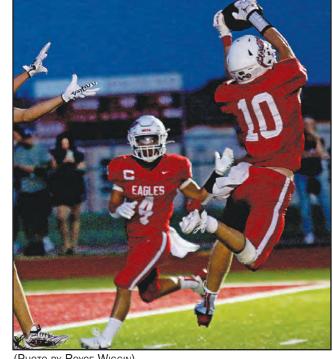

Troy answered with an 83-yard drive. McMurtry hit Ketcham for a 20-yard TD pass with 6:07. The PAT knotted the score at 21-21.

cah McKissick intercepted Hossfeld's pass and return it 75 yards to score. The PAT gave Troy the 28-21 lead that the Trojans carried into the lockers.

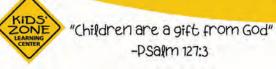

Early in the third, Troy recovered a Salado fumble at the Eagle 15-yard line, scoring three plays later on a 3-yard run by McMurtry to take a 35-21.

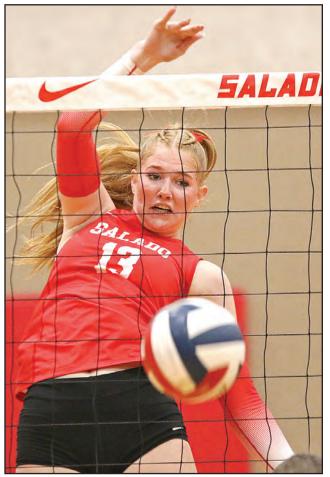

After stopping the Eagles on fourth down at the Troy 44-yard line, the Trojans scored eight plays later on a 9-yard run by Gage

When you realize that half your life at the bridge table is spent defending against opposing contracts, it becomes obvious that unless you and your partner defend reasonably well, you will have very little chance of winning.

In most deals, top-notch defense depends much more on partnership cooperation than on individual effort. Each defender should therefore do everything possible to steer his partner in the right direction. For example, let's say you hold the East hand and South reaches four hearts as shown. Declarer wins your partner's trump lead with the ten and returns a low trump to dummy's eight. What should you discard at trick two?

This might appear to be an insignificant decision to make, but actually you could cost your side the contract if you make the wrong discard. Let's say you discard either the eight or nine of spades, or the deuce of diamonds or five of clubs.

In that case, after declarer led a low diamond to his jack, your partner would win but would have a tough time trying to figure out what to play next. He might conclude that his best return was the ace of spades, which would hand South the contract.

The correct discard at trick two is the queen of spades! This tells West that you have a spade sequence headed by the Q-J-10 while denying that you have the king. (If you had the K-Q-J you'd signal with the king, not the queen.)

As a consequence of this discard, your partner — knowing that South has the king of spades — would exit with a club at trick four, and declarer would eventually go down one, losing a diamond, a club and two spades. ©2024 King Features Syndicate Inc.

Strong dove season forecasted

A rainy spring and early summer led to a good nesting season through most of the state and near record high populations of mourning and white-wing doves across large portions of Texas. Hunters could encounter significantly increased dove populations in the field when the 2024 season open Sept. 1.

Spring population surveys conducted by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) staff found an estimated 34.3 million mourning doves in Texas, the third highest estimated population in survey history. White-winged dove populations have increased four percent, becoming the new record high with an estimated 12.8 million this year.

"Given the conditions and the number of birds, as long as the weather holds this month, hunters should expect a very good early season throughout most of the state," said Owen Fitzsimmons, TPWD Webless Migratory Game Bird Program Leader. "Summer rains should also result in a good late crop of native forbs (weeds and flowering plants) seeding out just in time for some late season hunting for anyone still chasing doves after September."

With food and water still plentiful on the landscape, birds may be scattered in some areas, though as the August heat creates dryer conditions, hunters may still find larger concentrations of birds at watering holes. Doves typically feed and water twice a day, so patterning where doves are going throughout the day is the best recipe for success. Hunters should look for doves feeding in and around agricultural fields, or look for stands of common sunflower, croton and other native annual forbs and grasses. In areas with thick vegetation, hunters should be extra diligent about marking birds they hit and spend extra time looking for downed birds, as necessary.

Texas is home to seven species of native doves and pigeons, including the three legal game species: mourning, white-winged and white-tipped doves.

The regular dove seasons:

North Zone: Sept. 1-Nov. 10, resuming Dec. 20, 2024 – Jan. 7, 2025

Central Zone: Sept. 1-Oct. 27, resuming Dec. 13, 2024 – Jan. 14, 2025 South Zone: Sept. 14-Oct. 27, resuming Dec. 13, 2024 – Jan. 21, 2025

Hunters must also have a Migratory Game Bird Endorsement (Stamp) and Harvest Information Program (HIP) certification to hunt dove.
