

Go Fund Me established for Ruiz family

A Go Fund Me page has been established to benefit Hector Ruiz III, after he lost his wife Kim Kosh-Ruiz in a head-on collision Oct. 23. Their son remains in the hospital due to his injuries.

As of presstime on Oct. 29, the Go Fund Me has raised $34,861 of the $40,000 goal established by Sara Lutz.

More than 330 have donated through the Go Fund Me page, located at <https://www.gofundme.com/f/aid-the-ruiz-family-in-their-time-of-need>

Kosh-Ruiz was involved in a head-on accident with a Ford pickup truck driven by a Salado man on Thomas Arnold Road at about 5 p.m. Oct. 23 after picking up her fourth grade son Grant.

She and her son were transported to Baylor Scott and White, where she was later pronounced dead.

The driver of the Ford Pickup was also transported to the hospital.

"This is a profound loss for our Salado ISD family,"

Kim Kosh-Ruiz

Superintendent Michael Novotny said in announcing her death to Salado ISD staff and parents.

"Kim was a dedicated teacher for over 16 years and has been a part of the Salado community for the last four years as a kindergarten and second grade teacher," Lutz stated on the Go Fund Me page.

She leaves behind her husband, Hector, three daughters, Brooke, Britney and Brenna, and son, Grant, who remains in the hospital.

Services will be held once Grant is released from the hospital.

Census Bureau: Sales of new single family houses rose 4.1% from Aug. to Sept

The Markets

The S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX), the most widely used if perhaps flawed, benchmark of U.S. Stock valuations, had a “meh” week, falling 0.96% to 5808.12. Still, it remains almost 22% higher than when the year started and up 38.73% from last year. Even its three-year gain is substantial at 27.19%. The same is not true of overseas markets, as the U.S. exchanges and indexes leave them in the dirt. For example, this year, the S&P Europe 350, a rough equivalent of our SPX, is up only 8.51%. Yes, it has gained almost 19% in the last twelve months but has only a 12.10% total gain in the previous three years. Something different is happening here in America, leaving the rest of the world behind. More on that below. The other U.S. equity benchmark we follow, the CRSP U.S. Mid Cap Value Index, slipped backward 2.26% for the week to 2778.68 but remains up 14.83% year to date and is over 33% higher than a year ago.

The benchmark ten-year U.S. Treasury note ended the week with a yield of 4.25% as interest rates for the next decade increased almost 10% in the last six weeks. The highest paying maturity remains the one-month T-bill, yielding an annualized 4.89%, while the thirty-year T-bond only offered 4.51%. The good news is that the curve from three years to 20 years, the heart of the Treasury yield curve, has turned positive, suggesting that the bond market anticipates good intermediate-term growth in the U.S. economy. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) rose 2.05% to $71.63 but remained over 16% lower than a year ago.

The Economy

There is not a lot of exciting economic news to report this week. The drama seems to be elsewhere. The Census Bureau reported that the sales of new single-family houses in September

Market & Economic Update

by Jeffrey W. McClure

rose 4.1% from August. Manufactured durable goods orders fell 0.8%, but after rising nearly 10% in July, some slippage was expected. Much of that decline was at Boeing, which will continue to affect the labor, manufacturing, and export statistics until the strike ends. Jobless claims, an indicator of business activity, fell by 15,000 to 227,000 in the week that ended on the 19th as layoffs from the two hurricanes dissipated more rapidly than most economists expected. In an interesting development, credit card debt is expanding at a surprisingly low rate, according to Moody's Analytics.

In its latest global scorecard, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) upgraded its official estimate of our economy, placing the U.S. in the number one spot among the Group of Seven major advanced economies. Its new estimate is that our economy will have grown 2.5% from a year ago; however, the IMF has consistently underestimated the U.S. economy for the last several years. In contrast, Moody's Economy.com, probably the most consistently accurate forecaster, estimates the third quarter GDP growth (annualized) to be 3.5%, raising our annual rate to 2.8%. The euro area's economy is expected to grow 1.2% this year, while advanced economies are expected to have an average 1.9% growth. The People's Republic of China (PRC) is lined up for a 4.5% annual growth, but because the PRC economy is only about 65% the size of ours, that equates to 2.9% in actual nominal growth. China is considered a developing economy because much of its population is still transitioning from “undeveloped” manual agriculture to a modern, industrialized economy. As such, it should grow economically much faster than a developed economy like the United States.

So, to what does the IMF credit our exceptional growth? The simple answer is our astonishingly high productivity growth. Again, according to the IMF, the cause of that is our non-residential investment rate. That higher productivity is also why U.S. worker wages have been rising faster than inflation for the past several years. Even as inflation has fallen to around 2%, wages continue to increase at around 4%. U.S. gross fixed capital formation, investment in tangible, fixed structures, machinery, software, and equipment, will increase this year by 4.5% from 2023, triple the rate for all advanced economies and our projected investment growth rate is 3.3%. Contrast that with the IMF estimate that Germany's investment rate is projected to fall 2.7% this year after falling 1.2% last year.

Last but not least, corporate earnings and profit margins have held up remarkably well as the previous quarter's results are all in, and we head into the last quarter of the year. Retail sales, the most significant single component of our GDP, continue to surprise to the upside despite the lower-than-normal growth in credit card and consumer debt. Once again, the productivity of the American worker seems to be the cause. Once more, we are forced to report that the economy of the United States is on solid ground and appears to be operating at near full capacity with no indications of slowing.

Cash is best tool to end poverty

By LAKEISHA MCVIEY

My mom's the hardest working person I know. She had a stable job and benefits, but that didn't save us from homelessness.

For years, we bounced between shelters, churches, motel rooms, and apartments. Benefits programs helped us make ends meet, as they do for tens of millions of Americans. But I can't help imagining how different my childhood would've been if my mom simply had access to more cash.

Most benefits programs provide one kind of aid and require you to jump through hoops to get it. For example, the Housing Choice Voucher Program (or “Section 8”) pays landlords to house low-income tenants who can't otherwise afford the rent. But getting that help requires extensive documentation and months or even years of waiting for approval.

Many families facing housing instability also grapple with medical costs, cell phone and internet bills, transportation, basic household needs, and so on. With over 70 percent of low-income renter households spending more than half their income on rent, any of these costs can be the straw that breaks the camel's back.

Fortunately, other programs help cover these other needs, like food. SNAP and WIC feed tens of millions of Americans. But even if you're approved, there are frequent renewals and updates you have to make to maintain your benefits.

Any mistake in the paperwork could result in delays or loss of benefits. Then you're turned away at the grocery store because your EBT card is declined or you have to put items back because they aren't covered by WIC. The shame you feel from all the eyes on you at the checkout line is enough to make you give up right then.

For families like mine, who've been forced to juggle multiple jobs and childcare, navigating all of this feels like a full-time job in itself. It's exhausting and dehumanizing.

What families need when we're in a crisis is direct cash assistance. Cash empowers us to make the choices that best fit our unique circumstances. When families in crisis are simply given cash without restrictions, it's been proven to reduce food insecurity, improve mental health, keep families housed, and drastically reduce poverty.

For example, the Stockton Economic Empowerment Demonstration in Stockton, California gave 125 families an unconditional cash stipend. Results showed participants had better financial stability, increased full-time employment, reduced reliance on payday loans and other predatory financial services, and improved mental health.

Elsewhere, the Rx Kids program provides unrestricted monthly cash payments to every pregnant mom and baby in Flint, Michigan. The program has reduced financial strain for new mothers, contributing to healthier pregnancies and early child development.

These local examples are promising. But don't forget we just had a large, stunningly successful national example too. In 2021, the expanded Child Tax Credit provided unrestricted monthly payments of up to $300 per child to nearly every family in the country. This tax credit alone cut the child poverty rate nearly in half, lifting 3.7 million children out of poverty before lawmakers allowed it to expire.

Guaranteed income programs are simpler than traditional welfare programs. They can be designed with broader eligibility criteria and without narrow restrictions on spending. And cash reduces administrative costs, because the payments can be provided without the need for frequent paperwork renewals.

Most importantly, cash payments can be deployed faster and more efficiently to address emergencies families face in real-time.

No family should have to struggle to meet basic needs. Families deserve programs and policies that promote fair opportunities and reduce inequity to help them thrive and break the cycle of poverty. With expanded tax credits or a cash assistance program, we put the power back in the hands of those who need it most.

It's clear the most effective tool we have to combat poverty is cash.

A Call for Civility

I have done a little research about past elections since 1960.

YEAR	PRESIDENT	TERMS	YEARS	PARTY
1960	John Kennedy/Lyndon Johnson	1	4	Democratic
1964	Lyndon Johnson/Hubert Humphrey	1	4	Democratic
1968	Richard Nixon/Spiro Agnew	2	8	Republican
1976	Jimmy Carter/Walter Mondale	1	4	Democratic
1980	Ronald Reagan/George H.W. Bush	2	8	Republican
1988	George H.W. Bush/Dan Quayle	1	4	Republican
1992	Bill Clinton/Al Gore	2	8	Democratic
2000	George W. Bush/Dick Cheney	2	8	Republican
2008	Barack Obama/Joe Biden	2	8	Democratic
2016	Donald Trump/Mike Pence	1	4	Republican
2020	Joe Biden/Kamala Harris	1	4	Democratic

From 1960 to 2024, a period of 64 years, there have been 32 years with a Republican administration and 32 years with a Democratic administration. There have been six Democrats and six Republicans to be elected as President during these 64 years.

Tickets will be available for purchase on the day of event 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Dec. 7 at Red Barn Consignment, 642 B North Main Street.

Five houses will join the Salado Historical Society Log Cabins on the grounds of the Salado Civic Center, including the home of JoAnn Purser, 2518 Hester Way.

Recently settling in Salado to be closer to family Purser was a 50 year resident of Killeen serving the community as a KISD School board trustee for 12 years and also serving on Killeen city council as well as various boards and committees.

Purser has two adult children Cristina married to Dustin King and a son Benjamin who resides in Nevada

Purser recently celebrated grandparents day at CTCS in Belton with two grandchildren Jackson and Catherine.

Career wise Purser enjoys building new speculative homes and also manages her own rental properties.

She is an investor in Cristina and Dustin's land development companies and has ongoing neighborhoods in Killeen, Harker Heights and Temple.

Purser's hobbies include traveling solo and with friends and also participating in Disney run events. In 2022 for her 60th birthday, she completed a marathon for the first time in her life and quite possibly the only time. Her favorite events are 10k and half marathons

Governor Greg Abbott recognized Purser as a Yellow Rose of Texas in 2022 and the honor was presented to her by State representative Dr. Brad Buckley.

Other homes on the tour include these:

Allen and Kelly Brooks, 708 Rose Way

Dr. Doug and Carol Willingham, 2 North Main Street.

Jacob and Courtney Bruce, 2516 Winners Circle.

Joann Purser, 2518 Hester Way.

Aaron and Jillian Ashcroft, 9006 Abbey Lee Lane Salado Log Cabins, 101

A Call for Civility

I have done a little research about past elections since 1960.

YEAR	PRESIDENT	TERMS	YEARS	PARTY
1960	John Kennedy/Lyndon Johnson	1	4	Democratic
1964	Lyndon Johnson/Hubert Humphrey	1	4	Democratic
1968	Richard Nixon/Spiro Agnew	2	8	Republican
1976	Jimmy Carter/Walter Mondale	1	4	Democratic
1980	Ronald Reagan/George H.W. Bush	2	8	Republican
1988	George H.W. Bush/Dan Quayle	1	4	Republican
1992	Bill Clinton/Al Gore	2	8	Democratic
2000	George W. Bush/Dick Cheney	2	8	Republican
2008	Barack Obama/Joe Biden	2	8	Democratic
2016	Donald Trump/Mike Pence	1	4	Republican
2020	Joe Biden/Kamala Harris	1	4	Democratic

From 1960 to 2024, a period of 64 years, there have been 32 years with a Republican administration and 32 years with a Democratic administration. There have been six Democrats and six Republicans to be elected as President during these 64 years.

Don't move firewood: Help prevent spread of invasive pests, diseases

COLLEGE STATION, Texas – As fall-like weather occurs across the state, Texas A&M Forest Service urges all Texans to help reduce the spread of oak wilt and invasive insects by taking preventive measures and being cautious when collecting, transporting and purchasing firewood.

As Texans travel for hunting or camping trips, they may unknowingly be bringing deadly, invasive pests and pathogens along for the ride if they bring firewood with them.

“Many devastating, tree-killing pests present in Texas forests live and breed inside firewood,” said Demian Gomez, Texas A&M Forest Service Regional Forest Health Coordinator. “The spread of wood borers, such as the invasive emerald ash borer, have been on the rise this year. These invasive insects have caused devastating impacts, practically wiping out entire tree species from some regions of the country.”

The emerald ash borer, detected in 27 Texas counties, has killed millions of ash trees across the eastern U.S. The redbay ambrosia beetle continues to spread west from the southeast, killing redbay and sassafras trees along the way. Similarly, pathogens such as the one causing oak wilt, have killed oak trees in Central Texas in epidemic proportions.

Since insects like the emerald ash borer do not travel extreme distances naturally, it is presumed that firewood transportation was the origin of the emerald ash borer introduction in Texas which also intensified its rapid spread in the last few years. The emerald ash borer was first detected in Texas in 2016 in Harrison County. In 2024, emerald ash borer expanded to 12 new Texas counties.

Forest pests and diseases cause severe ecological and economic impacts over time. While they can spread on their own, accidental transport by humans is one of the main ways they move greater distances, sometimes quickly jumping state and county lines. Firewood is the common way many of these pests are moved. Even wood that looks clean and healthy may still have insect eggs or fungal spores that can start new infestations.

“We can limit the spread of invasive tree pests,” said Gomez. “The best rule of thumb is to burn the firewood near where it's bought or picked up. Moving firewood can easily introduce insects and diseases to new areas, particularly during hunting and camping seasons.”

For diseases like oak wilt, this is critical. Transporting and storing infected wood from red oaks can spread oak wilt fungal spores to previously uninfected neighborhoods and properties. Because live oaks tend to grow in large, dense groups, oak wilt spreads quickly, and one infected tree can lead to large patches of dead and dying trees.

While firewood is an important commodity in the fall and winter, Texans can help prevent the spread of these pests and diseases by purchasing, collecting and burning firewood locally.
